400 PASSENGERS RIDE IN 7 'JITNEY' AUTOS IN HALF DAY

Manager Expects More Cars to Be Placed in Service to Handle Traffic.

MACHINES ARE CROWDED

Women Sit on Each Other's Laps and Camp Stools Take the Place of Straps.

Seven automobiles, operating a "jitney" service between Taylor avenue and Delmar boulevard and Washington avenue, did such a lively business this morning that William A. Fears, who terms himself "manager of the Motors Service Co.," announced at noon that the number of passengers carried was about 400.

Fears has organized the motor car owners who will render the service. He is to get 5 per cent of the receipts, and is to direct running schedules. There will be no central responsibility for accidents, each man being responsible for his own car.

Only Seven Machines Appeared.

The seven cars were all that appeared, out of some 60 whose owners had promised to have them in line. Fears seemed confident that more cars would be added to his little flock later. The eastbound service was supposed to begin at 6 a. m.

Late in the morning, one of the drivers reported engine trouble, and retired for the day, leaving six cars with which to handle the westbound business in the late afternoon.

The eastbound business was sufficient for more cars, if the cars had been there. Women sat on other women's laps, and both men and women cheerfully sat on camp stools and collapsible chairs, in lieu of strap hanging.

Men and women walked many blocks from their homes in the West End to lend their support to the new transportation movement, and some were greatly disappointed when they found the number of automobiles in operation was insufficient to give prompt service.

Many Left on Sidewalks.

Between 6:30 and 9 a. m. the seven automobiles left the western terminus filled to their capacity, but the number of machines was so small that each rolled away leaving several disappointed prospective passengers on the sidewalk.

Before another "jitney" machine would arrive, some of these passengers would take a street car.

In point of time the "jitney" service was good. A Post-Dispatch reporter rode from Broadway and Washington avenue to Delmar boulevard and Taylor avenue in 14 minutes, but he heard complaints from others who had gone over the same route. One passenger said he took a 1906 model "jitney" car at Vandeventer avenue and Delmar boulevard and it took him 20 minutes to get to Taylor avenue. This was due to several breakdowns in the practically worn-out machine.

Says Weather Interfered.

The schedule was planned so that several "jitney" cars would always be waiting for passengers at both terminal points. This would have been possible if the 60 automobile owners who signed the agreement had been on hand this morning.

Manager Fears said he believed the weather was not warm enough for many of the owners to put their cars in service. So far as the passengers were concerned, winter temperature did not seem to be a serious handicap. Some seemed to prefer the open touring cars to those with tops.

One seven-passenger car left the western terminus about 7:45 a. m. with nine fares. Women sat in each others' laps rather than miss a chance to ride in the "jitney" machine.

Walked Fourteen Blocks.

One man who waited nearly 20 minutes for a "jitney" car at the western terminus told Manager Fears he had walked 14 blocks from Hamilton and Delmar avenues to try the new service.

While the new "jitney" service is known as the Motors Service Co., it is not incorporated. Each car is run by its owner or by a chauffeur employed by the owner. As general manager, Fears is to receive 5 per cent of the receipts. At present he has no way of checking up the fares, but he says that in about a week a fare registering contrivance will be placed on each machine. While there was no record to show the number of passengers carried, it was estimated that more than 300 persons rode in the seven "jitney" cars between 6 and 8 a. m.

Talbert a Passenger.

Street Commissioner Talbert was one of the "jitney" passengers. He said his purpose was to learn whether the "jitney" cars were being routed over Locust street. He feared that the use of this thoroughfare by any considerable number of "jitney" machines would cause a congestion of traffic.

Talbert found that the machines are not being routed over Locust street. They follow Delmar and Washington avenues.

When he left the "jitney" car at Twelfth street, Talbert said:

Philadelphians Give Billy Sunday $100,000.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 8.—Figures compiled today show that $100,000 is about the price Philadelphians will pay for the work done by Billy Sunday, for the free will offering by his hearers approximates that amount.

'SURPRISE PARTY' GREETED WITH SHOTGUN, TEN GIRLS WOUNDED

Now Relatives of Young Women Want to Organize Old Fashioned Necktie Party for Farmer.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Feb. 8.—One of the old-fashioned surprise parties, planned by friends of a Lees County bride, turned out rather more surprising than usual Saturday. As a result, 10 young women members of the party are at their homes with gunshot wounds, while William McIntosh, father of the bride, is in jail charged with felonious assault.

McIntosh, who is a wealthy farmer, lives in a large house, somewhat back from the road, and has been much troubled of late by serenading parties of young men, a favorite hill-country form of amusement more distinguished by vigor than delicacy.

McIntosh jumped to the conclusion that the surprise party was another visit of his tormentors. He threw up a window and demanded that the party go. He was not understood, so he fired into the party with a double-barreled shotgun.

LIBERTY BELL RUNG AS TEST

Sound Will Be Repeated and Carried to San Francisco by Wire.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 8.—For the first time in three-quarters of a century the sacred Liberty Bell in Independence Hall was rung yesterday. A group of city officials surrounded the casing by which the relic is guarded and watched its opening. Then Chief Ball who has direct charge of the bell, struck the ancient bronze with a wooden mallet. The note was dull and muffled, for the crack in the bell has destroyed its timbre.

The ringing of the bell was a test. In a few days the bell will be struck again, and its queer muffled note will travel thousands of miles along a strand of copper wire to the ears of Mayor Rolf of San Francisco and officials of the Panama-Pacific Exposition.

Islanders Bound for Germany.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 8.—Gov. Edward Baber and 104 residents of New Pomerania, an island of the Bismarck archipelago in the South Pacific Ocean, which formerly was a German possession, but was taken by the British, sailed for New York yesterday. The refugees will endeavor to return to Germany through Italy.

BITTER FEELING AGAINST STEVENS, WITNESSES ASSERT

Citizens of St. Louis County Tell of Sentiment in Realty Man's Case.

HE INVITED HEARING

Former Clayton Business Man Says He Cannot Get Fair Trial on Embezzlement Charges.

Prominent citizens of St. Louis County today testified before Judge McElhinney at Clayton as to the strong public sentiment against Beverly C. Stevens, former Clayton real estate dealer, who is under indictment on several charges of embezzlement by fraudulent manipulation and duplication of deeds of trust.

Stevens himself invited this inquiry when he asked for a change of venue on the ground that sentiment against him was so strong that he could not hope for a fair trial in St. Louis County. He was in the courtroom today and heard the witnesses tell of the feeling against him.

James E. Hereford, president of the Trust Company of St. Louis County and receiver of the Stevens properties, testified that there is much unfavorable feeling against Stevens.

Priest Is a Witness.

Hereford said John Ossenfort, a Clayton lawyer, had told him that in his opinion Stevens was "not entitled to a trial."

The Rev. Joseph Tettemer, pastor of a Catholic church at Pine Lawn, testified that if he were summoned as a juror in the case he would decline to serve because of his prejudice against Stevens. Father Tettemer said John Malone, one of his parishioners, had expressed the opinion that Stevens "ought to get 99 years." Another parishioner, named Harrison, he said, told him he thought Stevens "ought to be hung." The priest also quoted a man named Benson as saying he "wanted to kill Stevens." He also said a Mrs. H. H. Mueller of Pine Lawn had been strong in her condemnation of Stevens.

Reporter Tells of Publicity.

Joseph McAtee, an attorney, said he believed Stevens could not have a fair trial in St. Louis County.

J. W. McAlister, a reporter for the Post-Dispatch at Clayton, was questioned as to the publicity which had been given to Stevens' failure. He testified that the Post-Dispatch had printed the first account of the failure and that this account and subsequent ones were widely disseminated owing to the fact that the Post-Dispatch has a very large circulation in St. Louis County.

He said he believed there was strong sentiment against Stevens.

WOMAN CAUSES ARREST OF FORMER STATE SUPREME JUDGE

WEBB CITY, Mo., Feb. 8.—Waltour M. Robinson, former Justice of the State Supreme Court, was arrested here this morning on a charge of disturbing the peace of Mrs. Lydia Willis, an employe in a restaurant, who objected to remarks to her by Judge Robinson.

His trial was set for Saturday afternoon in a justice court. He was released on $50 bond. Judge Robinson is a former resident of Webb City and owns much property here.

ARGUMENTS ARE BEGUN IN TRIAL OF SWINDLE CASE

GREENFIELD ON STAND

Government Introduces Witnesses to Strengthen Case Against Defendants.

Testimony in the "Bankruptcy Trust" trial was completed at noon today before Judge Pollock in the Federal Court, where the hearing had been going on for seven days, and in the afternoon counsel began arguments which the Court had limited to 50 minutes for each side.

The Government, in rebuttal, introduced four witnesses in an effort to strengthen its case against the four remaining defendants, Samuel Bernstein, Jacob Lippman, Alfred Goldberg and Harry A. Cohen, all of Philadelphia.

Charles L. (Bad-Eyed Charlie) Greenfield, self-admitted "brains" and ringleader of the "Bankruptcy Trust," who, as the Government's first informer, occupied the witness stand the first three days of the trial, was placed upon the witness stand again. He testified, in rebuttal, that Cohen and Goldberg loaned him $1000 with which he bought out the interest of Adolph Muscovitz in the Great Western Jobbing House, 509 North Broadway.

The defense made no effort to rebut this testimony, and did not cross-examine Greenfield. Greenfield and five associates pleaded guilty during the progress of the trial. Muscovitz, he had testified, sold out because Greenfield would not agree to incorporate the business and run it "on the square."

Credit Man a Witness.

C. D. West, assistant manager of the Adjustment Bureau of the St. Louis Credit Men's Association, and Postoffice Inspector Fank Smith testified that Goldberg, in Philadelphia, Aug. 7, 1913, had admitted to them that the books of the Pennsylvania Commission Co., operated by Cohen and Goldberg, would not show the firm's dealings with the Great Western Jobbing House.

Goldberg, they testified, told them he and Cohen, upon dissolving partnership, and agreed to tear from their records the pages relating to their transactions with Greenfield. After this dissolution Cohen became Greenfield's partner in the Pennsylvania Salvage Co., in Philadelphia, subsequent to the rapid-fire failure of five of Greenfield's concerns in four cities within four months.

A negro elevator man, employed in the building housing the Great Western Jobbing House, identified Cohen and Goldberg as the men he saw in the Great Western office three or four days before the Great Western "failure," June 22, 1913. That day, he said, 23 or 25 cases of merchandise were delivered at 11 a. m. on the third floor of the building. He said they were not opened, but were readdressed and reshipped two hours later.

In closing the defense, depositions of character witnesses were read, and other depositions introduced in Bernstein and Lippman's effort to substantiate their contention that they had "tipped off" Greenfield's connection with the Great Western Jobbing House to jobbers and credit agencies. Greenfield had posed in St. Louis as "Milton B. Rosenberg," a name also used by two of his associates at the same time.

Said Lippman Had "Squealed."

There was considerable amusement in the courtroom when William Skarloff's deposition was read. Skarloff, a Philadelphian, is a brother-in-law of Greenfield, the self-admitted "brains" and ringleader of the "Bankruptcy Trust." Skarloff, in the deposition, testified that Greenfield once told him that Lippman was the only man who had "squealed" on him, and that he would have been worth $50,000 if it had not been for Lippman. It has been apparent at the trial that there was considerable animosity between Greenfield and Lippman.

Skarloff was in Bernstein and Lippman's store in Philadelphia one day to purchase two sweaters for some children, when he got to talking with Bernstein and Lippman about Greenfield. Bernstein and Lippman, he said, told him of their having been "stung" in the failure of Brown Bros., Greenfield's store at Carlisle. Thereupon Skarloff said:

"He even beat me, his brother-in-law, for $9.42. Greenfield wrote me and asked me to send him a keg of herring. I sent it. It was for $9.42. He knew he was going to fail and he thought he'd sting me for the herring."

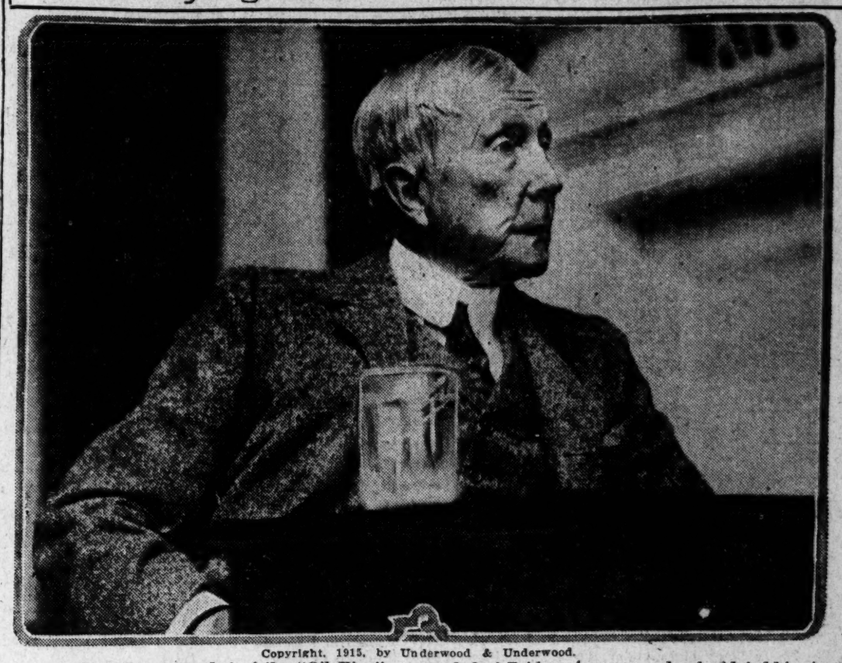

Asked for Pay for Herring.

When Lippman told Skarloff he was going to St. Louis to look up Greenfield, Skarloff told him to remind Greenfield to send him a check for $9.42, for the herring.

Charles V. Weinert, representing R. G. Dun in Philadelphia, in a deposition, said he met Bernstein and Lippman on the street several times, and that in June, 1913, they told him of Greenfield's connection with the Great Western Jobbing House.

Abe M. Ellis, a Philadelphia jobber, in a deposition, said Bernstein, in May or June, 1913, telephoned him to come to Bernstein & Lippman's, and upon arriving there, a box of stockings was shown to him which the firm had purchased from the Pennsylvania Commission Co. operated by Goldberg and Cohen.

FATHER HAMMERS BULLDOG TO DEATH, SAVES SON'S LIFE

Animal, Disturbed When He Is Feeding, Bites Boy, 4, on Head and Throat.

Aubrey Bayles of 2033 Thomas street beat his bulldog to death with a sledge hammer yesterday to rescue his 4-year-old son, Edwin, who was being attacked by the animal.

Bayles had taken the dog into the kitchen to feed it and had removed its muzzle. The boy, while it was eating, patted its head. The dog growled but the boy had played with it before and was not afraid. He He gave it what Bayles calls a "Dutch rub," stroking its head roughly with his knuckles.

The dog left its food and sprang upon the boy and knocked him to the floor and bit him on the face and throat. Bayles, after efforts to drag the dog off failed, seized a hammer and beat it on the head until it was dead.

The boy was taken to a physician, who cauterized the wounds. The dog was an English brindle 2½ years old and had been owned by Bayles for a year.

BRITAIN HAS LOST 104,000 MEN IN FIGHTING IN FRANCE

Premier Asquith in House of Commons Tells of Casualties Up to Feb. 4.

LONDON, Feb. 8.—Premier Asquith, speaking in the House of Commons today, said that British casualties in all ranks in the Western arena of the war, from the beginning of hostilities to Feb. 4 amounted to approximately 104,000 men. This includes killed, wounded and missing.

U. S. Believes England Now Has 500,000 Men in France.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Official information is said to have been received by the American Government that for the last month England has transported an average of 30,000 men each week across the channel to France. Official estimates which have reached the American Government place the number of British troops in the field now at close to 500,000.

PROSECUTIONS FOR FAILURE TO REMOVE REVOLVING DOORS

Building Commissioner Begins Cases Against Managers of Downtown Buildings.

Building Commissioner McKelvey today began his threatened prosecution of managers of downtown buildings eqipped with revolving doors only. At his request, Prosecuting Attorney Sidener filed information in the Court of Criminal Correction against George Turner, manager of a restaurant at 517 Market street, and Weston E. Browne, manager of one at 604 Market street.

The specific complaint alleges violation of the law requiring doors that swing outwardly in all places of public resort. The defendants will be notified to appear in court for trial.

When McKelvey first said he would start such prosecutions he declared he would have revolving doors moved from the City Hall. That was a month ago, but the City Hall doors have not yet been rmoved. Several downtown buildings are said to have complied with McKelvey's order.

42 Dozen Eggs Stolen by Burglars.

Burglars got into the store of the Wisconsin Creamery Co., 132 South Broadway, yesterday, and stole 42 dozen eggs and $5 in cash.

WOMEN ON STRIKE PICKET DUTY BEAT MEN AT 2 PLANTS

Special Police Rescue Workmen at Roosevelt, N. J., Where 19 Strikers Were Shot Recently.

ROOSEVELT, N. J., Feb. 8.—A crowd of angry women stormed the gates of the Liebig & Williams and Clarke Fertilizer plants here today, where 19 strikers were shot by deputies Jan. 19, and administered a beating to Elmer Osborne, chief engineer at the Liebig works, and Frank Davis, a clerk at the Williams & Clark plant. Both men were rescued by special policemen, sworn in yesterday.

The trouble started when some men attempted to go to work for $1.60 a day. This was the wage they received at the time of the strike, the previous wage having been $2 a day. The women jeered and hooted the men going to work and when Osborne and Davis appeared, attacked them. One man among the crowd of women was arrested.

The companies operating the plants issued a notice yesterday that unless the men returned to work today they would be discharged. Strike leaders said none of the strikers was among the men who went to work today.

DIVORCE DENIED TO MAN WHO TAUGHT HIS WIFE TO DRINK

Judge Declares F. W. Thomas Has No Right to Complain of Result of His Teaching.

"A man who teaches his wife to drink has no right to complain if she begins to drink too much," said Judge Hennings in the Circuit Court today, in denying a divorce to F. W. Thomas, who had brought suit against his wife, Lillie on the ground of excessive drinking. Mrs. Thomas testified that for 10 years after she was married in 1901, she never drank, but that her husband kept urging her to, and when she would atempt to take soft drinks, he would put whisky in them without her knowledge. They separated Aug. 9, 1914, while living at 5675A Highland avenue.

The Judge stated that, under ordinary circumstances, he would grant a divorce upon the evidence, but that he could not for the reason that the testimony showed that Thomas had taught his wife to drink, and therefore had no right to complain of the result of his teaching.

DEATH RATE IN UNITED STATES INCREASES 2 PER CENT IN YEAR

Washington Is Healthiest State, According to the Figures Given Out by the Census Bureau.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—A death rate in 1913 of 14.1 per 1000 of the estimated population in the registration areas of the United States, compared with 13.9 per 1000 in 1912, is shown in a report today by the Census Bureau.

Washington State showed the lowest rate, being 8.5 per 1000, while New Hampshire's was the highest, with 17.1. The lowest rate shown in 1913 by any of the 50 registration cities with populations of 100,000 or over in 1915 was that for Seattle, which was 8.4, while Memphis showed the highest, with 20.8.

COLORADO WOMAN DEPUTY SHERIFF IS HERE FOR PRISONER

Mrs. B. Kissel Davis Has Neither Handcuffs Nor Revolver—Not a Suffragist.

A mannishly attired woman, walking with long strides, entered Capt. O'Brien's office at Central Police Station this morning and shaking his hand firmly introduced herself as Mrs. B. Kissel Davis of Colorado Springs, Colo.

"I've come to take charge of a prisoner," she said, throwing back the lapel of her coat and displaying a Deputy Sheriff's badge. "I'm after Mrs. Edna Wilkinson-Ewing, who, I understand, is under arrest here."

"Are you a permanent member of the Sheriff's force?" O'Brien inquired, recalling that Colorado has equal suffrage.

"No," replied the visitor with a laugh. "I'm merely a volunteer."

Mrs. Davis is 26 years old, slender, but athletic in build.

"No, indeed, I will not permit you to take my picture," she said to reporters. "No, I am not a suffragette. I do not believe in women voting. I have been doing social work in Colorado Springs. I have been a daily visitor at the jail there and have tried in a humble way to help unfortunate women. I am a personal friend of Sheriff Birdall and he asked me to come after Mrs. Wilkinson-Ewing.

"I did not bring along a revolver or handcuffs for the simple reason that I do not expect to find any use for either. I do not anticipate that my prisoner will try to escape because I intend to treat her kindly and more as a companion than a prisoner."

Mrs. Davis and the prisoner became friendly immediately after they had been introduced.

"I'm so glad the Sheriff sent you after me," said Mrs. Wilkinson-Ewing. "I dreaded the ordeal of going back in custody of a policeman."

Mrs. Wilkinson-Ewing is wanted in Colorado Springs on a warrant charging her with embezzling $31.95 from the department store of B. S. Kaufman, where she was employed as bookkeeper and credit clerk.

BURGLARS WORK ON SAFE TILL THEY ARE EXHAUSTED

Fail to Get $400 After Breaking Into Kroger Store in Webster Groves.

Burglars exhausted themselves in an effort to break open the safe in the Kroger grocery store on Gore avenue in Webster Groves last night. The safe contained about $400, but the burglars failed to get it.

The safe was carted from the front of the store into a back room. Marks showed that the burglars first used crowbars to break off the knobs, and afterwards attempted to blow it with an explosive.

J. S. Benson and his family, living upstairs over the grocery store, did not hear the explosion. The burglars broke into the store through the heavy oak doors in the rear, using crowbars to force them. Apparently the burglars worked until they tired themselves out. The safe is about three feet high and two and one-half feet wide.

Dual Monarchy's Forces Reported to Have Clashed With Rumanian Guards Following Violation of the Frontier.

Germans Take Fortified Positions in the Argonne, and Regain Territory Near La Bassee Where Engagement Continues.

By Associated Press.

PETROGRAD, Feb. 8.—Hard fighting continues in the Carpathians with successes of considerable importance for the Russian troops, according to an official communication issued here today. A pursuit of the Austrians after their resistance had been broken at fortified positions near Mesolaborcz is said to have resulted in the capture of more than 2500 prisoners. The capture of additional troops after a retreat north of Uzsok Pass also is recorded, while it is stated Austrian attacks were repulsed at other mountain passes. Minor Russian victories are claimed in East Prussia and Northern Poland. The communication says:

"Our cavalry at 3 o'clock in the morning dislodged by a bayonet attack the Germans from the village of Podlesije and Prondystary, capturing a quantity of arms, ammunition and wire.

"An important encounter took place on the road from Sierpec to Rypin, where we delivered a successful night attack in the vicinity of the village of Ursulewo.

"On the left bank of the Vistula, on the Bzura and Rawka rivers cannonading continued on Feb. 5, but neither adversary undertook active operations.

"In the region of the village of Kamiony we began an offense and made some little progress in spite of an obstinate resistance by the enemy.

"Our artillery successfully bombarded a column of Germans who were moving in the direction of Bolomow from Zemiany. The infantry was compelled to flee, abandoning their artillery behind the highway.

"In the Carpathians hard fighting continues. Our troops broke down the enemy's resistance at three fortified positions near Mezolaborcz and pursued the retreating enemy several versts, taking two cannon, five machine guns, capturing the commandant of the Third Honveds, 47 officers and 2516 men.

"North of Uzsok Pass, near Lutowjsko, the enemy was forced to retreat. Our troops occupied his trenches, taking three machine guns and many prisoners.

"The attacks of the enemy who crossed the Toukholka and Beskid passes on Feb. 5 were repulsed with heavy losses for the enemy who was forced into precipitate retreat.

"On the Black Sea our torpedo boat destroyers have bombarded Choppa. The cruiser Breslau, which has arrived at Batum, fired 20 shots without result at our destroyers maneuvering in those waters. After two shots from the fortress the Breslau steamed away."

Germans Take Part of French Fortified Positions in Argonne.

BERLIN, Feb. 8, by wireless to London.—The War Department this afternoon gave out an official statement which says that the fighting south of the canal and southwest of La Bassee continues. Part of the short trench taken by the allies has been recaptured.

"In the Argonne the Germans wrested from the French a portion of their fortified position.

"On the East Prussian frontier, southeast of the Plain of the Lakes and in Poland on the right bank of the Vistula there have been a few unimportant and for the Germans successful engagements of local importance."

German Infantry, Begin Violent Battle in Argonne.

PARIS, Feb. 8.—The official report given out this afternoon by the War Office says: There was an artillery duel yesterday of considerable violence in the vicinity of Cuinchy, to the west of La Bassee. To the southwest of Carency the French were successful in a surprise attack on a German trench, which had been blown up by a mine. The defenders of this position were either killed or taken prisoners.

On the Aisne front and in Champagne, there was an intermittent bombardment. To the west of Hill 191 north of Massiges, the French batteries checked an attempted German attack.

In the Argonne a German attack in the direction of Fontaine Madame was repulsed. At Bagatelle a violent infantry engagement was started by the Germans and has been going on since yesterday morning. According to latest reports all the French positions are being maintained.

Yesterday's anti- British had taken uinchy, where the Germans had maintained a position.

Russians Driven Back in Bukowina; Austrians Take Kimpolung.

VIENNA, via London, Feb. 8.—The official statement issued here yesterday said:

"In Southern Bukowina our troops are progressing favorably and the Russians are in complete retreat. Twelve hundred prisoners and much war material have been captured. In the afternoon our troops entered Kimpolung and were acclaimed by the population.

"In the Adriatic the attacks of our aviators on French transports met with success; many bombs were dropped.

"The resignation of the Finance Minister, Von Bilinski, has been accepted. Former Premier von Kober succeeds to that office."

The Austro-Hungarian War Press Bureau today issued the following description of the recent fighting in the Carpathian Mountains:

"The battle for Dukla Pass ended favorably for us. Owing to difficulties of transport only weak Russian artillery forces participated, but the Russians had concentrated near Dukla Pass strong infantry forces which advanced against the heights.

"Without regard for human material the Russians tried to enforce a successful decision. Three of their attacking lines at one place were literally mown down from our trenches. Finally the Russians, advancing over a ridge of the pass, began in the evening to climb the opposite hills, which were in possession of Austro-Hungarian troops, but they were obliged to stop halfway in deep snow, as a terrible snowstorm began.

"When next morning the Russian commander gave the order to storm our positions many of his men had stiff limbs and others were completely exhausted, and the assault broke down under the Austrian fire.

"Numerous dead and wounded covered the battlefield. Many prisoners were taken. The Russians finally retreated in full flight with the Austro-Hungarians in pursuit."

Austrians and Rumanian Frontier Guards Said to Have Clashed.

PARIS, Feb. 8.—Austrian troops have violated the Rumania frontier, near Turn Severin, the Journal is informed in a dispatch from Nish. The Austrians are reported to have fired on frontier guards who attempted to oppose their passage and a furious fight followed.

Strong reinforcements went to the help of the Rumanians, and after a three hours' struggle the Austrians are reported to have been driven back across the line with a large number of wounded. If the Austrians had captured Turn Severin, the correspondent says, they would have had complete command of Kladovo, the only place in Servia on the Danube permitting communication with Rumania.

Turks Salute Italian Flag; Hodeida Incident Closed

ROME, Feb. 8.—It is announced that the Turkish authorities in Yemen have given complete satisfaction to the Italian Government for the invasion of the Italian consulate in Hodeida and the removal of the British Consul who had taken refuge there.

The authorities at Hodeida yesterday saluted the Italian flag on the consulate. The British Consul, George Alexander Richardson, was present at the ceremony, but left the city immediately afterward on a British auxiliary cruiser.

Paderewski on Way to America to Give Benefit Concerts.

GENEVA, Feb. 8.—Paderewski left Lusanne yesterday for America to give a series of concerts the proceeds of which will be applied to the relief of distress in Poland.

He intends to form an American committee to further this benevolent work.

YOUTH PAROLED AFTER GIRL TELLS OF THEIR ENGAGEMENT

After being in jail eight months, Theodore Freebersysor, 19 years old, of 1909 Farragut street, was paroled by Judge Cave today, when sentenced to serve three years in the penitentiary for stabbing and killing Joseph Telken, 23 years old, of 4222 North Twenty-fifth street, June 10 last.

One condition is that Freebersysor must not touch intoxicating liquors while under parole.

Judge Cave has had the case under consideration since the plea of guilty was entered. Saturday Miss Grace Lampert of 3918 Parnell avenue called on the Judge and told him she and Freebersysor were engaged to be married. She pleaded for clemency.

In pleading guilty on a charge of fourth-degree manslaughter Freebersysor said he and Telken were scuffling over possession of a broom in the back room of a saloon where they had been drinking, when he accidentally cut Telken with a knife with which he had been whittling the broomstick.

In granting the parole, Judge Cave said he believed a jury would have acquitted Freebersysor.

Heroic British Corporal Riding With Lord Mayor of London as City's Guest

Copyright, 1915, by Underwood & Underwood.

A GREAT welcome was given by London to Corporal Holmes, who had been decorated with the coveted Victoria Cross, for his bravery in saving a British artillery piece under incessant artillery fire of the Germans.

Corporal Holmes returned to London from a British field hospital where he had been confined. A large procession was formed and the lucky Corporal was driven through the streets of London in the Lord Mayor's carriage (in which he is shown in the picture).

Later he was presented with a purse of gold containing over $1000 and a testimonial.

Holmes is a Bermonsey lad and gained his V. C. by a sequence of brave deeds. On one occasion he found an artillery piece at Le Touquet with all the gunners shot down. Jumping on the limber, he drove off single-handed with the gun and the team while the Germans kept up an incessant artillery fire. On two other occasions he went into the open and brought in wounded soldiers on his back.

PEACE RESOLUTION OFFERED IN SENATE BY LA FOLLETTE

Proposal to Have President Call International Conference Received Unanimously.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—An international conference of representatives of neutral nations to discuss means of ending the European war, to establish neutral trade routes at sea and propose ultimate creation of an international tribunal for establishment of world peace, was proposed in a resolution today by Senator La Follette.

The resolution would direct the President of the United States to convey to all neutral nations the desirability of a conference to bring about the cessation of European hostilities; extend offers of mediation to warring nations; consider rules for the general limitation of armaments, and prohibition of exportation of munitions of war; create a federation of neutral nations to provide for neutrality of ocean trade routes; consider the rights of neutral commerce and all other matters that may tend to establish a permanent world peace.

The President would be empowered to appoint Commissioners of the United States at such conference whether called by this country or any other nation. The resolution was received by unanimous consent and allowed to lie on the table for future consideration.

SOCIAL SURVEY OF A WEST END DISTRICT IS PLANNED

Pastors and Church Members to Investigate Conditions in King's Highway Neighborhood.

A social survey of the King's highway neighborhood, between Page and Lindell boulevards, is planned by pastors and members of the nine churches in that neighborhood. The Rev. Dr. W. C. Bitting, pastor of the Second Baptist Church, said this afternoon that little had been done beyond the formation of a Ministers' Committee and he was not prepared to say what the next step would be.

"The movement is not aimed at anything or anybody—yet," he said. "We wish to find what the facts are about our neighborhood, and then to do what we can to make conditions wholesome." The district included in the proposed survey, he said, is bounded by Page and Lindell boulevards, Walton and Clarendon avenues. Two Hebrew churches, Temple Israel and the United Hebrew Congregation, are in the district. Dr. Leon Harrison, rabbi of Temple Israel, said he had been appointed to the committee "as being presumably in sympathy with the movement," but that he knew nothing of what was planned.

ENTOMBED MINER STILL ALIVE

BUTTE, Mont., Feb. 8.—Of five miners caught by a cave-in in the Gagnon mine of the Anaconda Copper Co., Saturday night, the bodies of four have been recovered and the fifth, Richards Rogers was still entombed early today, but was alive. Rescuers were in communication with Rogers and expected to bring him to the surface before the end of the day, although he is covered with many tons of rock. He shouted that he was free except that one foot was pinned between two masses of rocks.

Two of the five men were taken out alive, but died from their injuries soon after being brought to the surface.

COUNT ZEPPELIN DEFENDS AERIAL RAIDS ON CITIES

Says Crews in Attacking Defended Places Try to Avoid Killing Noncombatants.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—An interview with Count Ferdinand von Zeppelin, obtained by Karl H. von Wiegand, and copyrighted by the United Press, was published here today. In this interview, said to be the first which the aged inventor has granted, Count Zeppelin defended the use which the German military authorities have made of the great dirigibles which bear his name.

He replied to the charge that the Zeppelin aircraft are used by the Germans merely to kill noncombatants, and in the hope of inspiring terror. He said the use of the Zeppelins was not against noncombatants, but against military forces, defended towns and cities, ships, arsenals and docks. Their crews, he declared, have no intention of killing the innocent and helpless, any more than artillerymen have, but they cannot tell precisely where their missiles will strike, and incidental danger to noncombatants is unavoidable.

To show that the Zeppelin crews try to avoid needless destruction of life, he cited the fact that unexploded bombs were found in English towns over which the Zeppelins passed. This meant, he said, that the crews, finding it necessary to throw out bombs as ballast, had first disconnected the explosive contacts, so that the missiles would not explode on striking the earth.

Count Zeppelin, the interviewer stated, lately visited a seacoast base, to examine the Zeppelins which returned from the English raid, and to talk with members of their crews. When asked whether a raid on London was planned, he said the question was one for the admiralty and the general staff to decide.

LAWYER WHO WAS CHASED FROM MAN'S HOME FINED

Otis Moore Tells Judge of Finding W. H. Mueller Visiting His Wife.

William H. Mueller of 2712 Accomac street was fined $25 by Justice Sanders in police court today upon a charge of disturbing the peace of Otis Moore, a salesman, living at 4411 West Belle place. According to Moore's testimony, he received a telephone message Jan. 15, which led him to believe that a man was visiting Mrs. Moore. He said that he went home, took off his shoes on the back steps and crept into the house. He hid in an upstairs closet and remained there until Mueller and Mrs. Moore came up the stairs from the parlor.

Then, he says, he appeared and Mueller ran from the house. Moore chased him and caused his arrest. Moore said that he and Mrs. Moore met Mueller, who is a lawyer, last August

BOY IS SHOT IN EYE WITH AN AIR RIFLE BY CHUM

The left eye of Frank Decker, 14 years old, of 5748A Easton avenue, whose sight in this eye was destroyed yesterday by a shot from his air rifle which he had loaned to Milton Pallet, 15 years old, of 5727 Easton avenue, was removed today at Deaconess Hospital. The boys were playing in a lot when the accident occurred.

Pallet is so distressed by the accident that he is ill. Decker's father had opposed his having a rifle, but the boy had bought one for Christmas with his own money. One week ago the father told him that if he ever saw him playing with the rifle again he would break it.

Nurses Escape From Fire.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle.

Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action, yet always effective.

They bring about that exuberance of spirit, that natural buoyancy which should be enjoyed by everyone, by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

You will know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets by their olive color. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

GOV. MAJOR PLANS TO TAKE A BAND TO THE PANAMA FAIR

He Will Advertise State if Special Train Is Provided for Trip to San Francisco.

Gov. Elliott W. Major was in St. Louis today talking enthusiastically about the plans for official participation in the observation of Missouri day at the Panama Exposition at San Francisco, May 3.

If the Legislature makes an appropriation of $10,000, as he expects it to do, for the Governor and his Colonels and the other members of his official family to go to the fair in a special train, the Governor expects to take a big brass band and a few tons of printed matter along and advertise Missouri all along the route.

The Governor has not worked for the appropriation, he said, because it would look as though he wanted the State to furnish him with a special train, but he is free to say that he is much in favor of it. After the State has spent $150,000 on a State building, he does not think that it should stand back when it comes to providing for suitable participation in Missouri day's celebration.

The brass band would be a 40-piece affair and the printed matter would consist of 25,000 copies of the State Labor Department's report, showing Missouri's advancement and resources. The Governor expects all his Colonels to go along in all their gold-braided glory and help him impress California and all the states between here and there with the majesty of Missouri.

BANKER RAINE PLEADS GUILTY TO MISUSE OF MAILS CHARGE

President of Memphis (Tenn.) Institution Was Short $1,056,000 When It Closed.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 8.—C. Hunter Raine, president of the Mercantile Bank of this city when it was closed Feb. 9, 1914, pleaded guilty in the Federal Court today of misuse of the mails. He was charged with using the mails to defraud and conspiracy to obtain money by false pretenses. Claude Anderson, cashier, indicted jointly with Raine, asked a continuance of his case.

Raine's shortage was $1,056,000.

Raine will be sentenced by Judge McCall Wednesday. District Attorney Fisher recommended that a sentence of five years be imposed.

BRITISH ADMIRALITY TOLD LUSITANIA TO FLY U. S. FLAG

Wireless Received Just Before Dash to Liverpool Began—Ambassador Page Makes Report on Incident.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

LONDON, Feb. 8.—The British Admiralty itself ordered the steamer Lusitania to hoist the United States flag as a protection against attack by German submarines in her dash from Queenstown to Liverpool Saturday, according to a dispatch from a Chronicle correspondent at Liverpool.

The correspondent says a wireless message to the Admiralty was received Saturday morning, when the big liner was off the Irish coast. The Stars and Stripes was then run up and the liner went on to Liverpool.

From Birmingham the press association has received information corroborating this report. The dispatch says:

"Passengers from the Lusitania who arrived here Sunday state that when off the coast of Ireland the Lusitania received a wireless from the Admiralty that it was to hoist the American flag. It did so and sailed under that flag to Liverpool."

Ambassador Page today forwarded to the State Department at Washington a report on the Lusitania flag incident. The Ambassador informally reviews the alleged use of the American flag by the Cunard liner on entering Liverpool harbor Saturday morning, as was related to the members of the embassy staff by Americans who had crossed the Atlantic on the vessel.

Foreign Office Statement.

The following statement in regard to the incident was issued by the Foreign Office:

The use of a neutral flag is, within certain limitations, well established in practice as a ruse de guerre. The only effect in the case of a merchantman of wearing a flag other than her national flag, is to compel the enemy to follow the ordinary obligations of naval warfare, and satisfy himself as to the nationality of the vessel, and the character of her cargo by examination before capturing her and taking her into a prize court for adjudication.

The British Government has always considered the use of the British colors by foreign vessels legitimate for the purpose of escaping capture. Such practice not only involves no breach of international law, but is specifically recognized by the law of this country in the merchant shipping act of 1894.

In instructions to British Consuls in 1914, it is said: "A ship is liable to capture if a British character is improperly assumed except for the purpose of escaping capture."

As we have in practice not objected to foreign merchant vessels using the British merchant flag as a ruse for the purpose of evading capture at sea, at the hands of a belligerent, so we should maintain that in the converse case a British merchant vessel committed no breach of international law in assuming neutral colors for a similar purpose, if she thought fit.

By the rules of international law, the customs of war and the dictates of humanity, it is obligatory upon a belligerent to ascertain the character of a merchant vessel and cargo before capture. Germany has no right to disregard this obligation.

To destroy a ship, noncombatant crew and cargo, as Germany announced her intentions of doing, is nothing less than an act of piracy on the high seas.

House Reports to Page.

Col. E. M. House, who arrived on the Lusitania as President Wilson's personal representative to learn if possible if it would be worth while for the President to renew his offer of mediation, already has given to Ambassador Page an unofficial report of the hoisting of the American flag. While British officials here recognize the situation as one of great importance, they do not believe it will result in any disagreeable consequences.

REPORT ON FLAG INCIDENT ASKED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—A report from Ambassador Page at London on the hoisting of the American flag on the Cunarder Lusitania, while crossing the Irish Sea, was expected here today, and pending its arrival there were no official statements of how the American Government regarded the incident.

Naval officers recalled that the navy regulations permit a warship to fly another flag than its own, but specifically provide it must be hauled down, and the ship's own flag must be hoisted before a shot is fired. There are many incidents in naval history, where that has been done, the latest being the German sea rover Emden, which hoisted the Japanese flag just before making a daring raid at Penang.

It was recalled in naval circles that when Capt. Glass, commanding the cruiser Charleston on his way to the Philippines with a convoy of troops, stopped and captured Guam, he ordered the Japanese flag to be flown on his flagship and on the ships of his flotilla. He signalled this message to the steamers Australia, Peking and Sydney, merchant ships under charter to the Government and in use as troop ships:

"Passing signal station at Guam, Charleston will hoist Japanese colors; other vessels same or none."

The deception was aided by the fact that the Charleston was similar in appearance to the Japanese cruiser Naniwa.

All the authorities of international law and the manual in use at the naval war college justify the use of other flags on warships. The Navy War College manual says:

"The regulations of the United States navy state that the use of a foreign flag to deceive an enemy is permissible, but that it must be hauled down before a gun is fired and under no circumstances is an action to be commenced or a battle fought without the display of the national ensign."

The records of international law, however, contain few instances in which the use of a foreign flag on a merchantman has come into a question. One instance, though not in time of war, came up during the term of Secretary Sherman in the State Department, in which the London Board of Trade intervened to stop improper display of a United States flag.

These are Secretary Sherman's words:

"A line of steamers plying between England and the United States under the British flag for some years used the United States Union Jack as its house flag. Upon inquiry being made by the Ambassador in London, the British Board of Trade intervened in virtue of its authority in matters of shipping and navigation and I am just informed that the line in question has been constrained to adopt another distinctive house flag."

In May, 1913, the American Minister to Brazil brought to the notice of the Brazilian Government the fact that a Brazilian line of sailing vessels was using a house flag resembling one of the forms of the national ensign of the United States. The complaint was referred to the Navy Department of Brazil and the American Minister was subsequently informed that the Brazilian firm owning the vessels in question had ordered another flag substituted.

PRESS CLUB LAUNCHES BOOK SCHEME BENEFIT

Ancient Device for Raising Money Put Into Operation by Professional Compilers of "Men of Affairs" Volumes.

Men of prominence in St. Louis, especially those known or reputed to be wealthy, may expect, in the next few days, to be called upon by solicitors who will ask them for their photographs and the story of their lives, for publication in a volume to be entitled "Men of Affairs," for the Press Club of St. Louis has launched the ancient "book scheme" to raise money.

Promoters of the scheme are professional solicitors for this form of "write-up" publicity. They go from city to city compiling books of this sort for a profit. In the present instance they induced the directors of the Press Club to lend the name of the club to their enterprise.

TELLS HOW CIVIC LEAGUE MEMBERS OPPOSED REFORMS

President Says Interference With Privileges of Some Has Affected Subscriptions.

NEW FINANCIAL PLAN

Asserted Something More Powerful Than Dynamite Is Needed to Wake St. Louis.

The Civic League, in its campaigns for better living and civic conditions in St. Louis, interfered with the special privileges of so many of its financial contributors, according to President John H. Gundlach, that a new plan has been devised to raise money for its support. The new plan contemplates that each member shall pay $5 a year to the league, instead of a sliding scale of $2 to $100.

President Gundlach said that the league had been trying to wake up St. Louis to its opportunities, but that something with more powerful explosive qualities than dynamite was needed to accomplish it.

In an interview with a Post-Dispatch reporter today Gundlach called attention to many of the activities of the league and how these activities came into conflict with the personal interests of some of its members.

"In the smoke abatement crusade we interfered with the people who were violating the anti-smoke ordinance," he said, "and of course they did not like that.

Got on Toes of Landlords.

"When we advocated better tenements for the poor people to live in we got on the toes of the landlords, and when we demanded the abolition of vaults we met with opposition from real estate men representing landlords.

"When we go to the city hall to suggest economy and efficiency in the affairs of the city government, we are met with the opposition of the politicians who are interested in retaining as many jobs as possible for their political workers.

"Even in our activities for the new city charter we were met with the opposition of some members who decried the initiative and referendum.

"Every time that the league undertakes anything that means expense to any class of citizens we find that they are up in arms against us. In some things we do, the league interferes with my own business affairs, but I try to look upon all these movements from the general good that they will do for the city, and not merely from my own individual point of view. What money I have to pay out for civic betterments, I regard as merely a temporary expenditure, for I know that sooner or later it will come back.

"But St. Louis doesn't look at things that way. We are constantly met with the question, 'What's the matter with St. Louis?' Some people will tell you there is nothing the matter with St. Louis. But I tell you there is. It is civic indifference; this spirit of every fellow for himself.

"Why, St. Louis has been 10 years trying to build King's highway boulevard and has not done anything yet that looks like a finished improvement.

"In the same period of time Kansas City has spent more than $7,000,000 in similar improvements. And yet we wonder why it is that Kansas City is forging ahead all the time, while St. Louis is asleep.

Quotes Kansas City Slogan.

"I find that Kansas City has adopted for its slogan this year: 'We are going to pass St. Louis this year in bank clearings and building permits.'

"And in looking over statistics I find that St. Louis, with New York and Chicago excluded, ranked fourteenth last year in building permits. Kansas City was right on its heels.

"We have got to make St. Louis a better city. We have got to overcome this spirit of civic indifference. When the Civic League made its fight on the odors from the West End packing plants, we aroused a lot of opposition. Some people looked upon that crusade as a personal assault upon them, and let down on their subscriptions to the league.

"Some of our members whose interests have been interfered with have cut their subscriptions from $100 or $25 to $2 a year. They pay just enough to stay in to know what we are doing.

"Several years ago one good contributor dropped out. I asked him why. He said it was on account of our smoke crusade. He put a smoke consumer in his factory, like nearly everybody else. Then he found conditions so much better that he came back into the league. He said he had make a mistake in thinking that we had been working against him in trying to abate smoke.

Tells of Player's Estimate.

"I went to see Comptroller Player a few days ago on the subject of economy in city finance. He told me it was possible to save the city $600,000 a year under the new charter, by efficient and economic operation of the city government. But he expressed the fear that the other members of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment would not agree with him.

"The politicians don't want any jobs abolished. That interferes with their plans. There are hundreds of duplicate inspections made every day that could be abolished. The Police Department could do practically all of the inspection work necessary, but the politicians don't want that done.

"I am told that the city is about to lose Miss Charlotte Rumbold—one of our greatest assets. Yet we cannot weigh in money her value to the city. She has done great work to improve the living and social conditions of the children of St. Louis. But the House of Delegates has refused to increase her salary, because she is a woman.

ALL ANTI-SALOON BILLS WILL PASS, DRYS DECLARE

Provision Preventing Referendum Will Be Kept in Measures, E. A. Shannon Says.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 8.—Leaders of the dry forces in the Senate and House said today that they expected to carry through both houses all pending antisaloon legislation with provisions that such bills shall not be submitted to a vote of the people by a referendum.

The principal measures are those requiring the closing of saloons at 9 p. m., prohibiting saloons within five blocks of any building used for religious, educational or charitable purposes, and establishing precinct local option in the larger cities.

To each of these bills the "drys" have attached a clause providing that they are in the interest of the "immediate preservation of the public peace, health and safety" and that, therefore, they are excepted from the referendum by the Constitution.

Dry Leader Defends Course.

E. A. Shannon of Audrain County, author of the 9 o'clock closing bill, and one of the dry leaders of the House, said that the attempt to prevent referendum of the anti-saloon measures was due to the action of the liquor interests in the past.

"We are not afraid to submit any matter to the people if we are given a square deal," Shannon said, "but we have not had a square deal from the liquor interests."

"We sincerely believe these measures are in the interest of the public peace, health and safety, and we believe that we are right in taking advantage of the constitutional provision.

"It has been the custom of the liquor interests to load down the constitutional amendment ballot with $50,000,000 bond issue propositions, and all sorts of other matters obnoxious to the voters for the sole purpose of defeating liquor legislation they opposed. They have not been willing to submit these matters to a vote on their merits, and to protect our legislation we are forced to take this means."

Blaze Damages Physician's Quarters.

Fire was discovered at 10 o'clock last night in a room in a building occupied by physicians and connected with the city hospital by an overhead passageway. The fire was in the room occupied by Dr. J. R. Higgins, an interne, who was on duty in the hospital. It was extinguished with slight loss.

EVILS OF FRIVOLOUS LIVING POINTED OUT BY THE ARCHBISHOP

The Most Rev. J. J. Glennon Sees Danger of Atrophy of Public Mind.

There is one man in St. Louis who has never seen a moving picture show.

He is Archbishop John J. Glennon.

This fact was brought out today in an interview with a Post-Dispatch reporter in which he amplified views expressed in his sermon at the New Cathedral yesterday, deploring some tendencies of the public mind.

He expressed the opinion that the present-day form of light amusements, trashy novels and "yellow" newspapers, combined with a life of "rush" in the city, was productive of a condition of atrophy in a portion of the collective mind of the public.

In the drawing room of his residence, at 3810 Lindell boulevard, he talked earnestly of modern-day problems.

"To a certain extent, this is an age of superficiality," he said. "It is a quite common practice for historians to compare the present time to the days of the 'decline and fall of the Roman empire.'

"The cry then in Rome was 'Give us food and games.' You may observe the present life, and draw your own conclusions. I know that in the country people are not running after the superficial things as they are in the city."

He then told of preaching recently in a little country church. After he had talked 35 minutes and sat down, the priest in charge told him that many of those present had come from 10 to 12 miles to hear him and expected a sermon at least an hour long.

"Many people are living a 'frothy' life," he continued, with a smile. "It is a life of light amusements, light reading and light thinking. People in the city are not as easily amused as those of the country. They must be going somewhere, it seems. They read light, trashy novels, which require no mentality to peruse. They go to picture shows time and again. I have never been to such, but have seen stereoptican views. But you can imagine the effect of moving picture shows upon the public brain. Nothing to do but to let the eye take in the views—no other faculty of the mind called into play."

Discussing further the result of city life on the mind, he said that modern appliances had lessened the labor in the home to some extent and compared this lessening of physical labor to the lessening of mental activity in enjoying light forms of amusement.

Life in Apartments.

He dwelt on the fact that life in apartments, where there is no "back yard," caused many people to seek amusements outside of the home.

"There is not even a place for the children to play, sometimes, and sometimes there are no children in them to play," he added gravely.

But His Grace did not spare the rich in his talk. "It is hard for the rich to really understand the grim realities of life. To them much is superficial—and some times it is only when sorrow lays a heavy hand upon them that they really understand some phases of life," he said.

"And so in the life of a nation, sometimes it is only when a great calamity occurs that the people realize the pace they have been going. Maybe it is war, maybe earthquake—but it is something. History has shown that."

He said that in such matters the pendulum always swung back, but that sometimes the newer form of amusement was even lighter than the old. Dwelling on the newspapers and their influence upon the public mind, he said:

"I will not discuss whether the newspapers should lead the public, or the public lead the papers—but there is much in them that could be remedied to so benefit the public mind," he continued. "The constant reading of crime makes criminals. The presenting of a lurid Sunday section—and I am not speaking of art reproductions—creates in the public a demand, sometimes I fear, for the life which they see pictured for them."

"We Must Live Sanely."

"A certain portion of the public, I think," he said, "must take a saner view of things. We must not live for ourselves alone—we must not deal only in the superficial things of life. We must realize its grimness. There is pleasure, you know, in other things than a moving picture show, or the reading of a trashy novel.

"There is a pleasure in taking part in a church service, in getting nearer to the greater things. There are many pleasures which develop the best in us—we must live sanely, and shun the superficial."

RETURN OF TWO DEMOCRATS CHANGES SENATE SITUATION

Votes of Smith and Newlands Expected to Make Tie on Ship Purchase Bill Motion.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—With the arrival of Senator Newlands and Senator Smith of South Carolina, the parliamentary situation in the Senate was changed today. Senator Smith had not been expected to return on account of serious illness in his family.

With his vote and that of Senator Newlands, administration leaders claimed a tie vote on the motion to recommit the ship purchase bill with instructions. Then the Vice-President would be relied upon to cast the deciding vote.

As soon as Republican leaders learned of the return of Senators Newlands and Smith a conference was called to consider plans of action.

GERMANY NOT TO USE IMPORTED GRAIN FOR ARMY

Vice Chancellor Declares Such Articles Cannot Be Regarded as Contraband.

BERLIN, Feb. 8, by wireless to Sayville, N. Y.—Positive assurances that grain imported from America will not be used for the German army or the German administration were given by Vice-Chancellor Clemens Delbruech in a statement yesterday to the correspondent of the Associated Press. He declared the regulations under which imported grain was subject to sale only to municipalities or the grain monopoly organization had been revoked by the Bundesrath and announced the willingness of the Government to entrust the sale of such grain to American organizations for the duration of the war. By this step, he said, the absolutely non-contraband character of such grain shipments would be established. In his statement the Vice-Chancellor said:

"The Bundesrath's regulations for dealings in grain and flour, promulgated Jan. 25, did not contemplate the expropriation of grain supplies in favor of the Government or German army, but solely its equitable distribution for private consumption. It is therefore a measure of protection for the individual against speculation.

"Furthermore, paragraph 45 of this regulation reads: 'The stipulations of this regulation do not apply to grain or flour imported from abroad after Jan. 31.'

"Governmental supervision of the trade in grain under this ruling is confined to the home supply while trade in imported grain, now as before, remains unrestricted. The provision whereby imported grain may be sold only to municipalities or specified organizations has been rescinded by the Bundesrath. Although these organizations were intended solely to direct imported grain into channels which would lead to private consumption, it was thought best to assure neutral powers that under no circumstances would grain imported into Germany be destined for German forces or German administrative bodies. Under these circumstances, therefore, according to the principles of international law, such grain cannot be regarded as so-called 'relative contraband.'

Prominent Athlete Shoots Self.

O'MEARA LIKENS RUMBOLD'S IDEAS TO COMIC OPERA

Adjutant-General, in Report, Says Predecessor Developed Many Officers, Few Men.

John B. O'Meara of St. Louis, Adjutant-General of the National Guard of Missouri, in his report just issued criticises the policy pursued by Frank M. Rumbold, also a St. Louisan, who is Captain of Battery A. Since O'Meara became Adjutant-General two years ago, there has been a controversy between him and Rumbold, who was O'Meara's predecessor, over questions connected with the administration of the militia's affairs.

In his report O'Meara says:

"It seems that the policy of this office during the period immediately preceding my incumbency was to organize a large force of officers, but to give little attention to the strength of the several organizations, the theory seemingly being that if we had plenty of officers it would be easy to enlist the requisite number of men if the occasion ever arose for the use of the National Guard in the manner contemplated by law.

"The late Mr. Hoyt gives a most entertaining and musical account of a regiment with a full complement of officers and only one private organized on this plan, but it is hardly thought that such an organization would be formidable outside the realm of comic opera.

"The result was a top-heavy organization, not approved by the officers and men of the National Guard, who were discouraged to see efficiency sacriced in an effort to create on paper an army where numbers only warranted a brigade."

Rumbold when asked for a statement as to O'Meara's criticism said he only wished to say that it was not worth discussing.

MAN KILLED, NURSE IS HELD

Memphis Woman Tells of River Pilot's Death in Home.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 8.—The police are holding Miss Fannie Wilson, a trained nurse, following the finding of the body of G. R. Inman, a Mississippi and Ohio river pilot, in his home about noon today. She first said she and Inman had scuffled over a revolver and it had been discharged accidentally. Then she said she had been called to Inman's home because he was sick and that he killed himself. Mrs. Inman is out of the city.

HOSPITAL FINDS THAT "TWILIGHT SLEEP" IS FAILURE

Staff of the Michael Reese Institution in Chicago Concludes Treatment Is Dangerous.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—That the "twilight sleep" treatment in maternity cases is dangerous and fails utterly to aid the mother or child in the manner that has been asserted, was the conclusion of the physicians and surgeons of the Michael Reese Hospital today, after 71 cases had been treated in specially equipped apartments reserved for the treatment.

It was announced that the Michael Reese Hospital in the future would not use the treatment unless the patient signed a paper absolving the hospital authorities from all responsibility for its use.

Seventy-One Cases Observed.

This decision was arrived at after close observation in all of the 71 cases treated, where drugs of the highest quality were used and expert nurses employed to watch each patient with the greatest vigilance.

The reasons for giving up the treatment, except in cases where the patient insists upon it and assumes all responsibility, were freely given.

"The 'twilight sleep' treatment in maternity cases in dangerous because the drowsiness may in some cases mask very serious obstetrical conditions that are hidden from the physician," said a member of the Michael Reese staff. "It may conceal a dangerous hemorrhage for an hour or so or a serious rupture.

Effect on the Patients.

"Patients under the influence of 'twilight sleep' often act like drunken persons and it affects different persons differently, just as drink affects them differently.

"In some cases they become boisterous and difficult to manage. Others are made hysterical or quarrelsome to the last degree. Always they must be watched with the care that would be bestowed upon an insane person.

"Again, mothers under this treatment often develop the most violent tendencies after the birth of the child."

FOUR MASKED BANDITS ROB TRAIN PASSENGERS IN FLORIDA

Men on Observation Platform Lose Money and Jewelry; Suspects Are Held.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Feb. 8.—The Palm Beach train of the Florida East Railroad, bound from Jacksonville to Miami, was boarded by four masked men at Stuart, Fla., early last night, and male passengers on the observation platform were robbed of money and jewelry.

No attempt was made to rob women passengers. They were forced, however, to enter the car. After completing their search of the men, the robbers made their way through the car, and found that a brakeman had locked the front door. Revolvers were pointed at the brakeman, and he was ordered to pull the bell cord to stop the train. When it slowed down, the robbers jumped to the ground and escaped.

Four suspects were arrested near Stuart.

YOUNG WOMAN LIVED AS MAN

CHICAGO, Feb. 7.—For seven years Ida Weinstein, 26 years old, lived as Benjamin Rosenstein and posed as the husband of Pauline Rosenstein. Yesterday she died and the physician and undertaker discovered her secret.

According to the surviving member of the strange partnership, Ida had been unable to earn a suitable living while working as a woman in a New York shop and therefore assumed the disguise. For some time she had been a capital foreman in a Chicago shirt factory, but she contracted tuberculosis and was forced to retire.

Her last request was that she be buried as a man, but this the physician forbade, saying her clothing must be burned, so Pauline will furnish one of her gowns for the burial.

WOMEN FROM 45 to 55 TESTIFY

To the Merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound During Severe Ailments.

"I was going through a protracted siege of sickness and had pains in my back and side and was so weak I could hardly do my housework. I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it has done me a lot of good. I will recommend your medicine to my friends and give you permission to publish my testimonial." — MRS. LAWRENCE MARTIN, 12 King St., Westbrook, Maine.

"At various times I suffered with pains in my back and loins until I could not stand. I also had night-sweats so that the sheets would be wet. I tried other medicine but got no relief. After taking one bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I began to improve and I continued its use for six months. The pains left me, the night-sweats and hot flashes grew less, and in one year I was a different woman. I know I have to thank you for my continued good health ever since."—MRS. M. J. BROWNELL, Mason, Wis.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled in such cases.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

WHAT TO DO FOR ITCHING SKINS

Eczema, ringworm and other itching, burning skin eruptions are so easily made worse by improper treatment that one has to be very careful. There is one method, however, that you need not hesitate to use, even on a baby's tender skin—that is, the Resinol Treatment. Resinol is the prescription of a Baltimore doctor, put up in the form of Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap. This proved so remarkably successful that thousands of other physicians have been prescribing it constantly for 20 years.

Resinol stops itching instantly, and almost always heals the eruption quickly and at little cost. Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap can be bought at any druggist's.

NEIGHBORS HELP FIGHT FIRE; HOME IN COUNTY BURNS

Moore Residence, at Price and Clayton Roads, Destroyed; Hole Cut to Take Piano Out.

ENGINES DRAIN CISTERN

Crowd Rushes to Scene in Autos From Country Club and Houses in the Vicinity.

Sam Plant, Edward M. Flesh, Dwight F. Davis and George Randolph were among the well-known residents of St. Louis County who served yesterday as volunteer firemen, when the 14-room frame residence of John Moore, southwestern agent of the General Fire Extinguisher Co., at Price and Clayton roads, burned. Waiters from Busch's Grove aided the wealthy fire-fighters, and 300 spectators, a number of whom motored from the Country Club, watched the spectacular blaze.

"We saved the trees," Plant remarked after the fire, pointing to some fine oaks standing near the shell of the ruined residence. Beside the trees, a $1000 grand piano and a large oak china cabinet, with its contents, were saved. A number of paintings and some highly valued fur rugs, bought from the Russian fur exhibit at the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition in Seattle a few years ago, were destroyed.

Loss Is Put at $30,000.

Moore estimated his loss at $30,000, and said his insurance was $25,000. The fire extinguisher which he sells is an automatic sprinkling device, adapted to factories and warehouses, but not to residences.

The house, which stands on a seven-acre tract, was built by Tom P. Barnett, the architect, for his own use, and was sold to Moore five years ago. The furnace was protected by asbestos coverings, and Moore does not understand how the fire could start from the overheating of the furnace.

Moore and his wife, with Mrs. Moore's mother and sister, were walking about the premises after dinner, about 2:30 p. m., when a passing motorist called to them that smoke was coming from their cellar window. The women hurried to Busch's Grove, and telephoned to the St. Louis and University City fire departments, while Moore began an attempt to use chemical fire extinguishers on the blaze in the basement.

Autos Bring Many to Scene.

The news of the fire was spread, by the telephone operator, to the Country Club and to homes in the vicinity, and a number of Sunday dinners were cut short, as the diners jumped into automobiles and started for the Moore place.

Five waiters from Busch's were among the first to arrive. One of them, Joe Kartye, lost all his belongings in a fire at Busch's Grove the night before, and he was one of the most energetic and daring of the fire fighters. He went to the upper floors of the smoke-filled house and tried to save fine dresses in Mrs. Moore's wardrobe, but was unable to find them in the smoke.

George Randolph, a neighbor, was one of the first to arrive in an automobile. He carried chemical fire extinguishers, which he used through the basement windows. When the extinguishers were emptied he sent his chauffeur back to refill them.

Firmen Pump Cistern Dry.

Engine Company 52 and Hook and Ladder 18 arrived from King's highway and Clayton road and the University City fire department also appeared. A cistern was soon pumped dry and then a pipe line had to be run 900 feet to a pond.

Henry Busch and John O'Gorman set themselves to the task of getting out the grand piano, and they cut around a window on the west side of the house, with axes, until they were able to remove the instrument. The china cabinet was taken out so carefully that not one of the dishes in it was broken. But in saving these articles, men walked back and forth over the fur rugs, apparently without thinking to pick them up. One of them was a silver-tip Russian black bear skin, valued by Moore at $500. The family sewing machine, however, was carried out, and a bed was taken from the second floor. The articles of furniture were carried into a large playhouse.

Furnace Fire Still Burns.

The fire went up through the walls to the roof so that the work inside soon had to be abandoned. Three hours after the firemen had ceased their efforts, the fire in the furnace was seen burning brightly.

The firemen, regular and volunteer, adjourned to Busch's after the house was abandoned, and Plant told the city and University City firemen that he and his neighbors, members of the Clayton Road Improvement Association, would do something to show appreciation of their work.

"RADIUM KING" FIGHTS BILL TO REDUCE PRICE OF METAL

Declares Government Official Has Not Made Good His Promise of Cheaper Production.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Joseph M. Flannery, president of a Pittsburg company which produces more radium than any other concern in this country, has come back to Washington to oppose the administration bill, the purpose of which is to reduce the cost of radium to hospitals which use it in the treatment of cancer. In a statement he attacked Dr. Joseph A. Holmes, director of the Bureau of Mines, charging him with not keeping good his promise to produce radium at one-third the present cost. "The Radium King," with a corps of press agents, opened his batteries last night.

"Dr. Holmes has not only failed to do this, but it has cost the Government at least 200 per cent more to produce the $11,000 worth of radium recently exhibited in the House, than the present market price," Flannery said. "The statement of Dr. Holmes that he would furnish radium to the public so much more cheaply has prevented many physicians and surgeons from purchasing radium so far, and, consequently, has blighted the hopes that many cancer sufferers had for treatment."

Dr. Charles L. Parsons, the radium expert of the Bureau of Mines, would not discuss Mr. Flannery's statement today, but he said that he could produce a gram of radium for $40,000 and the present price for that much of the metal is $120,000. Dr. Holmes is in New Mexico.

I WAS RUN DOWN, NERVOUS AND WEAK

Cause? Chronic Cough — A Friend Advised Me to Take Vinol—I Did—It Made Me Well and Strong.

"I was run-down, nervous, weak, dizzy, and tired all the time as a result of a chronic cough which kept me awake nights for months. I have four in my family, and I was not able to do my daily housework. All the different medicines I had taken failed to do me any good until a friend told me about Vinol. I took it and within a month I felt so well and strong I could do my own housework. I would advise all weak women to take Vinol."—MRS. A. FREYOU, Jennings, La.

Why will women in this vicinity continue to drag along day in and day out, all run-down, pale, thin, nervous, weak and all tired out when we are continually publishing letters from hundreds of reliable women which prove how Vinol overcomes such conditions and creates strength.

We ask every weak, nervous, run-down man or woman to come to our store and get a bottle of Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic without oil, and if it fails to help you, we will return your money.

HUNTER FOUND SLAIN; BROTHER GONE, BELIEVED TO BE DEAD ALSO

Body of Baltimore Man Discovered in Florida Thicket With Bullet in Back.

WELKA, Fla., Feb. 8.—The body of Alonzo G. Gardner of Baltimore was found yesterday in a dense palmetto thicket along the banks of Raft Creek, near Georgetown, Fla. Death had been caused by a shot in the back of the head. Gardner and his brother, Horace, of Springfield, Mass., have been missing for three weeks.

No trace of Horace Gardner has been found, but the authorities believe he, too, is dead. It is thought both men were killed for the purpose of robbery. The brothers had gone on a hunting trip.

...S OPEN ... QUARANTINE

Federal ... Holds Holding of Cattle ... re Than 48 Hours.

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—The Chicago Union Stockyards, which have been under partial Federal quarantine since Jan. 29, ... of a threatened outbreak of foot and mouth disease, were reopened today for the interstate shipment of cattle. No cattle, however, may be held for more than 48 hours.

Squads of men are still applying disinfectants to the miles of pens and alleys in the yards. It was said that the work of disinfecting the entire plant would require at least a week more. Sections will be reopened as soon as the process of fumigation is completed.

Orders have been piling up so rapidly since the inspection of the yards began that the next three weeks, it was said, will be the busiest in the history of the packing houses.

CHEMICAL PORCELAIN IN U. S.

Possibility of Manufacturing Such Articles in America, Is Disclosed.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Probabilities are that the United States will not be compelled to look to Europe in the future for its chemical porcelain. Experiments by the Bureau of Standards disclose that it is possible to manufacture such articles from American materials. Heretofore virtually all chemical porcelain came from Germany.

The experiments developed that porcelain wares could be made from American clay which were the equal of the foreign product except as to color. This difficulty, however, recently was overcome.

MADE-IN-AMERICA COMPOSITIONS AT POPULAR CONCERT

Symphony Orchestra Plays "March of the Pioneers" by Ernest R. Kroeger.

Two made-in-America compositions carried off the palm at yesterday's popular concert of the Symphony Orchestra at the Odeon. They were the stalwart and rugged "March of the Pioneers," by Ernest R. Kroeger of St. Louis, composed for the Pageant last year; and a "first-time" selection, "Interlude," by P. A. Tirindelli, who has a chair in the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music. The audience demanded that the latter be played a second time.

Max Zach's musicians acquitted themselves with their usual skill and spirit in the Overture to Massenet's "Phedre;" in a sprightly and richly colored Suite, "Fete de Seville," by Tavan-Marchetti, played for the first time, and in the Weber-Berlioz "Invitation to the Dance." As encores they added Nevins' "A Day in Venice" and Haydn's rollicking "Rondo all' Ongarese."

Mrs. Helen Brown Read of Jacksonville, Ill., a lyric soprano, won a welcome from the audience, both because of the sweetness of her voice and a pleasant stage presence. In the middle register her tones were bell-like, though small; in the upper register they tended to become thin, and lose their resonance. She sang the Ave Maria aria from Bruch's cantata, "Das Feuerkreuz," two songs by Richard Strauss, "Morgen" and "Heimliche Aufforderung," and "La Cloche," by Saint-Saens. Her added number was Cadman's, "I Heard a Thrush at Eye." The orchestra accompanied the Bruch number. In the other Frederick Fischer was at the piano.

BURIED IN RUINS FOR 25 DAYS

Earthquake Victim Had Nothing but Water; Walks From Auto.

ROME, Feb. 8.—Red Cross workers in the earthquake ruins at Paterno Saturday, heard faint moans, and on delving into the debris, excavated a man named Cairolo, who had been imprisoned there for 25 ays.

The man, who is 35 years old, had had nothing but water during this time. He was uninjured, and when taken in an automobile to the nearest town, was able to alight from the machine without assistance.

GENIAL "POTASH AND PERLMUTTER" PROVES DELIGHT

Clever Comedy Based on Montagu Glass' Stories Pleases First St. Louis Audience.

By RIPLEY D. SAUNDERS.

WHEN I reviewed "Potash and Perlmutter" for the Post-Dispatch's readers during the early days of its long run at George M. Cohan's Theater in New York City two seasons ago, I characterized it as the most genial comedy then on the metropolitan stage.

Since that time this faithful dramatic shaping of Montagu Glass' famous short stories, in which "Abe" Potash and "Mawruss" Perlmutter first were given the breath of life, has made its way to London and other European capitals, also, with several road companies enlisted in its presentation, to many American cities, and now, finally, it comes to St. Louis, beginning a week's engagement at the Olympic last night before an unusually large audience and with a heavy advance sale that insures crowded houses throughout its brief stay here.

It is not now played by the original company, which included Barney Bernard as "Abe" Potash and Alexander Carr as "Mawruss" Perlmutter, the only important member of its initial cast being Leo Donnelly as Mozart Rabiner, but it is well played, nevertheless, and the genial quality of its homely humor, which constitutes the memorable savor of the piece, is finely developed and maintained.

This must needs be done by the players of its two title roles, for the good and sufficient reason that "Abe" Potash and "Mawruss" Perlmutter are at all times the spotlighted central figures of its singularly faithful story of the business tribulations and domestic fortunes of the two partners in the East Broadway (New York) cloak and suit firm, the checkered career of which gives the play its atmospheric environment.

It is well done. Julian Rose realizes the part of "Abe" Potash, the crusty, stubborn, but sound-hearted senior partner, with admirably realistic touches of sound character-drawing. "Mawruss" Perlmutter, the more eager, impulsive and disputatious younger member of the firm, is clearly etched by Julius Tannen, with a certain undercurrent of deeper feeling that adds notably to the appeal of the character across the footlights.

In the work of both there is a sustained sincerity that counts for much in the direction of lifelikeness, the two completed portraits seeming vital much out of the ordinary. The innumerable clashes between the two as to the conduct of the business—each thinking the world and all of the other—invariably followed by reconciliation, and as invariably leading to another clash, are genuine comedy of the richest value, keeping the audience chuckling delightedly at most moments and often compelling the heartiest laughter.

The play runs its course in three acts of congenially truthful setting. The first shows the East Broadway establishment of Potash & Perlmutter, the second their new and more ambitious quarters on Fifth avenue, and the third the Potash home on Lexington avenue, and, in this characteristic environment the story is consistently told.

It is in the main a story of purely humorous type. But there also is a touch of strong drama now and then, this being created by the disaster that menaces the kindly "Abe" and the loyal "Mawruss," due to their championship of their bookkeeper, Boris Andrieff, wanted in Russia on a false charge of murder growing out of the Kiev massacre, and there are one or two instants when the emotional strain is quite tense.

Happily, however, things come right in the end, young Andrieff is saved to become the husband of pretty Irma Potash, the dearly beloved daughter of "Abe," the quick-tempered "Mawruss" Perlmutter finds a worthy sweetheart in Ruth Goldman, the almost inspired designer for the firm; Potash & Perlmutter are saved from bankruptcy in a climax when all seems hopeless, and the last curtain falls on a very satisfying situation, indeed, to the manifest joy of the house.

Especially clever work in support is done by Julia Bruns as Miss Cohen, a stenographer; Ralph J. Herbert as Boris Andrieff, the imperiled bookkeeper; Leo Donnelly as Mozart Rabiner, Helen Salinger as Mrs. Potash, Carolyn Lilja as Ruth Goldman, Harry Hanlon as Henry D. Feldman, an unscrupulous lawyer; Maurice Barrett as Marks Pasinsky, and Ned Burton as Senator Murphy.

PLAYGOERS' GUIDE.

"Potash and Perlmutter." Olympic. Clever character-type comedy based on Montagu Glass' famous short stories in which its two title-role figures were created. Well played and rich in genuine humor.

"The Things That Count." Shubert. Interesting and wholesome play with appealing home atmosphere. Pleasingly presented.

"In Old Kentucky." American. Return engagement of popular drama now on its 22d annual tour. Big race scene with thoroughbred horses.

"The Yankee Consul." Park. Ambitious revival of famous Robyn and Blossom musical comedy, with Park Opera Co. Well cast.

"Our Wives." Shenandoah. Clever farce-comedy excellently presented by The Players.

Vaudeville. Columbia. Bill headed by "The Red Heads," a Jesse L. Lasky musical comedy production.

Vaudeville. Grand. Bill headed by Menlo Moore's "Young America," a tabloid musical comedy.

Vaudeville. Hippodrome. Bill headed by Clarice Vance, assisted by Tom Mitchell, in her new song revue.

"Star and Garter Show." Imperial. Burlesque and vaudeville.

"The Winners." Standard. Burlesque and vaudeville.

"Broadway Girls." Gayety. Burlesque and vaudeville.

"THE THINGS THAT COUNT," AT SHUBERT.

Children—four of them—count heavily in "The Things That Count," which had its first St. Louis production at the Shubert Theater last night. The four appear in a "melting pot" scene in the second act, which is the best thing in this wholesome and enjoyable play.

The scene is timed on Christmas eve, and the old playgoer is likely to be reminded of the similar setting in "An American Citizen," with which Nat Goodwin and a juvenile player used to compel alternate tears and smiles. But in this case, instead of a solitary waif, there are the aforementioned four children to keep the comedy and pathos of tenement life before the audience. There are Mickey O'Donovan and his sister, "Blawnche," little Elvira Vanni, who is training for the ballet, and whose dancing elicits from Mickey a scornful "Get the hook!" and Dulcie, princess of an imagined fairyland, to whom the sparrows at her window are nightingales, the corner applewoman is the Witch of Endor, and the rich, hard-hearted old woman who calls mysteriously is "a Christmas angel—in strange form."

The rich old woman, of course, is Dulcie's grandmother, whom Dulcie's mother can hardly forgive for her treatment of the dead son and husband. It takes all the sympathy which results from the Christmas Eve scene, from Dulcie's dangerous illness, and from a new love in the younger woman's life, to bring the two women together, and to give the grandparents a new appreciation of the "things that count" for more than all their money.

Persons who arrived 10 minutes late missed one of the best things in the play. This is the cautious preliminary inquiry of Mr. Hennaberry, as to when he is to get his breakfast. His two momentary appearances, and his mild "Dear me, I'm so hungry," tell the audience, just what Mrs. Hennaberry is, before that firm and flinty specimen of womankind appears. The interview between Mrs. Hennaberry and her sister, also coming early in the first act, is a spicy bit of character work. The courtship of Ingeborg, who emulates her mistress in firmness of purpose, and Abraham, is of the "Man and Superman" sort. Agnes Findlay took the part of Mrs. Hennaberry, George Paige that of Mr. Hennaberry, Grace Dougherty was Dulcie and Evelyn Wiedling was Dulcie's mother.

INSANE PATIENT KILLED IN FIGHT

Three Attendants at State Hospital at St. Joseph Held.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Feb. 8.—John Wallace of Gallatin, Mo., a ward of the State Hospital for the Insane here, was killed in a running fight between attendants and patients in the hospital building yesterday.

Three attendants are under arrest pending an investigation. It was asserted Wallace and another patient were fighting when two other patients and three guards interfered. Wallace suffered a fractured skull, which caused his death.

HEINZ Spaghetti

COOKED READY TO SERVE

Spaghetti is good the way the Italians make it—but it is even better the way Heinz makes it. A celebrated Italian chef supplied the recipe.

It is ready-cooked. It has both tomato sauce and cheese in it. To heat it put the can in boiling water 15 minutes before serving. Many people like it cold.

FRANCE HAS "75" DAY IN HONOR OF FAMOUS CANNON

Miniatures of Artillery Piece Sold and $700,000 for Troops Is Raised.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

(Copyright, 1914, by Press Pub. Co.)

PARIS, Feb. 8.—"Soixante-Quinze day" was celebrated throughout France yesterday, the entire populace paying honor to a hero that ranks next in popular esteem to Gen. Joffre—to the famous "seventy-five" gun which has proved so successful in the war.

An incident of the celebration was the sale of miniatures of the cannon, the proceeds being used to supply the soldiers of France with the things that are indispensable for life in the trenches.

The idea originated with the Touring Club of France, which had prepared 16,000,000 of the "75" made in six different forms, from a little flag which could be offered for 2 cents to medallions and stickpins for which a price in silver was fixed. No definite sum was asked for any of the mementos, paying being left to the generosity of the buyers by 100,000 or more fair sellers. It is estimated that $700,000 was raised.

President Poincare paid $200 for his souvenir and many wealthy persons gave as much. Everybody on the streets seemed to be decorated, but a dull, rainy day made the number smaller than usual.

The gun was invented in 1892, when Felix Faure was President and M. Meline Premier. That administration faced the problem of how to make Parliament vote $30,000,000 for manufacturing the new ordnance, without disclosing the real object of the credits, and thus arousing Germany's suspicions, and causing the Kaiser to renew his artillery. President Delombre and Reporter Krantz of the Budget Committee were the only ones informed of the real purpose of the credits, and the sum voted by Parliament was so disguised that its object never came out.

Undoubtedly the Germans soon learned the secret, but never sought to imitate the gun, believing it too fragile for real work. Their 77-millimeter gun is declared by French experts to be much inferior in every respect, firing only 15 shots a minute as compared with the 25 shots discharged by the "75."

"NEUTRALITY" MEETING HISSES AND CHEERS PRESIDENT'S NAME

Chicago Organization Formed to Promote Peace Praises Germany and Excoriates England.

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—The American Neutrality League, "organized to promote peace between the nations," promoted a wild, warring meeting in the Coliseum Sunday in which some 8000 pro-Germans hooted the mention of Secretary Bryan and the administration. Rev. Jenkins Lloyd Jones, a real neutral, was the announced chairman. He was late and Horace Brand, editor of the Staats Zeitung, assumed the duties of chairman. He introduced Jeremiah O'Leary of New York, president of the league.

Mr. O'Leary attacked the allies and eulogized Germany, denounced Secretary Bryan and the administration. The great crowd cheered and waved German flags.

Dr. Jones entered in the midst of the O'Leary tirade. "I thought I was to speak at a neutral meeting," said he. "I see nothing but German flags. Where is Old Glory? Where is the tri-color of France and the Russian and Serbian colors?" He then spoke of the good in the civilization of all the nations at war. "I expected to see American citizens here, not Germans, Irish, Saxons or Austrians." This was recived with groans.

Congressman Frank Buchanan was almost driven off the stage by the storm he aroused when he commended Secretary Bryan's peace attitude. The mention of the President's name brought mingled hisses and cheers.

Mr. Brand's speech on taking the chair was a strong pro-German effort.

GRADUATES MUST BE SWIMMERS

Princeton to Withheld Diplomas of Those Who Do Not Qualify.

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 8.—Princeton will enforce strictly the requirement that students be able to swim six lengths of the local pool, or 200 yards, using at least two different kinds of strokes, before graduation.

The new ruling was made in 1911, when the present senior class entered, but few believed the authorities would withhold diplomas because of this deficiency. However, the registrar recently issued notices to the 25 seniors who have not yet accomplished the feat that they will have to pass the test in order to be graduated in June.

The Basis of Values Is in Real Estate.

When you talk about investments, all other kinds are measured in comparison with an investment in real estate. Fewer people lose money in real estate than in any other investment. More people make money in it than any other thing in the world. This should make the real estate offers in the POST-DISPATCH Real Estate columns of special interest to the man seeking a safe and profitable place to put his surplus.

CUTS WRIST IN KILLING HEN

Man Taken to Hospital Suffering From Loss of Blood.

John Scollens, a painter of 1406 Market street, was invited to a chicken dinner at the home of Paul Weber, 2401 South Second street, yesterday. He asked to be allowed to kill the hen and was about to bring a knife down on its head when it jerked away from and he cut himself on the left wrist.

He was taken to the city hospital after suffering the loss of much blood.

Women's $1.50 to $2.50 Silk Stockings at 98c

—Just 720 Pairs and About Half Are Black

These Stockings are from one of this country's largest manufacturers of silk hosiery and are classed as "slightly imperfect" because they do not "grade up" to the high standard which is always maintained by this well-known manufacturer. These imperfections, however, can hardly be detected except by an expert, and in no instance do they mar the appearance of the stockings. So few of their large output are of this kind that it takes a long time to accumulate a sufficient quantity to offer to the public.

On this occasion we have just 720 pairs, of which more than half is black, and the remainder white and colors.

If you have attended one of these sales in the past you know the wonderful values they are, and we are sure that you will be among the first to take advantage of this sale. Past experience has proven that they do not last long, and we can only accept mail or telephone orders subject to previous sale. Sale price, the pair, 98c

Children Have Kidney Trouble

Three years ago my little girl, Angela, was taken sick with scarlet fever and later dropsy set in; her face and limbs swelled and her eyes puffed. A leading physician here at the time treated her without the slightest success. A sample of your Swamp-Root having been left at the house at the time, I resolved to try it, and as it agreed with her stomach I continued using it with gratifying results. The inflammation began to subside after she had taken the first fifty-cent bottle, and after she took two large bottles she was pronounced cured by the doctor and has been in good health ever since. The doctor came to see her every day and examined her every second day until he pronounced her kidneys in perfect condition.

Now then the doctor was under the impression that I was giving my girl his medicine, but as his medicine had failed to do a bit of good, and desiring not to offend him, I did not tell him I was giving her Swamp-Root and he did not know the difference. I did not use one drop of his medicine after I started my girl on Swamp-Root, and have always felt that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root saved my girl's life, for which I am grateful.

I cannot praise it too highly.

GAME LEAGUE IS OPPOSING MOVE TO ABOLISH WARDENS

Missouri Organization of 1000 Sportsmen Issues Appeal for Aid in Fight.

The Missouri Fish and Game League, which has a membership among hunters and fishermen throughout the State of more than 1000, and is affiliated with the Interstate Sportsmen's Association at Kansas City, having more than 1500 members, is issuing a general appeal to hunters and fishermen to help it save the State Game and Fish Department.

On Thursday of last week a bill introduced by Representative Damron of Iron County, proposing to strip the department of all its deputies and leave the enforcement of the game and fish laws to Sheriffs' offices and Constables, was reported adversely to the House by the Game and Fish Committee. The House reversed the report of the committee and sent the bill to engrossment.

It developed in the debate that the wardens of the Game and Fish Department are bitterly resented for their inefficiency in some parts of the State, whereas in other parts there is opposition to any game and fish laws at all. This combination of resentment sufficed to reverse the committee.

Chairman Bowers of the Game and Fish Committee warned the House that to strip the department of its wardens and leave the enforcement of the game and fish laws to Sheriffs and Constables meant the virtual destruction of the department and nullification of the game and fish laws, but the temper on the floor was such that his appeal was unavailing.

Declares Quail Is Not Protected.

One member of the House who participated in the debate said he had gone through two counties last fall before the quail season opened, and had found people shooting quail everywhere without anyone to restrain them. He declared the warden system a waste of the license money which hunters pay for the protection of game and fish, and he insisted that as the steward of this great fund the State is not doing its duty.

The hunters and fishermen of the State are not apologizing for the State Game and Fish Department. They are too well aware that politics has from time to time impaired its efficiency to the point of provoking exactly such outbreaks as that which threatens the department today. Upon the other hand, they are determined fiercely to combat any such abandonment of conservation as the bill introduced by Representative Damron means. The enforcement of the game and fish laws by Sheriffs and Constables has been tried in Missouri. It was a failure. It has been tried in many states. It always was a failure. Mr. Damron partially admits this by offering rewards of $5 for information leading to conviction. This, too, has been tried. It also was a failure.

Wardens Only Solution.

Game and fish wardens have been the ultimate solution of this problem in every state of the Union which protects its fish and game. They may be found in every one of these states today. This is because they are not locally elected and cannot employ easy-going methods with the hunters and fishermen in their districts to advance their political interests. Any elective officer given the game and fish laws of his county to enforce can make himself solid with his constituency in jig time. Such officers, moreover, have no time to enforce the game and fish laws. In most cases they know nothing about such things. Given the enforcement of these laws in Missouri for a few years, and, to quote Chairman Bowers of the Game and Fish Committee, "we will not have any game and fish to fight over."

There is at every session of the Legislature a plot of some sort to cripple the State Game and Fish Department. At the last session this took the form of knocking out the county license of $1 to hunt. This would have deprived the department of five-sixths of its revenue. It meant nullification of all the game and fish laws. Yet that bill passed the House, and only failed in the Senate.

Same Men in Annual Fights.

Usually the same men are behind all these attacks. They are behind this one. They do not especially resent the present administration of the Game and Fish Department. All the hunters and fishermen are certain of that. They are only taking advantage of the opportunity which the Major administration has given them by playing politics. Their motive at bottom is to destroy the law; to throw the market open to the sale of game, and to make commerce for a brief period of what might be made to serve for sport and recreation forever.

An emergency meeting of the Missouri Game and Fish League was held at the Marquette Hotel Saturday afternoon. It was decided to appeal to the press, and to urge hunters and fishermen everywhere in the State to use their influence to bear upon the Legislature in opposition to any such plan as that of House bill 602, which carries this provision.

All the hunters and fishermen are agreed upon the unwisdom of this bill. Inefficiency in the Game and Fish Department, they say, can be corrected; but to strip the department of its wardens means annihilation.

ONLY IDLE MILL AT GARY STEEL PLANT OPENS TODAY

GARY, Ind., Feb. 8.—With the starting today of the rail department, all mills of the Gary plant of the United States Steel Co. will be open. Four open-hearth furnaces will be added to the active list and four blast furnaces will be augmented within a week.

The rail mill has been boarded up for three months. It will run half capacity until March 1, when it is expected to run full time. Only old hands will be given the places. Within the last 10 days 2000 men have returned to their jobs. Four thousand men are at work.

Sunday Want Ads.

For years the Post-Dispatch has had no competitor in the Want Ad field. Every Sunday the totals of both the other St. Louis papers must be combined to make comparison.

The count of separate want ads printed by the St. Louis newspapers Sunday, Feb. 7th, was:

QUIT MEAT? NO!

You need not stop eating meat for fear of your kidneys. Your system requires its strength-giving qualities. If, however, you feel that it sometimes works against you, just take two or three GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules each day for a couple of weeks, stop for a week, then begin again. There is nothing new and experimental about them. They are an old, harmless combination of oil and herbs, which will keep your kidneys and bladder working fine and carry away all rheumatic pains and ill effects from any uric acid producing food. But when you go to the drug store get the original Genuine Haarlem Oil in Capsules, GOLD MEDAL. They are imported direct from Holland. —ADVERTISEMENT.

ICE PACK KEEPS SHACKLETON PARTY FROM POLE A YEAR

Don't Look for Us Till March, 1916, Explorer Writes From South Georgia.

MERIDIAN POSTS PUT UP

Markers Erected on Island So Whalers and Other Ships May Correct Compasses.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

LONDON, Feb. 8.—Lieut. Sir Ernest Shackleton, commander of the British Transarctic expedition, sends to the Post-Dispatch and the New York World the message given below. He left Liverpool Sept. 19, and sailed from Buenos Ayres, Argentina, for the Weddell Sea, Oct. 26, on the Endurance, with a part of his expedition, the other part being started on the Aurora for the Ross Sea. The original plan was for the Shackelton party to cross the Antarctic ice to the South Pole. From the Ross Sea, the other section was to send another party to meet Shackleton's near the Pole with supplies and relief and to return with it to the Ross Sea. Thus the entire Antarctic continent would be traversed, making a total distance of approximately 1500 miles. The two sections of the expedition were to join next April, if possible. But the ice conditions prevented so early a junction. It is presumed the Ross Sea party has been notified by wireless of the change of plans.

South Georgia is a barren, uninhabited island, lying in the South Atlantic Ocean about 800 miles nearly due east of Cape Horn, and within 45 degrees of the South Pole.

By SIR ERNEST SHACKLETON.

SOUTH GEORGIA, Nov. 20.—News which awaited the expedition when it arrived here finally decided me in the plans which I have now made.

All reports show that the ice is further south than it has been for years, and that means that the pack has not broken up.

I see no chance of our getting through this season, by the ice report. It is so bad that you must not look for us until about the beginning of March, 1916, from New Zealand.

The Endurance will return to South Georgia also about that time and do some work scientifically, and then go to Buenos Aires. The party which I think will cross the continent with me will be composed of Frank Wild, second in command; Tom Green, in charge of the sledges; George Marston, in charge of the general stores; F. Hurley and Dr. Macklin, surgeon. They are all splendid men and fit and capable of looking after the dogs. Indeed, they spend their whole time with the dogs, which know them and are amenable to them.

To Take Motion Pictures.

All but Macklin, who is the surgeon, have done lots of sledding. Macklin is a splendid, strong fellow and a good companion. Hurley is a good worker and I think it will be a good stroke to take him, for he has a splendid camera that is right for 1000 feet of film. Never have moving pictures been taken on such a journey.

The other men are all good, clean workers. Clark, biologist; James Wordie, the geologist, and R. W. James, the magnetician, have done much work important to science, which will make an interesting record when it comes to be written.

One notable thing that has been done is the erecting of a set of true meridian posts, so that the 21 whalers and other steamers which use the island can correct their compasses. This was badly needed and the information will be of interest to the admiralty.

Now, as to the future. What I expect will happen is this:

We shall sail from here about Dec. 2. That will give a chance for the ice to be breaking up in the south, and we ought, with luck, to get a landing about the end of the month. If the ice had been up north we could have landed about the beginning of December.

Short of Coal.

We shall at once investigate the road to the south, and if Filchener's landing place proves to be any sort of harbor suitable for the ship I shall put down both anchors and wait for her to freeze in. Then I shall know that the ship will be handy to take off the remainder of the shore party about Feb. 1, 1916. I am not going to risk them later.

The ship will go north then to South Georgia.

As we are not too well off for coal during the winter, our hands will be employed in skinning seals and taking blubber, which will be put in empty boxes, and this will be used to stoke the boilers. On the way up the cross-country party will have their depots laid out and be ready to start about Nov. 1 next, and we ought to cross in four months and be met on the other side in February.

So far for my hopes. What God may arrange no one can say. Things have not worked well so far, as the ice conditions are so bad, but that is a matter which it is impossible to foretell from year to year.

Welcome Visitors.

YOUNG OIL MAN WANDERING, MIND BLANK, IS BELIEF

Clew to Whereabouts of H. C. Coe Jr. Found in Eccentric Newspaper Vender in Hotel.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

BOSTON, Feb. 8.—Henry Clarke Coe Jr., who mysteriously disappeared from his home, 1200 Commonwealth avenue, bidding his beautiful young wife goodby more than a week ago, is thought to be wandering helplessly about Boston.

The young Standard Oil Co. employee, son of an eminent New York surgeon and son-in-law of Allen A. Ainslee, a well-known hotel man, for whose discovery the powerful force of the Standard Oil Co. and the official machinery of the Hotel Men's Association of the United States have been set in motion, is believed to be suffering from a mental derangement that has caused him to forget his identity, his home and business responsibilities.

Clew Is Discovered.

The case of young Coe—who is a protege of President Folger of the Standard Oil Co., who yesterday issued orders from Philadelphia that nothing must be left undone in an attempt to locate the young man—took a definite turn when it was learned that a young man answering Coe's description in almost every detail had been seen wandering about the corridors of the Tremont Building, Beacon and Tremont streets, in what was described as bewilderment.

According to half a dozen tenants and employes of the Tremont Building, the young man who appeared to be in a dazen state of mind, sought to sell papers to persons he accosted in the corridors the day before his disappearance was made public.

JANIN, 'THE BUG,' REAL INVENTOR OF HYDROAEROPLANE

Staten Island Cabinetmaker Wins in Patent Office From Glenn Curtiss.

WIFE ENCOURAGED HIM

She Believed in "Dreamer" When Others Scoffed, Now There's Fortune in Sight.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—Albert S. Janin, cabinetmaker, has taken off his apron in the shop in which he has worked eight hours a day for the last 14 years at Rosebank, S. I., and resigned his job.

He didn't quit in a huff—a fact that was plainly attested by the manner in which the foreman wrung his hand and his fellow workmen crowded around him, their faces beaming.

"Congratulations,' Al," said the foreman simply. From somewhere in the crowd spoke one of Janin's intimates:

"The 'Bug' has made good."

"Well," rejoined Janin good-naturedly, "it no longer will be Janin the cabinetmaker, or Janin the Bug, the dreamer. I guess the handle to my name has been pretty firmly established as 'Jan, inventor of the hydroaeroplane.'"

Then the modest little five-room flat at 78 Clifton avenue, overlooking the broad sweep of the lower bay, was the scene of an evening celebration, the like of which had never been seen at Rosebank. Most enthusiastic of the guests were men who, for the last 10 years, have scoffed at the strange-looking winged craft in the Janin back yard, which, the poor carpenter persisted, would some day be recognized by the Patent Office as the first flying boat.

Rosebank Put on Map.

Rosebank went on the map to stay last week when word was received from Washington that the Board of Examiners in Chief of the Patent Office had decided unanimously that the man who made the hydroaeroplane possible was not Glenn H. Curtiss, but Albert S. Janin, the cabinetmaker of Staten Island. For four years the powerful Curtiss interests had fought the claims of the obscure carpenter through the Patent Office and to its highest court—the Board of Examiners in Chief.

Thomas A. Hill, a patent lawyer of Broadway, took the case out of a sense of justice, without compensation. As a former president of the Aeronautical Society of America, and at present a director, Hill went into the litigation.

Just how it feels for a struggling workman, whose $5 a day is barely enough to provide the necessaries of life for a wife and seven children, to suddenly find himself famous, and a fortune within his grasp, Janin tried to explain. He is still a little dazed over his good luck, and in his hour of triumph thinks only of the good things in store for his wife and the now bright futures of the seven little Janins, blond-haired youngsters ranging from 3 to 14 years of age.

Janin "Put It Over."

"We put it over, didn't we, mother?" Janin beamed, affectionately patting his wife. "If it hadn't been that she stuck to me—believed in me, when all the rest were poking fun and scoffing—I never would have made it."

"And if it hadn't been," Mrs. Janin interrupted, "that after your hard day's work for almost every night in the last 10 or 15 years you burned the oil at your work bench until long after midnight, you never would have made it."

"The best part of this invention is that, unlike a whole lot of others, it's going to bring us money—gobs of it," Janin broke in. "For years we have felt the pinch of poverty, but thanks to Mr. Hill and his work in Washington, I guess that day is passed. You know the decision of the Patent Office gives me a royalty on every hydroaeroplane turned out in this country dating from the day a few weeks hence my patent is printed and issued by the Government. Mr. Hill tells me that the royalty can be fixed arbitrarily by the inventor. The failure of any of these companies building hydroaeroplanes to come to terms, of course, would be followed by an infringement suit, but we don't expect any such difficulty.

How He Will Use Money.

"What will I do with the money? The first thing will be to get a home of our own with plenty of ground around it for the kids to play. No more of these flats for us. But we are going to stay right here in Rosebank, where my wife and I were born and brought up. You know, we were sweethearts, even at old P. S. No. 13, around the corner. Most of the kids are now going to that same school. The oldest girl, Antoinette, who is now 14, can realize her ambition to go to normal school and take up teaching, if she wants to—but she don't have to now."

Burglars Use Ax on Conrad's Door.
An ax stolen from the furnace room at 2253 South Grand avenue was used last night in an attempt to break into the store of the J. F. Conrad Grocery Co., at Shenandoah and Grand avenues. The ax was found in a basement of the butcher shop of William Stoetzle, next door to the Conrad store, where it had been used in an effort to batter down the iron door leading to the Conrad basement. The Stoetzle basement was entered with a skeleton key.

TWO NEWSBOYS ARE FLEECED

Man Gets $1.80 From One and 85 Cents From the Other.

A confidence man fleeced two newsboys out of $2.65 yesterday morning. He approached John Riley of 3612A Cottage avenue at Grand and St. Louis avenues and asked him if he had change for a $5 bill. Riley said he had only $1.80. The man then said he would take three papers and would "tip" the boy the other nickel. He took John's $1.80 and told him to go to 2922 Dodier street and ask for Mrs. Kelly. She would give him the $2 bill, he said. There was no Mrs. Kelly at that address.

The other victim was Edward Bird of 2033 Magazine street who lost 85 cents. The man took three papers from him and told him to get a $1 bill from "Mrs. Kelly at 2510 Coleman street."

CYCLISTS SOUGHT IN ROBBERY

Two Men Seen to Ride Away After Burglary of Store.

Two motor cyclists are sought in connection with a safe robbery in the drug store of George Brandt, 2224 South Grand avenue, early Sunday morning.

The safe was in a back room, where it could be seen from the street. The robbers took $55 in currency, checks for $85, $21 in old and foreign coins and $4.50 worth of postage stamps. Neighbors saw two men on a motor cycle leaving the store about 2 a. m.

HOLD UP "STAGED" FOR BOYS

Negro Showing Audience "the Way to Do It," Takes 80 Cents.

Two white boys about 14 years old witnessed an exhibition of highway robbery which was staged by a negro for their benefit last night, according to Joseph Verdu, 27 years old, of 225 South Main street. Verdue said the negro, with the two boys at his heels, stopped him at Third and Elm streets with a revolver. Turning to the boys, the negro said, "Now, watch me."

After taking 80 cents from his victim, the negro said to his audience, "That's the way to do it." The negro ran south on Third street, followed by the boys.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

THE FIRE MARSHAL.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The worst measure now being sought to be passed through the Missouri Legislature is Senate Bill No. 6, an act creating the office of State Fire Marshal. This bill is gotten up entirely in the interest of, and by the insurance companies. A more complete spy system was never devised. It gives the "State Fire Marshal" an annual salary of $2500, plus all expenses incurred in the performance of the duties of his office. It gives him the right to appoint a deputy fire marshal at $2000 per year, "together with his expenses."

Again: It empowers "in the same manner" the appointment of "two chief assistant fire marshals," who shall each receive an annual salary of $1800.

Again: "They are authorized to employ such clerks and stenographers, and incur such other expenses as may be necessary in the performance of their duties." Such other and additional employes can be appointed by them as they see fit. The law gives them the right "to enter into and upon all buildings and premises within the State." There is not a home in this State, or any room or sanctuary in it that this crew shall not have the right "to enter into." What more intolerable violation of the constitutional rights of the people can be imagined? Up to date we have been taught that every man's home is his sanctuary and castle, and no entry or violation of its sacred precincts could be made, except upon a search warrant issued by a court of competent jurisdiction, and only after the exact place where the search is to be made is stated, and the purpose defined for which the search is to be made.

Again: These officials are "authorized and empowered (without let or hindrance) to make investigations and inquiries and force disclosures, as to the amount of insurance carried on any property in this State, and when he finds (or thinks) that property is insured to an amount in excess of its true value, he shall have the right to order and compel the amount thereof reduced to the true value." Think of such a provision as this, and where is the right of ownership of property left?

Why should any fire marshal have the right to investigate, or inquire about how much insurance, or in regard to any other private contract, that a citizen of this State has, if such citizen has not been convicted of crime, and to arbitrarily say what his property is worth, or how much insurance he shall carry? If "the owner or occupant" will not "within 48 hours" appeal from the arbitrary decision of these irresponsible persons (think of the short time it gives a business man to act) such orders of these fire marshals become final and shall remain in full force, unless such "owner or occupant" shall in five days, file a petition for review "with a court of competent jurisdiction." But this is only allowed upon condition that such citizen shall go to the expense of a lawsuit and "shall file with the court a bond," "conditioned to pay all costs upon appeal." Could anything be more impudent or tyrannical?

Why should the citizens of this State be forced to appeal from the order of these fire marshals and assistants, and go to the expense and trouble of appealing to the Circuit Court for redress? Any such steps will require a vast amount of expense, in the way of lawyers' fees, surety bonds, court costs and the like.

Bad as the above is, think of the following: If any citizen of this State fails to comply with any of the orders of this crew of fire marshals, he shall "be liable to a penalty of not less than $25 nor more than $50 for each day's neglect," and the penalty is to be recovered in an action brought in a court of competent jurisdiction under the direction of the State Fire Marshal. Can anybody conceive of a greater incentive to lay upon the people of this State burdens for beyond their power to endure? A like law, as this, has been introduced in the City Council of this city, and is now being sought to be forced through, as an ordinance, by the Fire Inspection Bureau, which is an agency of the insurance companies, established here and supported entirely by the insurance companies.

Section 9 provides that if any of the fire marshals shall be of the opinion that there is evidence to charge any person with the crime of arson, or "with conspiracy to defraud," "or criminal conduct with any connection with the fire," he shall cause such person to be arrested and charged with the offense." Why supplant our courts, prosecuting officers, Sheriffs and police force?

Under this proposed law, if a fire occurs, no matter how innocent, this Fire Marshal has the right to summon any witness without limitation or hindrance, and examine such parties under oath, for the purpose of securing evidence in order that the parties so examined, or other members of his family, may be indicted and prosecuted for arson, and can force any suspected or innocent parties to produce their private papers. It clothes this officer with the power "to require the production of books, papers and documents which he may deem necessary or material to such inquiry," whether such books, or papers have any connection with the origin of the fire or not. In other words, whether a fire is innocent or not, this officer can force any merchant or householder to produce any and all of his sacred and private papers and force any and all policy holders to submit to the irresponsible examination and inquisitorial processes of this Fire Marshal, without hindrance, and he will, as the history of this law shows is done right along, furnish the insurance companies with such papers, books and documents to enable them to defeat the policy. For, be it remembered, such records become public records, even, if such officer is fair, and thinks they should be sacred. In Illinois such a law was cunningly and quietly gotten through the Legislature of that State, and the history of the conduct of the Fire Marshals in that State has been such as to violate every safeguard and sanctity that an American citizen has ever been supposed to have or possess.

St. Louis, Feb. 5. THOS. T. FAUNTLEROY.

MR. POTTS' VIEWS.

Expert advice on insurance legislation is highly desirable in view of the effort to devise a satisfactory insurance law for this State. On this account, the Post-Dispatch has given Insurance Superintendent Potts ample opportunity to put before the public his opinion of the pending insurance bill.

Following his letter, which grossly misrepresented the bill, the Post-Dispatch published Sunday his analysis of the measure. Some of Mr. Potts' suggestions of improvements have value and might well be acted on, but in the main his statement is so uniformly and unqualifiedly hostile that the force of his statement is greatly impaired.

From Mr. Potts' viewpoint there is nothing good in the bill. He does not even see the value of the complete publicity of rates and records for which the bill provides. When he discusses a section conferring ample powers of publicity and regulation on the Insurance Superintendent he objects that the Superintendent may be corrupt or incompetent and refuse or neglect to use his powers. The incompetent or corrupt official is a menace to the effectiveness of all laws, no matter how good. This is not a good argument against any particular law. A commission may be as corrupt and incompetent as one individual, with the advantage of divided responsibility.

Mr. Potts' misleading statements about the pending bill and his apparently unfounded charges that the commission's report and the measure were written by insurance officials, do not strengthen his efforts to show that the measure is devised wholly in the interest of the insurance companies.

We want impartial advice without animus or ulterior motives. In the end the Missouri legislators must use their judgment on the merits of the bill as finally perfected.

Sound insurance legislation is an imperative need of the State.

DEFENDING ENGLAND'S MONOPOLY.

The Boston Transcript, the Providence Journal, the New York Sun and several other standpat newspapers, are proving their patriotism by stoutly defending England's near-monopoly of transatlantic shipping.

This they do by opposing the President's plan to create an American merchant marine which would make this country's foreign commerce independent of that monopoly.

FORTIFYING UTILITY PRIVILEGES.

In Texas, Oklahoma and Nebraska, as in Missouri, public utility interests are quietly trying to "put over" bills which would deprive cities of all control over their public services, and lodge control exclusively in State boards.

The franchise holders want the indeterminate franchise (virtually perpetual during "good behavior," or so long as the companies can control the state board), substituted for term franchises. They want the best guaranty they can get against possible competition by city-owned plants.

The measures with which they are thus trying to fortify their valuable special privileges in the several states differ in detail but are in purpose identical.

The idea in each instance is to get the state government to deliver the cities, bound hand and foot, into an "indeterminate" bondage to state boards which the franchiseholders evidently think they can control easier than they could control the city governments.

In each state the pretense is made that the bill aims to enlarge the field for municipal ownership; to "protect" the people.

Really, the unity of aim and method in the several legislative campaigns makes it look like a concerted attack. Very likely it is under way in other states, where it has escaped our attention. This is a circumstance which, if it be not a mere harmless coincidence, might possibly interest the state and Federal Attorneys-General.

However that may be, we are reasonably confident Missouri's Democratic Legislature will not commit the blind folly of enacting legislation so reactionary, unpopular and undemocratic.

ONLY A SELLING PLATER NOW.

A Chicago University genealogist, or maybe an ethnologist, reports after diligent inquiry that "there are six races in Col. Theodore Roosevelt."

We fear, however, that none of the six is fast enough to let him finish inside the money in 1916.

IS ST. LOUIS CRUEL?

Citizen A. N. Nahigian is a specialist in the practice of being kind to dumb animals, and he has something of startling interest to say to his fellow citizens.

He asserts that St. Louis is guilty of more cruelty to dumb animals than any other city in America. In a pamphlet which he is gratuitously circulating, he cites some recent instances of needless cruelty within his own knowledge:

> For instance, a shopkeeper on Easton avenue deliberately kicked a dog to death in broad daylight with scores of people witnessing the act, and coolly picked up the body and threw it into a passing garbage wagon. A striking teamster took an ax and chopped the heads off of the mules belonging to a transfer company, and a janitor pitched a cat out of a seventh-story window, and none of these men were ever punished.

Adequate laws for the protection of dumb animals, and an adequate dog law for the protection of human beings, are wanting in St. Louis, he believes; and we agree with him, especially as to the dog law. The Hawes dog measure introduced in the Legislature would give St. Louis, and the State at large, what is needed in this respect, if enforced.

New York, Washington, Los Angeles, Detroit, Boston, Cleveland and several other towns have more humane systems of protecting dumb animals than we have, Mr. Nahigian declares; and he rightly requests consideration of the subject by the Mayor and municipal law-making authorities.

Brutality to dumb creatures retards the growth of a city, says Mr. Nahigian. Unquestionably it retards the spiritual growth. Two propositions he makes are worth everybody's attention:

> Any man that is kind to dumb creatures is kind to his fellow man as a matter of course. No man that is brutal to our dumb brothers is ever kind to his fellow man.

Mr. Nahigian deserves a following, and we, for our part, are glad to go along with him.

HOIST THE FLAG PERMANENTLY.

The Lusitania, in crossing from New York to Liverpool, hauled down her British flag and irregularly and deceptively displayed the American flag to obtain for her passengers and cargo the immunity which that flag gives from naval attack by England's enemies.

Why should the protection of the United States be claimed in such a surreptitious and questionable manner as to cast doubt on the privileges of the flag when properly and legally displayed? Why should not the Lusitania and her sister ships gain publicly rather than clandestinely the shelter of the stars and stripes by complying formally with the requirements for American registry? A few months have made a tremendous change in the conditions under which the trade of the seas is carried on. The advantage is now all with the American flag, not with the British and other flags.

Senator Stone is right in declaring that the incident takes the ground from under the feet of those who oppose the ship purchase bill because of pretended fears of foreign complications. The British Cabinet, which directs an unwarranted use of the American flag by its own shipping will not inquire too closely into the former ownership of vessels legally sailing under that flag to transport to her things she needs.

THE TWIN POLICE BILLS.

One bill pending before the Legislature at Jefferson City makes a material increase in the salaries of the St. Louis police force. Another bill pending there authorizes a large addition to the personnel of the force who will enjoy this new schedule of pay.

As to the bill enlarging the force, the need for it is a question of fact. In determining the justification for its passage, it will be helpful to contrast the number of police per unit of population in St. Louis and in other cities. The per capita cost of police departments in all the larger cities of the country will also throw light on the question. The burden of the inarticulate taxpayer should have consideration as well as the importunities of police officials. What appears to be a need for more policemen is sometimes only a need for greater energy, intelligence and efficiency on the part of the existing force.

As to the bill raising police salaries, it has no greater merit than the similar bill that was defeated at the last session. How many in private employment are having their pay raised this year? Such few increases as are given are in recognition of particularly deserving service by individuals. No private employers are giving more pay to their entire force of workers. It is to be hoped that this session will see no repetition of the scandal over the police salary grab measure of two years ago.

Whether there is warrant for the cost that either bill would impose is doubtful. The double cost imposed by both would be perfectly inexcusable. But one of the absurdities of the Missouri system is that the fate of both of these bills in which nobody outside of St. Louis has any concern or interest is entrusted to a body in which those who know little about St. Louis and perhaps care less compose much more than a majority.

The denial of home rule makes intelligent legislation in such matters most difficult.

PRESS CLUB IN BUSINESS.

The local Press Club is going far out of its proper field when it enters into a business arrangement with a biographical organization to compile a book of names, biographies and portraits of St. Louisans.

The book is said to be intended for newspaper reference. But the announced plan proposes a division of the cost among the subscribers who pay for portraits and biographies. In other words, only the portraits and biographies of those who pay will appear in the book. The lever by which the money will be lifted out of the pockets of subscribers is indicated by the statement that they will be carefully selected from a list of St. Louisans. The Press Club's influence is expected to increase the leverage.

St. Louis is afflicted with more or less worthless biographical books of this kind. It is difficult to see the purpose of this new one except the "profit" to the biographical organization for its work and to the Press Club for the use of its name and the assumed newspaper influence it is supposed to wield.

For the sake of the longsuffering "prominent St. Louisans" who have been clubbed into similar schemes, the Post-Dispatch desires to detach itself in the public mind completely from this project, and to assure the public that whatever influence it has is against and not in favor of it.

POLICE AS EMPLOYMENT AGENTS.

Police Commissioner Woods of New York, evolved a plan for using the patrolmen as employment agents. It is so simple that any city can follow it.

Each patrolman goes the round of his precinct and gets residents and business men who are willing to do so to sign their names to a promise to pay 10 cents a week for odd jobs, such as going errands, cleaning sidewalks, removing ashes, sweeping out stores, cleaning windows, etc. When enough names have been obtained to make up a sum of $10 a week or thereabouts, a workless man, preferably with a family, is assigned to the precinct, given the list, and expected to put in a certain number of hours working for the subscribers. On the last day of the week, this worker goes the rounds and collects his pay. The plan has resulted in setting a large number of men to work.

This is better than charity. And a man doing such work has an opportunity to make acquaintances that might result in permanent employment.

SOCRATES ON THE SHIPPING BILL.

SOCRATES: Last night I went over to the Agora. There was a great crowd there with nothing more to discuss than equal suffrage or something else upon which nothing remains to be said, and when I came in I was importuned to speak on the shipping bill. Crites, who made the motion, said Socrates would understand it, if anyone did, and would know what was right and wrong in the matter. He said he believed there had been more sincere difference of opinion with respect to this project than anything Congress had considered in the last decade, and he knew they would all like to have the subject clarified by one who does not occupy his time playing bridge whist.

Glaucon: Pretty soft for people at the Agora, I should say. After wasting their time all week, they can go there on Sunday night and catch up on public affairs at the expense of one who conserves his time and is therefore able to tell them what they would not otherwise know.

Socrates: I quite agree with you, Glaucon. It is a national habit. If it were not, we would not have in this country so many successful publications which serve in exactly the same way in which I served last night. We have more pople who swear by reviews of one kind and another than one would imagine.

Glaucon: I know. Polemarchus is of that kind. He does not read the daily news and keep up on national questions, but buys for ten cents a week a publication which performs that service for him. I asked Polemarchus one day where he thought the editor of the review got all his information, if not from sources which he could command himself.

Socrates: It is true, of course. People of that sort have what might be termed second-hand minds. If they did not get the current number of their review, they would neither know what was in the wind nor what they thought.

Glaucon: We may safely assume, I suppose, that most of the people who were at the Agora had not gotten their reviews for last week.

Socrates: No doubt. At any rate, I did talk about the shipping bill, but I did not talk very long. It is not necessary. I said if there were anyone present who thought private interests would put an American merchant marine on the sea if the Government did not do it, I would like to have him stand up. Nobody stood up. There were plenty of people present who did not believe in the shipping bill, but none of them stood up. I then asked everybody who believed we should have a merchant marine to raise the right hand, and I think everybody did. Very well, I said. It seems, then, that we want a merchant marine; but that the Government plan is the only plan anybody has for getting one. In that case, we should support the shipping bill, even at the risk of losing the $30,000,000 we would invest. It beats doing nothing about a merchant marine.

Glaucon: So it does.

Socrates: I think so. Now let us all think how we are going to get some more firewood without going after it.

President Wilson continues to have no luck pleasing either of the men whom he beat in the race for the job.

THE DEFENSE.

I knew it could not be suppressed.
I knew the truth would out,
And if you want to know the rest,
I'll tell what it's about.

A man was tried in Hogan's Court,
A trespass the offense,
The judge asked him on what support
He rested his defense.

"Your honor," said he, "it's not true,
I could not harm a man;
'Twould be impossible to do,
I'm a Republican."

Feb. 5, 1915. R. D. K.

P. S.—

"Ten dollars," quickly said the Judge,
And putting on his hat,
Concluded, "What you say is fudge,
I am a Democrat."

IN DEFENSE OF THE PRESENT.

Ellis O. Jones, in Life.

Things are not worse than they were when you were little. They only seem so. If they have changed in any essential respect, it has more likely been a change for the better. The misleading thing is that when you were a child your elders talked to you so much about goodness and virtue and unselfishness you naturally assumed the world to be full of those admirable qualities, and that the older one grew the easier it was to find the right path and follow it.

In a word, your elders imposed upon you. They let you believe that the worst things in the world were bad little boys and bad little girls, and that nearly everybody stopped telling lies and being selfish after they reached a certain age. You thought that a man who was so kind and looked so wise as the doctor must always know what he was talking about; that Judges who could wear such majestic gowns must be the acme of perspicacious impartiality, and that teachers could not be so impatient without having a great deal of intelligence to back it up.

And then you grew up to find that all these people are just people, and that all the wise men are in books, whereupon you did not stop to analyze the matter, but just jumped to the conclusion that the world is deteriorating. On the contrary.

What Ails Kansas Now?

From the Indianapolis News.

Kansas wheat, corn and oats this year are worth $228,682,471. What's the matter with Kansas? Nothing but severe attack of prosperity.

A Rare Plant in Hawaii.

From the San Francisco Chronicle.

The rarest plant in the world grows in Hawaii. It is the silversword. Its very name is odd and unusual, at once arousing the curiosity and the interest of the stranger who chances to hear of it. It is a cactus-like growth, the long, silky, gray leaves of which give it its peculiar name. The reason for its rarity is that it is found only on the most inaccessible slopes of the volcanoes of this group of islands.

From the earliest times it has been appreciated and greatly admired by the native Hawaiians, who called it "ahinahina" (gray headed), because they had never, before the coming of the white man, seen silver, and therefore could not apply to the plant the cognomen which so well describes it.

BOLTED.—For patents there is no fixed time. Cases are sometimes complicated because of one or more persons contesting the claims of the applicant, and that involves delay. Try writing again.

UNCONVINCED.—If A told B that if B would sign a saloon petition he would give him $10 to lay a floor in the saloon building if he got the license, it was bribery, but we know of no law that would reach it.

MARY.—In justice to you, husband should make a will in your favor or secure you otherwise under the facts, assuring to you the money you have invested in his business. Should he die intestate (you having no children, or descendants) you could claim furniture and have an allowance made for one year's provisions, meats, etc., and one-half of remainder of his estate, real and personal, which one-half would be subject to payment of his debts. The other one-half would pass to his brothers and sisters or their descendants (his parents being dead). His stepmother is not an heir and has no interest in his estate in such case. The law is not at fault, but your husband.

The Triumph of Truth

After a period in prison and other suffering a young man is exonerated of a crime charged to him, and happily regains the lost love of his youth.

By Edna Deane Merriman.

"You can't do better. I've handled dozens of men in your fix. Look here, you owe society a grudge. The world has robbed you of name, fortune, the best years of your life. Pay them back. I offer you the chance."

"Thank you, no," said John Thurston, simply, and turned on his heel.

The tempter, a man who financed criminals and made them his slaves, sneered decidedly. John Thurston went on his way, dejected, unhappy, hopeless.

A month to a day he had been released from the penitentiary after serving a five-year sentence. The man he had just left had sought him out, had tried to induce him to join his colony of burglars and petty thieves whose services he would repay with money and protection.

It was the injustice of his punishment that had galled the proud spirit of John Thurston, clerk in a country bank, all but engaged to sweet Alice Lisle, life all before him, the abstraction of a package of money had been laid to his charge. He had been arrested and sentenced.

When he came out of prison he found that a relative had left him a small legacy. He secured this and came to the city to begin life all over again. He had learned that Alice Lisle had long since left the little village where they had once both resided. Even if not, what would she have to do with a convicted thief?

And now, wherever he had applied for work his record had come to the front. Even the criminals had located him and strove to influence him as one of their hateful guild.

"I am a marked man" breathed Thurston bitterly. "I give up the struggle."

He Sees the Locket.

DARK thoughts came into his mind and they ended in the resolve of suicide. He reached a pawnshop and viewed with grimness its array of weapons. A veiled woman was bartering at the counter inside. He waited until she had left. Then he entered the place.

Thurston was about to state his intended purchase of a revolver, when he happened to notice the article upon which the pawnbroker had just made a loan. He started. His whole being thrilled.

It was a locket. It bore two portraits. One was himself, the other of the only woman he had ever loved. Six years since he had given that keepsake to Alice Lisle.

The pawnbroker stared strangely as he noticed his emotion, for Thurston had reached out and had seized the locket and was inspecting the initials upon its outer case.

"Tell me," he spoke, his voice in a tremor, "did the woman I noticed just now leave this here?"

"She did," responded the pawnbroker. "What is your interest in knowing?"

"Because—because—did you see her face? It is not curiosity. It is vital that I should know."

"Yes, I noticed that she resembles her picture there. Mine is a hard business, my friend, but we money leeches, as they call us, have a heart—sometimes. I pitied the poor girl, for she looked poor and sad, and she kissed the locket at leaving, weeping and begging of me not to sell it if she could not redeem it soon."

"Did you get her address?"

"I always ask that. You are interested and you look straight. There it is."

Hurriedly John Thurston copied the name and address on the pawn ticket, "Miss Leslie." Then she had not married! He thanked the pawnbroker, forgetting all about suicide now, and hastened from the place.

The address he had received led him to a poor tenement building about a mile distant. He made cautious inquiries to learn that Miss Lisle and a lady friend occupied a rear attic at the top of the building. Five minutes later, standing on a roof stairway, Thurston looked through an open transom into a wretched room.

A fire was burning, evidently just started, and some parcels on a table indicated that they had just been purchased, probably with the proceeds of the loan made from the pawnbroker.

The Shower of Money.

UPON the bed lay the wasted form of a woman. She was weeping, while her hands were outstretched in love and gratitude towards Alice Lisle, who was bustling about the room and cheerily making it more comportable.

"Oh, you are breaking my heart, you are so good to me!" sobbed the woman on the bed. "Here for a month you have cared for me, a stranger, half-starving yourself, and at last parting with a lost love memento, the locket"—

"Better times will come, dear," interrupted Alice comfortingly. "I shall surely get work, and you, too when you are well. We shall redeem my poor cherished token of a happy past," she added sadly, "for I would not lose it for anything. Be brave, dear, there will yet come to your patient soul showers of blessings."

Two discoveries overwhelmed the mind of the watching Thurston at that moment. The first was that Alice Lisle was loyal to his memory. The next was that she was sacrificing herself for a poor invalid fellow creature. He reached within an inner pocket and drew forth a dozen or more bank bills that represented a part of his legacy. It was a vivid, irrational impulse that caused him to fling the precious money through the transom—a shower of blessings, indeed!

Somehow a rare joy took possession of his soul as he fled from the spot. He wandered about the streets, thinking, thinking. Ah! here was an object in life at last: to watch over in secret this devoted first love, to see that she did not suffer. He would never become known to her—ah, no! with the convict stain upon his life!

The Exoneration.

A HAND touched his shoulder and Thurston turned to confront a policeman. The latter was scanning a photograph in his hand. Thurston recognized it as one of himself, taken when he entered prison.

"I believe you are Mr. Thurston," spoke the officer, quite respectfully.

"Yes," answered Thurston, his heart sinking. On the threshold of new hopes, was he to be hunted down by the police as he had been by criminals?

"Would you step to headquarters with me, sir?" pursued the officer. "It is something important—had orders to locate you for a week."

Dejected, anticipating all kinds of direful trouble, Thurston entered the presence of the Chief of Police a few minutes later.

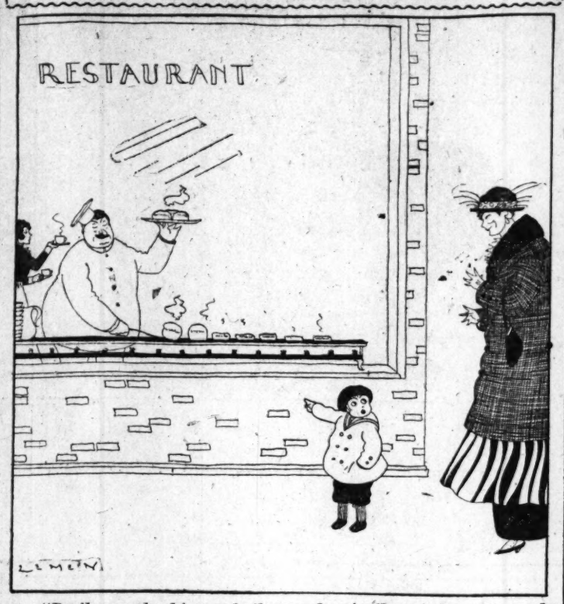

"Mr. Thurston," spoke the official, "I have some strange news to impart to you. The son of a banker who sent you to prison has just confessed, dying, that he, and not you, was the guilty criminal. His father has written a statement exonerating you. He has also placed in my charge $30,000, which is the amount you would have earned during your 10 years' unjust imprisonment."

"Give me the statement!" cried Thurston excitedly. "At last, at last, light, hope, happiness."

There was nothing to hide from his love now! Back to the poor attic room and its bewildered inmates John Thurston hastened. Its bare walls seemed those of a palace as her lost lover renewed with sweet, patient Alice Lisle the broken troth of the dreary years agone.

Wheat Cakes

"Do they make him cook those cakes in the window, ma, so he won't have a chance to eat any, himself?"

Trusty James

Sandman story of the willful princess, who, by her curiosity, broke the spell of the witch and released a handsome prince.

By Mrs. F. A. Walker.

ONCE upon a time there was a King who was very ill and about to die, so he called to his bedside an old servant, called Trusty James, because he had been with the family so long and served them so faithfully.

"I leave to you," said the King, "the happiness of my daughter, the Princess; she will have many lovers and some day marry one of them, that her own heart must direct.

"But there is one thing from which you must protect her. In the east tower of this castle is a room which if she enters will not only make her unhappy, but perhaps cause her death.

"In this room is a picture of a man, and what woman of my family looks upon it before she weds, will become blind or perhaps die the instant she sees it.

"The key to the door was thrown away years ago, after my sister had stolen to the room on her wedding night and looked at the forbidden picture.

"We found her blind and later she died without telling what she had seen. The Princess will be alone in the world when I am gone and this castle and all my wealth will be hers, but to you I intrust the secret of the room in the east tower."

Trusty James listened to all the King said and when he finished promised to guard the Princess as he would his own daughter if he had one, and the King was content to die.

But Trusty James had promised without reckoning on the willful Princess, for willful she was.

Her father had been dead only a short time when she called Trusty James to her one day and asked for the keys to the castle.

SHE opened one door after another until she came to the door of the room in the east tower, and after trying all the keys and not being able to open the door she called Trusty James. "Where is the key to this door?" she asked.

"There is no key to that door, Your Highness," said Trusty James.

"Call a locksmith at once and have one made," said the Princess. "I wish to see the inside of that room tomorrow."

Trusty James did not know how to answer at first, but at last he decided the truth would be best.

"You must not open the door," he told her; "the ladies of your family are never to see what that room holds until after they are wed; it will bring unhappiness upon you if you open that door."

"That is foolish," replied the Princess, "and as I have no lover, and am not likely to have, I wish to open that door. Obey me and have a key made at once."

But Trusty James had promised the King he would guard the Princess, and he did not obey her.

The Princess was very angry when she found she was not obeyed, but as Trusty James was such an old and faithful servant she decided to say no more about it, but open the door in some way without letting him know about it.

She got up very early one morning before anyone was awake, even before the sun rose, and went to the room in the east tower.

She had with her a screw-driver and a hammer, and soon the lock was removed and the door swung on its hinges with a creaking sound.

The room was dark except for a faint streak of light, and even that was very faint for it was not yet sunrise, you remember.

But the Princess made her way across the room and found the light came through a window; this she opened.

Then she looked around the room and the first thing that her eyes fell upon was the huge picture of a man in a gilt frame.

THE Princess went close to it and looked. It was a very handsome man, whose eyes looked out from the picture, and the Princess smiled.

"I think you are very handsome," she said as she courtesied to the picture. "I wish you were alive," she said at last.

But the Princess was frightened when the eyes and the mouth in the picture suddenly laughed at her and the handsome man suddenly said: "You shall have your wish," and then he stepped from the frame.

"You have broken the spell," he said, "just as the sun is rising."

When the Princess recovered from her astonishment, the handsome man told his story.

"Long, long ago," he said, "I was turned into a picture of myself by an old witch because I would not marry her daughter. I once lived in the castle before your father was born."

"You do not look so old," said the Princess.

"I am not old," replied the Prince, for he was a Prince; "I have remained the age I was when the witch cast the spell over me. She said I should remain a picture until a Princess should say she wished I were alive.

"And she also cursed the daughters of this house that looked upon me before they wed, fearing they might fall in love with me, unless they came to this room before the sun rose. Of course, no one came at that hour, and those who visited me at any other fell under the spell of the witch. But she did not dare break her word when you came at sunrise."

The Prince told Trusty James that he had done his duty, for he kept his mistress from the room at the hour when it would have been harmful and his promise to the King had not been broken.

Birds as Seed Carriers.

NOW and then we see a thriving bit of grass or a flowering plant perched in some impossible niche, high in a wall or chimney. Sometimes the wind has carried the seed there and with the help of a little dust and some rain, the seed has formed sufficient encouragement to sprout.

But it is not so often the wind as it is the birds, who have deposited the seed. Sometimes it has dropped from their beaks in flight, but more often it has passed undigested through the intestines and falls well fertilized to sprout. This is especially true in dry seasons, when the birds swallow less grit and so the seeds swallowed are not so readily ground up.

If it were not for the birds our Christmas supply of mistletoe and holly would be very scarce as in the case of the parasite mistletoe especially, the seeds from the berries would rarely, without birds' help, find their way up to the limbs of trees, where they can attach themselves to the bark and gain the needed sustenance.

Of all animals, birds are among the largest eaters. This means, of course, in proportion to their weight. The heron, which has an average weight of only four pounds, in spite of its size, has been known to eat 3½ pounds of fish at one meal.

For the use of naturalists there has been invented a cane containing a compass, double lens, thermometer, sand glass and bottle to hold flowers or insects.

Paris is said to possess more sundials than any other city in the world.

Chapters From a Woman's Life

Chapter CXXX.

SO once more I was to have a home. It was almost too good to believe.

"At so low a rental perhaps we can manage to pay off a little of the mortgage each year," I mused.

"And so do me out of my investment," Mr. Flam returned, smiling. "You must not forget that all over the interest is applied on the purchase price, so that if you pay the stipulated rent you will pay about $125 a year on the mortgage."

I wrote mother, telling her just what I had done, and when I should expect them. She replied by telling me not to buy linen, as the people to whom she would rent her house furnished their own, so she would have enough for a beginning at least.

I had heard that one could buy advertised furniture very cheaply, so I copied several advertisements from an afternoon paper and looked them up.

I bought a bedroom suit. It was of oak, and not just what I should have selected, but it was in such good condition, with good springs and mattress, that I did not hesitate.

Sunday I found several advertisements of furniture to be sold, and made a note of those that seemed most promisinng, and in a good locality.

"I Buy Some Furniture."

MR. CARMEN had gone South, to remain for some time. In fact, I should be gone when he returned. I was rather glad to see him go, as it would lessen my responsibilities, and give me more time to devote to getting my home r dy.

Nell stopped at the o e for me, and we took the subway uptown.

The first place we went was a private house in Eighty-fourth street. The furniture was all that had been said of it and more.

"I wonder what trouble or sorrow those people have experienced to compel them to part with their beautiful things" Nell said as we gained the street. "It makes me so sad to see such a home broken up."

I too had been thinking the same thing and thinking of my own beautiful home at the Terrace and how ruthlessly it had been dismantled. But I said nothing, and we were soon so interested in looking through an apartment in 103d street that we forgot to be sad.

I bought a brass bed, spring and mattress for $15 and a very good rug for my dining-room for $8. I also took the entire furniture of her servant's room, almost new. I had yet to find some things for mother's room, and we succeeded in finding nearly all I needed for my sleeping rooms before dinner time.

"I Feel Like a Bride."

I HAD bought a good many yards of netting at a bargain, and Nell proposed that I measure the windows and come over to her on Saturday to make the curtains.

"I will have Gertie over, and the three of us can accomplish a good deal."

"It makes me feel like a prospective bride," I laughed, "I do feel like one too, Nell. That lovely home at the Terrace, my beautiful furniture, my cars, and extravagant clothes seem to have belonged to some one else. I feel as though I were just the girl that Jack brought to New York from the country, when his salary of $125 a month looked like untold wealth, and our little cheap apartment the acme of luxury."

"Be thankful you feel that way," Nell sweetly replied.

When I went over to the house I found everything all right, but it was so cold I did not remain long.

I wish I could convey one little bit of what this second preparation for housekeeping meant to me, of the peculiar feeling that would come over me as I bought some simple inexpensive article for the home I was trying to make. I had seaved about $500, but I must not spend it all. We might have sickness, or unexpected demands which I must be able to meet.

Mother wrote that she had rented her house for $20 a month. This I determined she should keep for her exclusive use. I knew she would want to turn it into the general fund, but that added to her small income would make her feel entirely independent, and so happy.

During the week I picked up a few more things by watching the papers. Some chairs and tables, a dining table and a small buffet. I also found a woman to clean the house and keep the fire going until I should move over.

As fast as she cleaned and my purchases would allow, I put each room to rights.

SAYINGS OF MRS. SOLOMON

TRANSLATED BY HELEN ROWLAND

MY Daughter, as a domestic science student that followeth a cook book, so is a wife that seeketh to please her Husband according to a RECIPE.

Now, a bride of Babylon came unto me wearing a bright new golden wedding ring.

But when I sought to instruct her she silenced me saying:

"Go to! Thou canst teach me nothing!

"For, behold, whatsoever hath been written concerning the Gentle Art of Ruling a Husband, and whatsoever hath been said concerning 'How to Be Happy Though Married,' I have read it and devoured it and learned it by rote.

"Verily, I KNOW that a wife must be always gay and entertaining.

"Lo, I am aware that a man weddeth for curls and kisses and is shocked and astonished to find that he hath attained curl papers and curtain lectures; therefore shall I be always massaged and powdered and adorned for my Beloved's sight.

"I shall not argue with him, neither nag him, but shall use Woman's Gentle Influence in all things.

"Yes, I shall make him PERFECTLY HAPPY!"

And thereupon she departed.

And it came to pass after many weeks that the Bride returned unto me and cast herself at my feet, crying:

"Oh, my Mother, why didst thou not TELL me that all my Theories were as impotent as patent medicines?

"Lo, no woman who knoweth anything concerning how to manage men hath TIME to write advice thereon.

"For she is either too BUSY getting an husband or too busy keeping one!

"Verily, verily, what hath my book wisdom profited me? For among all the THEORISTS there was not one who told me:

"That to be 'scintillating' before breakfast is madness and self-destruction.

"That to awaken an husband by tickling his nose or the soles of his feet is Dementia.

"That to 'entertain' a man with pleasantries and repartee when he is shaving is a crime.

That to be 'sympathetic' with an husband when you have beaten him at cards, when he hath bet upon the wrong horse, or when he hath slipped and fallen upon the pavement, is to earn his eternal hatred.

"That to TALK unto an husband after his head hath touched the pillow at night is to babble into empty air.

"That to wear thy best frills, expecting thy husband to OBSERVE them, is folly.

"That to FEED a man as much as he will eat is homicide.

"That to interrupt an husband while he telleth his pet story, even though the house be burning down, is Suicide!

"Verily, verily, all these things and ninety-nine others have I learned too late.

"For one month of Matrimony exceedeth a Course in a College of Courtship!"

Little Fancies in Cretonne.

THERE is no pleasanter task for a young girl than to fix up her own room. Few girls have a sitting-room or den in addition to their bedroom, others must even share their bedrooms with a sister, but it is possible in any way every girl should have a special sanctum to do with what she will.

If it must be bedroom and den combined, it must be especially neat because in most cases girlish visitors are ushered right in and expect to see an attractive cosy room.

A little cretonne drapery will do wonders toward making the barest of rooms home-like. This should be plain if the walls are figured or figured if the walls are striped or merely bordered with flowers.

The latest fancy is to decorate the bureau china to correspond with the embroidery pattern of the cover. The girl with a taste for china painting can decorate her own boxes, trays and brush backs, piece by piece, and if she cares to do so, can use the same design for the cups and saucers and teapot on her tea table, copying the designs in colors on her tablecloth, doilies, and whatever covers she needs on her various dressing tables, chiffoniers and tables.

She might even add an embroidered pillow cushion or two to her window seat. To correspond she should use a design as similar as possible to the wall-paper or drapery. Of course, the large splashy cretonne patterns could not be satisfactorily reproduced on chintz even though the cretonne itself could be bordered with lace and used for covers, but a flower design from the mass on the cretonne could be used.

Some New Recipes

Curried Rabbit—For curried rabbit fry a chopped onion in a tablespoonful of butter, then add the jointed rabbit and let it brown. Cover with hot water or stock and let simmer until the rabbit is tender. Take up and keep hot until the sauce is made. Blend a tablespoonful of flour and one of curry powder, rub smooth with a little cold water and the juice of half a lemon, add to the stock left in the pan cook until smooth and thick.

To serve, cover a platter with hot boiled rice, lay the rabbit on this, and pour over it the smoking curry. Grated cocoanut and a hot sauce like Chutney served with curry are considered an improvement.

Escalloped Fish—Make a sauce of 2 tablespoonfuls of flour and 1 cupful of scalded milk, stir all together over the fire and when it thickens add one well-beaten egg. Separate into small pieces or flakes the cold fish, putting a thin layer of buttered crumbs in the bottom of a baking dish, cover them with pieces of cold fish and season with salt, pepper and a little nutmeg. Pour in a layer of sauce and then fish again, alternating until the dish is filled, and then cover with bread crumbs and little pieces of butter scattered over the top. Bake for 20 minutes.

Fricasseed Rabbit—Cover the jointed rabbit wtih hot water and boil about half an hour. Now add a sliced onion and a few diced potatoes, a blade of mace and a little parsley. Cook until the rabbit and vegetables are tender. Thicken with flour, season with salt and pepper. Let boil up once and serve.

Almost any vegetables may be served with rabbit, but spinach, turnip, onions, cauliflower and Brussels sprouts are appropriate.

An Idle Headsman.

AMONG the strange customs honored in Persia is one which empowers an executioner, after performing his dread office, to claim the payment from the parents or relatives of the victim of a sum not exceeding 500 tomans, or $800.

Rarely, however, is this sum forthcoming, and, as a consequence, the murderer is often imprisoned for life on account of the refusal of the executioner to work for nothing. The sentence is, therefore, mechanically commuted more often than not.

A man was recently sentenced to death for the murder of a merchant's wife. The father of the victim is too poor to pay the executioner's fee, and the merchant is averse to making the payment on the ground that his wife was a bad woman.

It is possible that the sum necessary for the payment of the executioner will be collected by subscriptions among the relatives and friends of the victim, otherwise the murderer will escape beheading and will linger out his days in prison.

Betty Vincent's Advice

"G. B." writes:

"I am 16 and fond of a young man I recently met. Is it right for me to give him my photograph?"

Before becoming too attached to your friend be sure he is what he should be. Give him your photo, but only as a friend making a gift to another. The more modestly a girl conducts herself the more her men friends admire her. Whatever you do don't fall in love at your age. Be sensible. Be woman enough to know you cannot possibly know your true mind until 20, and maybe not then.

"W. N." writes:

"I am almost 15, and am in love with a young man 19. My parents object to him, though they give no good reason for it. Are they right, and should I give up my sweetheart?"

A girl of 14 cannot go far wrong if she will obey her parents. At your age you should be at your studies, and not thinking about love and sweethearts. Girls who fall in love at 14 and eventually marry about 16 or 17 are the ones, who, in time, wish they had never married at all. By study, now, thus building up your character, you will be a bright girl at 18. At such an age you will be much better equipped to choose a sweetheart among your young men friends.

"E. H." writes.

"The young man I am in love with and I have had a misunderstanding. He has ceased to call upon me. I am to blame. What shall I do?"

Write him, tell him you are to blame, and ask him to call so you may make further explanation and show contriteness. But be sure you are to blame. There are many girls only too willing to take the blame in order to call back a neglectful sweetheart. Never humble yourself before a man, if he be the one in the wrong. Should you marry such a one you will always find yourself "taking the blame" for the remainder of your life. The world is full of egotistic men whose only delight seems to be in making their wives miserable.

"V. G." writes:

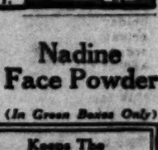

"A young man, not yet of age, is in love with me. His parents object to him going with me. And he obeys them. What do you advise?"

Do not interfere with the young fellow. If he is still under age he should mind his parents. Besides, before you think of love, why don't you wait and choose some young fellow old enough to take care of you should you decide to marry him. How often must I write that most of the unhappiness of life and most of the divorces are caused by marriages contracted by immature persons, who haven't a semblance of an idea of what true love really is?

That There "Sphere"

THOSE conservatives who shudderingly await the smashing of all their home idols by the feminist movement encourage themselves to remember how in the good old days all women loved to cook and scrub and darn—especially to cook. They did do an enormous amount of cooking of a sort, but the proof is entirely absent that they did it any better or more cheerfully than their successors.

At Bowling Green, Mo., a story is told of one of the grandmothers who married for love only, and, having no slaves, had to do her own cooking. One morning during the first month of housekeeping she awakened her husband by climbing out of bed at 4 o'clock in the morning. On his demand to know why in the world she was getting up so early, she tartly replied: "To get one of those darned meals off my hands as quick as possible." If we had dictagraph records from the quilting bees of the good old days we might discover that grandmothers got quite as tired "feeding the brutes" as do their granddaughters.

If a hundred of the most submissive housewives of those days, who never so much as cast a sheep eye outside "her sphere," were lined up in a cooking contest with a hundred of our active suffragettes, we aren't sure but that the suffragettes would win the prize with chin up and hands down. Some women love housework and always will, while others hate it and always will.—Collier's.

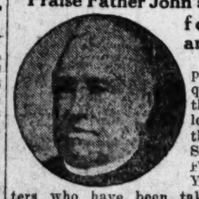

English Plum Pudding

FOR a real English plum pudding use: 1 pound flour, 1 pound raisins, 1 pound currants, 1 pound sultanas, ¾-pound mixed peel, 1 pound almonds, shredded and chopped fine; 1½ pounds suet, chopped fine; ¾-pound bread crubs, 1 teaspoonful allspice, 8 eggs, 1 wine glassful brandy. Mix in the order given and boil from 8 to 12 hours. Serve with cream or brandy sauce as follows:

Heat 1 cup milk, make a batter; 1 tablespoonful of cornstarch, add to milk, pinch of salt, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 spoon butter, cook all together until it thickens, then add 1 wine glass brandy.

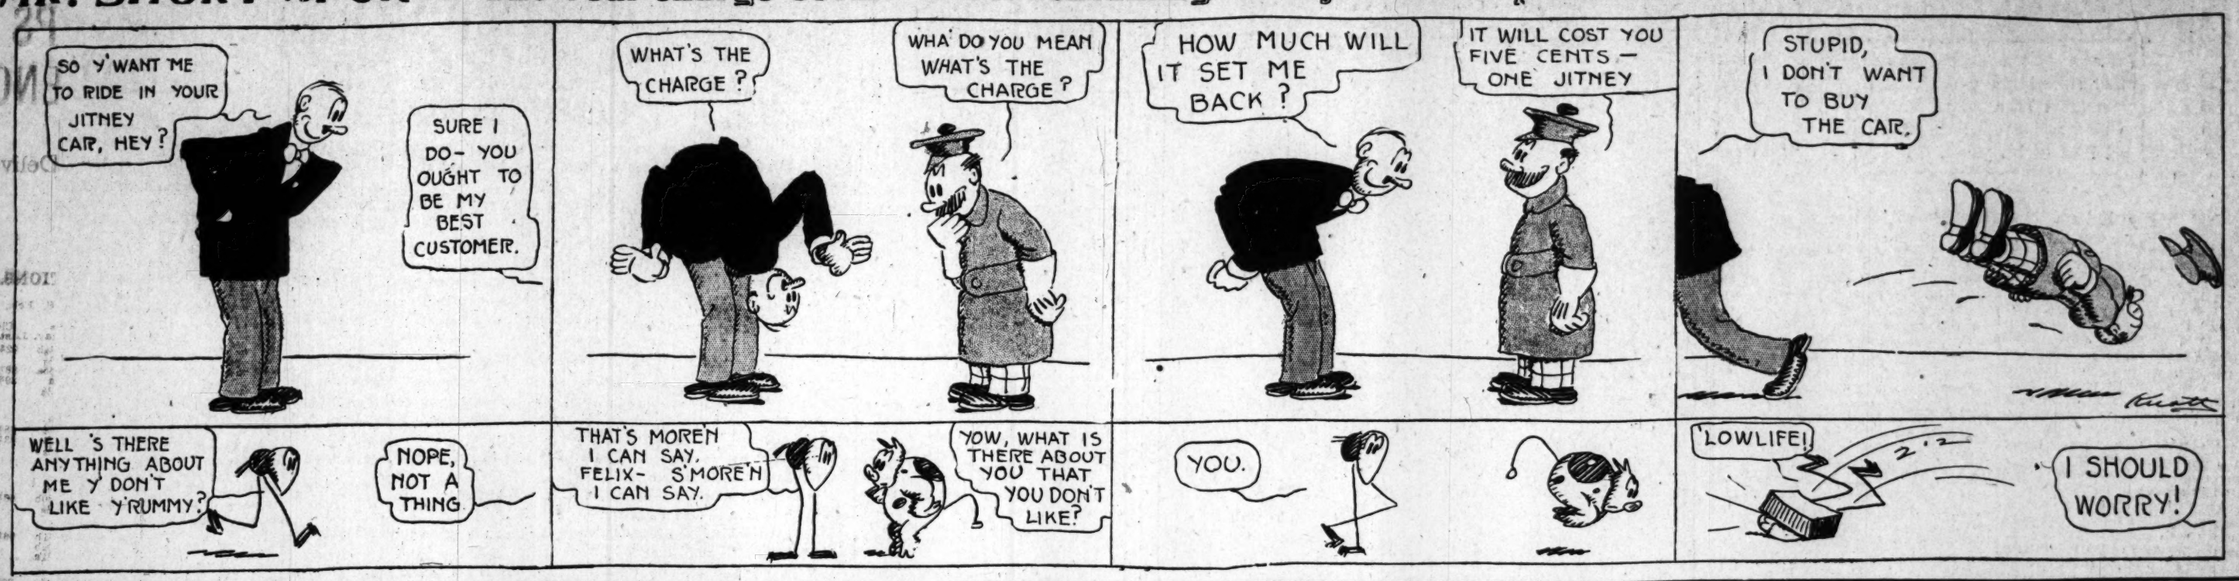

This makes five good size puddings and they will keep for months if kept in a dry place.

THE EASIEST WAY TO END DANDRUFF
There is one sure way that never fails to remove dandruff completely, and that is to dissolve it. This destroys it entirely. To do this, just get about four ounces of plain, ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp, and rub it in gently with the finger tips.
By morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.
You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop instantly and your hair will be fluffy, lustrous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.
You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive, and four ounces is all you will need. This simple remedy has never been known to fail.—ADV.

Negro Referee, in Dress Suit, Allows 14 Seconds for "Kayo"

600 See Sunday Fights at Local Club

Automobile Owners Brush Elbows With Colored Spectators, as "Egghead" Ratty Knocks Out Kid Rumpty at Future City Show—Fun Is Fast and Very Furious.

A CROWD estimated at over 600 persons, a number of whom attended the show in automobiles, saw black and white fighters take part in a Sunday afternoon boxing program at the Future City Athletic Club. On the "card" was a battle royal, a form of ring contest that has been taboo in "safety first" circles for years.

Admission to the show was 50 cents per head and the revenue from the performance was greater than at some of the regular Tuesday entertainments. The Sunday matinees have been continuing at the club for several weeks, and are more enthusiastically received than the regular shows.

In the crowd were several persons well known in business and West End social circles. Mingling with the spectators were also several negroes and others from various walks of life.

A negro band engaged in a desperate preliminary battle with several musical selections, some elemental near-harmony resulted, which served to keep the crowd in a good humor.

The referee, in the final bout, while trying to give a fighter, knocked down for the second time, full chance to recover, prolonged the 10 seconds' count fully four seconds.

In a recent bout at a previous Sunday affair, similar tactics resulted in one fighter being sent to the city dispensary, where authorities are said to have reported the case to the police.

A referee, Sam Dixon, colored, in full-dress regalia, acted as master of ceremonies and announcer. He introduced as a starter Scotty McMurdo, Bud Clancy, Leo Schneider and Frankie Callahan, all of whom did a few practice sparring stunts to please the crowd. The crowd impatiently viewed these scientific efforts by white boxers and cat-called for the regular performance to begin.

The Battle Royal Starts.

Then came the sport. A trumpet call was sounded and in marched five black gladiators, each garbed in a pair of trousers, set of boxing gloves and a million-dollar smile. These were to be the contestants in a battle royal. Four of them took a corner each, while the fifth remained in the center awaiting the bell. When it rang 10 swinging fists began striking in all directions. Sometimes two at once faced one opponent. One jet pummeler seemed better than the rest, and the four others made it their business to put him out.

At the end of the fifth round two were left in the ring. A good scrap was promised. But no. When the bell rang, the rivals showed a loving friendship for each other, and refused to strike. They were hurried out of the ring.

It developed that the winner of one of these events is compensated with $3. The runner-up received a third of that sum, while $2 is divided among the conquered three.

The first real bout was between Benny Hall, black, who looks like a good-sized bantam, and Leroy Williams, colored. This was to be an eight-round bout at 128 pounds. Benny came up to Williams' shoulders, but that made no large difference. At the expiration of the eight rounds Referee Dixon raised his right hand and proclaimed the "Shadow" victorious. He was triumphantly carried on the shoulders of his seconds from the ring.

Battling Ball, the Planters Hotel porter, and "Kid" Hamilton of Memphis, both colored, donned the mits. "Ham" seemed to like the floor immensely, and three times in the first round went for the count of eight, after being chilled with the breeze of Ball's wind wings. The bell seemingly interrupted his little sally, and it was necessary for him to come back for more. He did, and he evidently received it. "Ham" went down for the count shortly after the second round bell was sounded.

And the Main Event.

The final feature was one in which Mr. Dixon had the great pleasure to introduce "Egg Head" Ratty, the local pride, and "Kid" Rumpty, the original ace of spades, for an eight-round bout, at 126 pounds. Both gentlemen are dark. The participants entered the ring, and the "Big League" stuff of consultation, tape and instruction took place.

The retinue of each battler probably would have put those of the best-known champions to rout. Each had five seconds, and it was noticed that several of the instructors were of the silk shirt variety. Some class.

The battle was a fierce one. For four rounds the huskies exchanged wallops. Between rounds, it is doubtful if Joe Gans or Peter Jackson ever was more minutely seconded. Two towel swingers, a rubber for the upper and one for the lower parts of the body, and a coach were on the job. In the balcony, husky, dusky voices engaged in cheering duels. Two of the idol worshipers became so partisan as to put on a little exhibition themselves until stopped.

In the fifth round, "Egg Head" shot a wicked left to his opponent's jaw and sent him down for the count of nine. "Kid," who looks like a vest pocket edition of Sam McVey, was game; he came back for more, but again went down. Although the referee tried to help him along by telling the count about every three seconds after seven had been reached, the "Kid" was out. "Egg Head" had an admiring crowd of negro followers in his dressing room after the contest.

Hyde Parks Swamp Specials.

The Hyde Parks gained an easy victory in the special six-game match with the Washington Specials by taking the last three games, 2765—2611. The Hyde Parks totaled 2764 for the six against, against 5494 for the Specials. Jule Schmitt and Harry Deen did the best bowling for the winners, while Ferguson topped the losers.

It's Pretty Soft for Fred Welsh

World's Lightweight Champion Will This Week Continue His Skit, "Extracting the Coin Without Pain."

Freddie Welsh, world's champion lightweight boxer, is a double pastmaster; and then some. No, not so much at boxing; there are a number who seemingly can make him stretch like a dachshund. It's in the matter of extracting coin without pain to himself, the promoter, the other fighter and the public that Freddie has taken post-graduate degrees.

Fred will continue the painless extraction this week at New York when he will kid the public and Joe Shugrue into thinking their 10-round canter is a desperate battle. And it will be a good one at that, no doubt. That's where the public and the promoter come through without pain. Shugrue is good enough to keep himself whole; while Freddie Welsh—well, does anyone recollect the time when any opponent ever did hurt Freddie—or muss his hair? Thus, no anguish for the boxers.

Welsh is fighting as often as human nature will let him. He gets good pay for it; he never willingly disfigures an opponent; no opponent is able to disfigure him; lots of discussion is created about the other fellow's ability; while Freddie's title and reputation come through strictly intact. There you are, with everybody satisfied. Pretty hard to beat, eh.

Except that New York fight Tuesday, we can call the turn now: Newspapers divided, leaning toward Shugrue. Last picture in the film shows Welsh carrying home the coin valise, large portion of the purse and a smile.

One of the queerest matches yet arranged in that dear New York is that between Mike Gibbons, a light middleweight, and Gunboat Smith, a 180-pound heavyweight, date Feb. 26. This match doesn't look good, as Smith is supposed to fight Morris at Joplin, Feb. 22, and to be on Curley's substitute list for March 6 at Juarez. Close connections.

If held the contest should be a thrilling picture of how closely a boxing match can be made to resemble a retreat—or a marathon.

Willie Ritchie is reported to have signed articles to fight the indomitable Mr. Welsh a 10-round bout at Madison Square Garden March 11, weight 135 pounds at 3 o'clock. Whether this hour means the same day or even the same week we can't give out.

Ritchie has had a long rest. He needed it, as he was all out of breath chasing Welsh for 20 rounds in England. He was so breathless he had to give up the chase of the almighty dollar, clearly proving that Welsh has the better wind.

Kid Coffey of St. Paul arrived in St. Louis yesterday to finish training for his bout with George Kirkwood, in the semi-windup of the Coliseum A. C. show next Thursday. Coffey's 125 pounds of fighting weight was accompanied by about 250 pounds of manager and trainer and a cargo of publicity. The latter has been declared contraband of war and was confiscated by Dope Jr., the 95-pound champion office boy.

SPORT SALAD BY L.C. DAVIS

The Passing Show.

JUDGE LANDIS didn't come across
As per his recent promise;
We now begin to think the Judge
Is keeping something from us.
Oh, honest Judge! Oh, righteous Judge!
We wonder what delays you!
Could you but guess
Our eagerness,
It really would amaze you!

THE Browns have got a nifty team,
Though rough around the edges;
And all the A. L. magnates now
Are strong for Col. Hedges.
Like flies around a 'lasses bar'l
Round Col. Bob they're flitting;
But Robert smiles
At all their wiles
And goes about his knitting.

JACK JOHNSON'S in the stamping ground
Of Christopher Colombo;
He's down there in the Barbados,
Consuming chicken gumbo.
If he would go to Mexico
He'll have to take a flyer;
The outlook's black
For Mister Jack,
Should anyone inquire.

TO RAISE a hundred thousand bones
They gave the Kawfeds hours;
Or, otherwise the team would go
To Col. Patrick Powers.
To lose their franchise in the league
Would truly be a pity;
But, as we write
The outlook's bright,
For canning Kansas City.

Judging from the way they're keeping Jack Johnson on the move, he'll soon be able to qualify for the checker championship.

Local Federals May Not Select President Today

The regular week-end return of Lloyd Rickart, secretary of the Federal League, has started anew rumors that he will be selected president of the St. Louis club. Rickart visits St. Louis every Sunday to see his folks, who live here.

Phil Ball announced this morning that he did not know whether the election would be held today or if a meeting would be called for later in the week. Many other names, including Mr. Ball himself, have been mentioned for the position.

MUNICIPAL SOCCER PLAYERS WILL BE SUSPENDED TODAY

Five Football Men Who Started Trouble in Sunday's Game to Be Punished.

Joseph and James Noonan, brothers, living at 1385 Belt avenue, will be hauled into Police Court this morning to answer a charge of disturbing the peace for attacking Player Corbett of the Sonnenberg team, in the Fairground Division of the Municipal Soccer League yesterday. This was announced this morning by Rodowe Abeken, Municipal Athletic Director.

Abeken also stated that the five players of the Claxton team, who were chased by Referee Lyster for using profance language; Schumacher of the St. Matthews, who knocked out Marre of the Aloes, and Rodgers of the Sonnenbergs would be suspended as soon as he received a full detailed report from the referees.

That roughness will not be tolerated in the Municipal League was the announcement made by Abeken this morning. Any players who try it will be expelled from the league for a length of time sufficient to cover the offense. "I am going to work hard for a workhouse sentence for the Noonan brothers," said Abeken. "Many times it is the fans who start the rows at the different parks. They become enraged because their favorites are getting defeated and 'start something.'"

Rough Play Punished.

The trouble between the Noonan brothers and Corbett started when Rodgers of the Sonnenbergs "spilled" several Claxton players. Rodgers was put out of the game and then the Noonans picked on Corbett. They were arrested, though, before they were able to do any serious damage.

Player Schumacher of the St. Matthews became enraged when Marre of the Aloes banged a goal through the uprights and knocked the latter cold. He was immediately chased, while Marre was able to continue after a short rest. The point proved to be the only one in the contest and won for the Aloes.

Besides the numerous offerings of fisticuffs some good games, with many surprises came in Sunday's round. At C. B. C. the West End A. C., which is trailing in the race, handed the leading College team a 1 to 0 defeat. The Southerns defeated the Trumbulls, 1 to 0, at Carondelet Park. Surprises also came in the games at Fairground and Forest Parks.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Blondin, Up to Date.

DOING a tight-rope tango over Niagara Falls, a la Blondin, isn't much more dangerous to longevity than the Sunday skit of the Future City Athletic Club, which once a week risks its own future and that of the entire boxing game in this State.

The details of what happened yesterday (and this was a repetition of what happens there each Sunday) are found elsewhere on this page. The holding of such a show is not only a slap at the Sabbath-observing element of the local population, but it is flouting the Police Department openly.

That isn't the worst of it. The laxity of the club's officials in permitting the battle royal and of extending the duration of rounds beyond the 3-minute limit is sure to result in a serious accident some day. This would compel the already lenient city authorities to close down the club and possibly the entire game, which exists on sufferance purely.

Reputable clubs have worked hard to establish a clean name for the boxing game in this city. From a suspicious, menacing attitude the Police Department has taken on one of confidence. Its mandates have so far been lived up to. Now, for the sake of a few Sunday dimes, with negro boxers performing, the sport's future is in danger of being wrecked.

Coming at a time when two boxing bills are before the State Legislature for consideration, an accident or undue publicity to the Sunday boxing game would certainly kill whatever remote chance promoters have of interesting country legislators in the legalizing of this good sport.

Drop that ax and quit chasing the golden goose, T. Sullivan & Co.

Adieu, Kay See Feds.

THE official stamp has been added to the announcement that the Kansas City Federals will be transferred East. The move was exclusively forecast Saturday in the Post-Dispatch. The Kansas City location is an illogical one, with respect to the Federal circuit. Poor transportation and weak civic baseball enthusiasm are two strong arguments against the inclusion of this city in any major league.

The Federal organization, convinced that it will have to fight the major leagues for its life, has no doubt reached the conclusion that a New York entry is imperative, if it is ever to force itself on the country as a big league.

A Federal authority told the Post-Dispatch that the "outlaws" already have a park site in New York that is better than the Polo Grounds. Newark, however, has been hinted as the temporary successor to Kansas City.

It is inconceivable that the Federal League would be content to lose dignity and class by entering a city the size of Newark—the metropolis or nothing, it will have to be, when the transfer comes.

That "Big league or bust" slogan will be a vaudeville laugh, with teams in the circuit like Newark and Indianapolis.

Title Fight a Joke.

JACK JOHNSON weighs 245 pounds, according to a report from the Barbados, where he has been sighted. Less than one month hence Jack has an engagement to fight Jess Willard, the medium of Promoter Jack Curley's next "world's championship" killing at Juarez, Mexico.

The high weight means that Johnson, to be in condition to fight a finish battle, will have to lose 35 pounds in four weeks, a feat that seems physically incompatible with good health and physical strength.

Conjecture as to what else it means is almost useless. It might be:

That Johnson is underestimating Willard.

That the fight is a frame-up for Johnson to lose.

That Johnson doesn't expect to do better than 225 pounds for the White Hope.

That he has given up hopes of getting into Mexico.

If the announcement of Johnson's weight is correct—and he would not exaggerate it—it is a sure sign that a poor show is in prospect, no matter what the explanation may be. However, that seemed a certainty from the time of the announcement of the match.

Johnson is not fighting any live ones, at the age of 37.

A Wolf in the Fox Den.

FOX JACK CURLEY, Brer Fox T. Jones and Cousin Fox H. Frazee appear to have invited a wolf to pal with them. The announcement that Villa will start a demonstration at Tampico, in order to let Jack Johnson have a port of entry into Mexico, carries with it the suggestion that ammunition and military measures are expensive luxuries, and must be paid for!

The presence of Villa and 2000 soldiers in close proximity to that expected $150,000 gate receipts, on the day of March 6, ought certainly to cast a shadow across the supreme happiness of Foxes Curley and Co.

Villa could find a great deal more to do with the gate receipts than Curley & Co.

Bresnahan, Huggins and Herzog Are After Players to Bolster Their Outfits.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—With reports that Roger Bresnahan, Charles Herzog and Miller Huggins three club managers were on their way to New York the National League meeting here tomorrow promises to be overshadowed by an auction market for players.

Manager Bresnahan, according to reports wants an infielder and an outfielder. Huggins and Herzog, reports have it, are in the market for pitchers and fielders, who are known as hitters.

The chief business arranged for the consideration of the club owners includes proposals to rescind the 21 player limit rule, to abolish the March 1 training camp law and a decision about exempting the class AA clubs from draft, the adoption of a playing schedule for next season and a thorough discussion as to the probable dissolution of the national commission, which is being advocated now.

There seems little doubt that the player limit rule was recently adopted by the League will be rescinded. Also the restriction on training will probably be lifted, as the American League refused to place any ban on this expense.

John K. Tener, president of the League, probably will be given the right to act with President Johnson of the American League in the question of exempting from draft all class AA leagues.

Adopting the schedule will be only a matter of form, as the dates already have been arranged.

KINSELLA TO PLAY WHITE FOR COURT TENNIS TITLE

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—Walter Kinsella of the New York Squash Club and John White of the New York Racquet and Tennis Club have been matched to pay for the professional court championship of America here on Saturday, Feb. 20. Announcement of the match made today states that this is the first time in the history of court tennis in the United States that the professional championship of America has been at stake.

The European war is responsible for the absence of international court tennis features this season and to fill this vacancy it was decided that the game had reached a sufficient degree of expertness among the young professionals to warrant arranging a match for the championship of America and outside of that between Jay Gould and George H. Covey, the British champion, for the open title, it will be the most important ever played in America.

Robideau to Arrive Today.

Sam Robideau, the Philadelphia lightweight, who is booked to meet Frankie Callahan in the feature bout at the Coliseum A. C. Thursday, is due to arrive in St. Louis today to complete his training for the match with the local boxer. Robideau will be accompanied by his trainer, Johnny Loftus.

POST-DISPATCH'S DAILY RECORD OF MARKETS

KANSAS CITY HAS BEEN DROPPED BY FEDERAL LEAGUE

President Gilmore Confirms Post-Dispatch's Exclusive Announcement of Saturday.

NEWARK SUBSTITUTED

At Least That Is the Belief of Supporters of the League in Chicago.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 8.—J. A. Gilmore, president of the Federal League, confirmed the report that Kansas City would not be represented in his organization next year, in a telegram received here today.

A report from New York last night said Patrick T. Powers, former president of the Eastern League, announced there he had acquired the franchise of the Kansas City club and would transfer it either to New York or Newark, N. J.

President Gilmore's telegram, which came from Chicago, followed a message of inquiry regarding the truth of the last night's report follows.

"On account of inability of Kansas City people to raise sufficient funds to properly finance Federal League club, and on account of the near approach of playing season, I found it necessary to take action, with the result that Kansas City will not be represented in the Federal League in the future.

"The league was anxious to stay in Kansas City, but inasmuch as the club could not be properly financed by local people it was necessary to make the change.

"I want to thank the people of Kansas City for the support given our club last year, and believe when they are fully acquainted with the details of the transfer they will not criticise the Federal League for taking this action."

Gilmore declared Kansas City would appreciate the efforts made by C. C. Madison, former President of the club, to retain the franchise for Kansas City. No criticism, he declared, should attach to Mr. Madison for the loss of the franchise.

Directors of the local club announced immediately after the receipt of President Gilmore's telegram that a meeting of the directors will be held this afternoon and plans would be made to force the league to keep the club in Kansas City.

Officials of the club contend that the time granted by the league for the raising of the money has not yet expired.

"I don't see how the league directors can take the Kansas City club away from here if we fulfill our obligation, and we are going to do that," said D. D. Dutton, secretary of the club.

Newark to Get Franchise.

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—Newark probably will be given Kansas City's place in the Federal League, it was said here, following the return of President Gilmore from the East today. Gilmore declined to state whether the team would be placed in New York or in New Jersey, but from another source came the information, according to the newspapers, that Newark is the one.

Gilmore declared he already had made all arrangements for the transfer. He said that a "prominent oil man" would furnish part of the capital necessary to start the club in its new Eastern location.

No other changes in the circuit will be made this year, but plans have been made to enter New York next year, according to the president.

The population from which a Newark team could draw is estimated at 1,500,000, the Federal Leaguers say.

JOHNSON WEIGHS 245 POUNDS; BOUT A MONTH DISTANT

BARBADOS, B. W. I., Feb. 8.—Jack Johnson, the pugilist, arrived here today from Buenos Aires. He weighs 245 pounds, and declares he is in good condition.

Johnson said he would attempt to charter a steamer to take him to Vera Cruz, as no other means is available to take him to Juarez, Mexico, in time for his fight with Jess Willard, on March 6.

Johnson said he was confident of winning, but was auxious because of the possibility of not reaching Juarez as early as he had expected, and might ask for a postponement.

Villa to Aid Johnson.

EL PASO, Tex., Feb. 8.—Jack Johnson, negro champion heavyweight pugilist, ordered arrested by Gen. Carranza, when he sets foot on Mexican soil, can start at once from the Barbados for Tampico with assurance that Gen. Villa will be there to meet him and afford him escort to Juarez, where Johnson is scheduled to fight Jess Willard 45 rounds for the title on March 6.

This was the tenor of assurances sent to Johnson today. He has been at the Barbados nearly 10 days. Since Carranza holds the entire coast line, there is no place where Johnson can land safely, and messages received in Juarez via Galveston by the fight promoters and by Villa officials for transmission to their chief show that Johnson is feeling some anxiety as to whether he will, after all, get a chance at that $30,000, win, lose or draw, purse.

TOPEKA FRANCHISE MAY BE TRANSFERRED

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—Western League magnates renewed their task of arranging a 1915 playing schedule today. They hoped to have one satisfactory to all clubs by tonight but the possibility of a change in the circuit may delay the adoption of any schedule.

President O'Neil announced he would go to Colorado Springs tonight to look over the ground as there is a chance a team would be installed in that city should the efforts to keep a franchise in Topeka fail. It is possible that H. H. Meyer, the Webster (S. D.) capitalist, who is seeking a franchise, will meet O'Neill in Colorado Springs.

It was decided that the league should be prepared for any outcome in the Topeka affairs, hence O'Neill's trip. Simeon Baer, a director in the Topeka club, joined the meeting today.

RAY CAMPBELL, COAST BOXER, AFTER TRENDALL

Ray Campbell, a California 135-pound boxer, is in St. Louis seeking a contest with some good local fighter. Leo Kelly or Harry Trendall preferred. Campbell's record shows he has met some good men, including Jack Britton, Phil. Bloom, Freddie Welsh, Jimmy Coffey and others.

When Manager Miller Huggins of the Cardinals threw out his dragnet for players last fall, he was not very lucky in obtaining athletes, who could swat the pill for a .300 mark, or pitchers, who could fool the opposition in startling fashion.

Among the rookies who will receive a tryout with the Cardinals this spring just two hit for better than .300 marks in the "bushes" last year. They were Betzel and Long, who recently came from the Nationals in exchange for Pitcher Booth Hooper. Betzel hit .312 in the South Atlantic League, while Long compiled a mark of .303 in the Southern.

The next best mark was made by Harry Glenn, the catcher, who was recalled from St. Paul in the American Association. Glenn played with the Saints in 101 clashes and swatted for a .267 mark. He ranked with the leaders in fielding, with .971.

Rolla Daringer, who is the only youngster coming from the minors who will try to fill Arnold Hauser's shoes at short, hit .256 in 37 games with Peoria. His name does not appear in the fielding records. Daringer was able to play very little in 1914 on account of the broken leg.

Betzel, the youngster who played second base in a few battles for the Cardinals late last fall, was the best fielder in the lot. Betzel topped the middle-station guardians in the South Atlantic with a percentage of .976.

Lotz's Record Is Best.

Lotz, who last season twirled for the Oskosh club in the Wisconsin-Illinois League, made the best record among the young flingers coming to Huggins' brigade. Lotz captured 24 battles and lost nine last year for a .727 percentage. This mark put him fifth among the pitchers in the organization.

Another flinger, who made a fairly good mark was North, who hails from the New York State League. North was one of the "iron men" in the New York State League, pitching in 245 innings. In this time, 931 batters faced him, while 193 were able to hit safely, giving him an average of .207 hits per time at bat. The tallies off him totaled 101. He also was the wild man of the league, giving 119 bases on balls.

Meadows, from the North Carolina League, won 19 and lost 12; Steele, who comes from the Victoria Club in the Northwestern League, captured 18 of his 31 games. Franklin Johnson, who with Jacksonville last season pitched a no-hit game, ranked twenty-third among the flingers in the South Atlantic League, with 17 victories and 16 defeats, a percentage of .515.

Columbus Club Beats Innisfails and Takes Lead

The Columbus Club eleven sprang a surprise in the Robison Field League yesterday, trimming the Innisfails, 2—1, and taking the lead in the league race. This is the first time this year that Finnegan's team is out in front. Schwartz and Cliff Brady counted the goals for the C. C., while Diedrickson's boot saved the Irishmen from a shutout.

In the other game, the Teresas gained a 3 to 1 victory over the Manewals. S. King was the star for the winners, counting two goals. Mason and Roche were the other point scorers.

With the St. Leos and Ben Millers making a runaway race in the Federal Park League, the managers will hold a meeting this week to revise the schedule. In all probability the games will be arranged so that the Leos and Hatters clash in the feature tilt each Sunday, with the Compton Hills and Columbian A. C. playing in the other.

In yesterday's clashes, the St. Leos swamped the Compton Hills, 7 to 2, while the Ben Millers defeated the Columbian A. C., 2 to 0. Only one point separates the Leos and Millers at present.

The Shehans defeated the Columbian A. C., 2 to 0, and took the lead in the South Side League, when the Alpen Braus were handed a 3 to 0 drubbing by the Ben Millers.

LOCAL BOWLERS SELECT DELEGATES TO A. B. C.

At a meeting of the City Bowling Association, held yesterday at the American Hotel, delegates and alternates to represent St. Louis at the annual meeting of the American Bowling Congress in Peoria, Ill., March 18 and 19, were elected. The delegates were instructed to urge that St. Louis be given another member on the Executive Committee or one of the vice-presidents. Henry C. Menne and Charles Barker will be named for the positions.

The delegates elected follow: M. D. Clary, Brace Jarrett, Gus Schuttenberg, W. O. Ferguson, Tony Hruska, J. C. Ameling, William Helm, Henry Menne, Gus Heitz, Bob Plummer, Jake Pfluegor, J. A. Beresford, C. H. Stewart, C. T. Cole, D. J. Sweeney and Charles Hauser.

The following alternates were chosen: Jule Schmitt, Fred Utley, Frank Witter, L. W. Waldecker, Frank Coffman, Charles Hippe, Harry Rood, Fred Stuernagle, A. Johnston, Ed Hammell, Rudy Meyer, George Menninghaus, Sam Ostereicher, Fred Langenberg, C. W. Willis and Elmer Vaughn.

It was also announced by the association that the alleys to be awarded the city tournament, which will open April 2, would be named at a meeting March 14, the date selected for the closing of entries.

St. Paul Wants K. C. Franchise.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Feb. 8.—With the hope of bringing the Federal League Kansas City club to this city, several St. Paul capitalists are negotiating for the purchase of the Kansas City Federal League club, according to an announcement made today by John Kirk, who is representing the capitalists.

Mr. Kirk said he was certain New York interests had not acquired the Kansas City franchise and players, as President Gilmore had declined to make any definite move until a decision had been handed down in the Federal League suit against organized baseball.

LOWER EXCHANGE MAY INDICATE GOLD IMPORTS

Sterling Rates Touch $4.83⅜—Stock Market Is Slightly Irregular.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted financial review today, says:

"The outstanding incident, on today's financial markets, was the decline in exchange on London to the lowest rate since the war began. On Jan. 14, when the sudden heaping up of merchandise exports had demoralized the foreign exchanges, sterling touched 4.83 7-16; it went down to 4.83⅜ today.

"In other words, the counteracting influence of our subscriptions to foreign loans and our repurchase of American securities in the intervening period, has now more than spent its force.

"Today's rate is the lowest since the panic of 1907, it is below the normal gold import point, and under ordinary circumstances, it would again revive talk of gold importation from Ottawa. But the surplus reserve of the New York banks is $15,000,000 above where it stood when exchange was lowest in January, and money rates are easier. Our market does not need foreign gold, and the probability is that the international balance will be readjusted by redemption of our maturing short term notes at London.

American Position Strong.

"The American situation thus reflected is extremely strong. A more curious development in foreign exchange was the decline of the rate on Berlin to 86—the lowest of the year to date, and less than ½ point above the bottom figure reached in the November movement. That this renewed decline should have occurred in the face of the large German sales of our securities via Amsterdam is remarkable.

"Considering how utterly out of line with normal quotations this present exchange rate is, the inference that in a neconomic sense it measures depreciation of the German currency, and a veiled premium on gold at Berlin will be difficult to avoid.

"Fractional advances on the Stock Exchange, with a general showing of firmness and a few rather sharp recoveries, indicated that last week's nervousness over the German war zone proclamation had pretty much disappeared. Business was not active however, and prices were apt as a rule to recede a trifle after each advance.

"News of the day came in for little comment. The Lusitania episode did not appear to be regarded as a complication of any importance; but it was evidently looked upon as an annoying occurrence and perhaps even excited a smile at the notion that the big Cunarder, whom any sea-faring man would recognize at a glance, could deceive any one by hoisting another flag."

DETAILED REPORT OF DAY'S TRADING IN WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—The foreign situation was again the cause of some irregularity in today's early stock market, leading shares showing variable changes. The feature was Bethlehem Steel, which rose 2 points to a new high record. Railroad issues inclined to a lower level, but soon recovered, Southern Pacific moving up a point. Interest attached to the movement of Canadian Pacific, which rose over a point in London in anticipation of the maintenance of the regular dividend at today's meeting of the directors. By the end of the half hour the entire list was firm under lead of Reading and United States Steel.

Short selling unsettled the list soon after the early rise, but stocks were freely taken on the decline and recoveries followed. Canadian Pacific sold higher than before and Bethlehem Steel increased its gain to 3 points. Other leaders reflected bearish aggression, however, Union Pacific and Reading moving unevenly. Meantime, various specialties were put forward at substantial gains, Kresge rising 4 points. Some equipment shares were heavy, American Locomotive preferred breaking 13 points to its new minimum of 83. Seaboard Air Line also fell 2¼ to its fixed price of 36. Bonds were firm, some minor issues gaining over 2 points.

Conflicting movements in leading stocks caused a reduction of speculative operations, and trading became dull in the afternoon. Canadian Pacific fell back ⅛ and Reading moved up a point.

EXPORT SALES CLOSE COTTON MARKET HIGHER

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—The cotton market was quiet enough during today's early trading to suggest that the scattering interests had been pretty well evened up toward the close of last week, with operators disposed to await fresh developments in the shipping and spot situation and possibly for a better idea as to conditions under the operations of the cotton futures law, which goes into effect on Feb. 18. Liverpool was a shade better than due, and the local market opened steady, 1 point lower to 2 points higher, with prices holding around Saturday's closing figures during the early session.

Liverpool Cotton.

LIVERPOOL, Feb. 8.—Cotton—Spot irregular; middling, 5.39d; middling, 5.07d; low middling, 4.66d.

NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—The Coal Age says: "The inclement weather of this week was a potent stimulus to the anthracite market, which was beginning to show distinct indications of a break. The domestic grades are all in easy supply, the demand centering entirely on the steam sizes, the high-grade buckwheats being the leaders. Mining operations have been increased somewhat and more of the severe weather will result in the anthracite trade rounding out the coal year in much better form than has recently been anticipated.

Though bituminous apparently continues as heavy as ever, there are uncertainties developing which may cause a readjustment in the situation. The storms and heavy weather have not only stimulated consumption, but have delayed the movement, and consumers are showing slightly more interest in the market."

SHEEP—The market was steady; best lambs went at $9@9.20; mutton sheep sold at $6@6.35, and bucks, $5.

HORSES AND MULES—Trade in horses was on a fairly active basis today. The auction opened with a fairly good demand, and the war horse trade continued on its usual strong basis.

All the extra good quality types of mules had no trouble in selling, but the common ordinary classes were a bore to the market.

Improved sentiment suurounding shipping conditions, following Germany's official note, made for a firm market in wheat in the early local trading today. There was an uncertain spirit in the pit, however, and after the May option sold up to $1.59¾@1.59⅜, it reacted quickly to $1.58⅛, the closing price on Saturday. In the late trade July wheat dropped over 1c, while May was relatively steady. The close was irregular.

Corn futures were weak, and after a slight rise at the opening prices broke a sharp fraction under Saturday's final. Oats were irregular with corn. Corn closed irregular to lower. Oats were steady.

Some authorities who reported the French reselling of wheat last week today claimed a good demand, presumably as a result of the unfavorable weather in France.

There were rumors of export business in oats, and houses that have been doing a liberal business were buying.

Winnipeg wired: The Government is still anxious to obtain seed grain and is offering 5c premium for oats and 2c premium for wheat over terminal prices. If they are not able to get enough country-run grain for seed to run the Government interior elevators, it may be that they will return it from the terminals. Requests for seed are coming in from the West in large numbers every day."

Russell's News said: "There has been evidence of activity on the part of export interests today, and it is believed on the exchange that some business has been worked. On the other hand, there has been some reselling by one set of exporters to others. A cargo of oats is reported as having been worked for export this morning."

World's wheat shipments showed:

	Last Wk.	Prev. Wk.	Last Yr.
American	12,149,000	8,781,000	5,080,000
Argentina	1,972,000	1,027,000	1,808,000

Other countries	74,000	96,000	50,000
Totals	14,323,000	10,256,000	14,000,000

New York wired: "Export sales of wheat late Friday and Saturday were placed at about 1,500,000 bu and of oats 800,000 bu. There was further inquiry for wheat from Mediterranean ports."

On passage this week: Wheat, 43,432,000 bu; last week, 36,232,000; last year, 37,592,000. Corn, 25,288,000; last week, 22,806,000; last year, 11,628,000.

A New York wire said: "We understand there has been a moderate business done in wheat for export. It is also reported that a cargo of oats has been worked. We understand that there is a good demand for corn, but nothing as yet has been accomplished."

In Chicago: "Sample lots of corn showed a decidedly stronger tendency relative to the May. Last week No. 3 yellow on track sold fully 6¾c under, while today we think a fair quotation would be 5½c under. Of course this latter figure is an unusually wide difference at this season of the year, but if a few days of light receipts are going to affect the cash market as much as this, a continuance of light receipts, which seems probable, would have a tendency to narrow differences even more quickly and take away one of the chief bearish arguments on corn values.

Omaha wired: "Cannot find any good demand for corn. Cash sold Saturday at about 9½c under. However, from now on receipts should show a material dropping off, country not selling. Our receipts for two days are only 104 cars. The discount under the option should commence to narrow up with light receipts, and a picking up of the cash demand."

Local wheat receipts were 151,200 bu, against 98,400 bu last year; corn, 122,400 bu, against 55,200 bu; oats, 98,600 bu, against 81,600 bu.

Minneapolis wheat cars totaled 426, against 448 last week and 476 last year. Duluth 37, against 49 and 74; Winnipeg, 202, against 255 and 230; Minneapolis wheat stocks decreased 500,000 bu for two days.

Clearances: Wheat, 1,459,000 bu, flour 4000, wheat and flour 1,477,000, corn 244,000, oats 560,000.

Chicago wheat cars Saturday were 91, corn 109, oats 144. Inspected today: Wheat 225, corn 311, oats 235.

WHEAT IS IRREGULAR IN CHICAGO TRADING

CHICAGO, Feb. 8.—Wheat prices took an upward turn today, influenced to some extent by Liverpool dispatches, telling of fear as to a shortage of supplies in Great Britain and France. There was not much for sale here until the market had risen quite sharply. It looked as if much of the buying was on foreign account. After opening ⅜c off to ⅛c up, quotations scored a material allround advance.

Subsequently, buying orders gave out and a decline set in, owing to somewhat increased country offerings. The setback was hardly checked by a big falling off in the United States visible supply total. The close was unsettled, ⅛c to ⅜c net lower.

Corn reflected the action of wheat. Commission houses did most of the buying, pit speculators the bulk of the selling. The opening, which varied from a shade decline to ⅛c gain, was followed by a moderate general advance.

Weakness in corn developed when the wheat market headed downgrade, but prices later were steadied by a report of some sales for Europe. The close was easy at ½c to ½@⅝c under Saturday night.

Trade in oats was small. Nevertheless, prices hardened in sympathy with other grain.

Provisions held comparatively steady. Weakness in the hog market counterbalanced the effect of the strength of cereals.

FEB. 8 THOUGHT.

The most trifling actions that affect a man's credit are to be regarded. The sound of your hammer at 5 in the morning, or 9 at night, heard by a creditor, makes him easy six months longer; but if he sees you at a billiard table, or hears your voice at a tavern, when you should be at work, he sends for his money the next day.—Benjamin Franklin.

JAPAN THREATENS MILITARY ACTION AGAINST CHINA

Public Men and Newspapers Urge President to Allow Seizure of Territory.

PEKIN, Feb. 8.—Military action to enforce its demands upon China has been threatened by the Japanese Government, according to a cable message from the Chinese Minister at Tokio. It is believed in official circles here, however, that the communication should not be taken too seriously.

Both public men and newspapers are urging President Yuan Shi Kai to let Japan seize by force what she wishes, as China would be unable to oppose her, but refuse to grant humiliating concessions.

It is reported that President Yuan Shi Kai intends to meet some of the demands, granting Japan such concessions as would be given to any other country, but stubbornly resisting any transgression of China's sovereign rights.

The Government is observing Japan's requirement that secrecy be maintained in conducting negotiations, as it is desired to give Japan every opportunity of moderating her demands, without losing prestige.

Washington Has No Information on Negotiations Now Going On.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Japan's requirement that China keep secret the negotiations now being carried on to determine the relation of the two countries to each other, following the capture of Kiauchau, prevents the United States Government for the present from knowing just what the demands and discussions between Japan and China comprehend.

Practically no information has been received from either Ambassador Guthrie at Tokio or Minister Reinsch at Pekin, giving any definite idea as to what the demands of Japan include, notwithstanding the fact that the negotiations have been in progress for some time.

That the negotiations for the present are considered by Japan of a matter solely between herself and China, until an understanding is reached on which the United States and other Powers subsequently may be consulted is believed by officials here, though they admit their ignorance of the purposes of either Japan or China. The United States in a note to Japan shortly after the latter issued her ultimatum to Germany, placed itself on record as "expecting to be consulted" in any territorial changes incident to the taking of Kiauchau, but assurances have come in London press dispatches that the question of territory is not involved in the present discussion, concessions and commercial advantages alone being under consideration.

NEW EVIDENCE IN EAST SIDE GRAFT CASES INTRODUCED

Ledger Showing Daily Disbursements for Improvements Offered by State.

An East St. Louis city record not heretofore used as evidence, the current ledger on special street improvements, was introduced today in the East St. Louis "graft trial" and is expected to have an important bearing on the outcome of the case against former Mayor Lambert, former Treasurer Gerold, former Comptroller Faulkner, former Alderman Tietje, former Assistant Comptroller Rodenberger and Chief of Detectives Grigsby.

Attorneys for the defense protested strongly against its admission, but Judge Maddox overruled them. It shows the disbursements from day to day for the payment of special street improvements.

H. G. Ambrose, expert accountant, who examined the city's books and is the most important witness for the State, took the stand for the first time in this case. He identified the current ledger as one of the books examined by him.

Assistant State's Attorney Gustin introduced vouchers dated prior and subsequent to May, 1912, with the object of showing that prior to that time each voucher bore the number of coupons, bonds and warrants which had been cashed, whereas after that month they bore no such numbers. The first voucher which bore no numbers was that on which $5800 was allowed as having been paid for the redemption of coupons on outlet sewer warrants. The contention of the prosecution is that this amount was paid twice.

Ambrose testified that a $500 Bond avenue improvement coupon represented to have been paid by Gerold was in reality paid by Frank Holten, Gerold's predecessor in office. He testified also that in the Holten and the Gerold administrations $6800 too much was paid out on the coupons of bonds for the outlet sewer.

Ambrose testified that he had been an accountant 30 years, and a public accountant 12 years. He made a general examination of the city's books in 1913, and followed that with an audit of disbursements on coupons of improvement bonds.

Gerold was not in court this forenoon. There were few spectators. Gustin has introduced 112 exhibits. It is expected that the examination of witnesses will draw larger crowds to the courtroom.

Schooner Aground; Crew Safe.

WILMINGTON, N. C., Feb. 8.—The American schooner William H. Yerkes was wrecked yesterday on the rocks of Frying Pan Shoals and may be a total loss. The vessel's crew was rescued and brought here by the buoy tender Mangrove.

MISS DAPHNE BROWN, whose marriage Wednesday to Robert Marvin Nelson will be one of the brilliant affairs of the season, will wear her mother's wedding veil and gown, changed only enough to make it within the mode. The veil is of tulle and the gown of white duchess satin.

Mrs. Brown was Miss Katherine Fisher, the daughter of former Judge and Mrs. Daniel D. Fisher, and it was not so very long ago that her marriage to Lieut. George Marion Brown, U. S. A., was celebrated. It was a military wedding with the groomsmen in full dress uniform, according to the custom. Mr. Brown resigned from the service shortly afterward and went into business here.

Today Miss Marion Bond, who will be one of Miss Brown's bridemaids, gave a luncheon for the wedding party at the Jefferson. George Miller Pinney, who will be best man for Mr. Nelson and who will soon marry Miss Nancy Bakewell, arrived Saturday from Cleveland, where his affairs called him several months ago.

Miss Bakewell will be maid of honor and the rest of the bridal party includes Misses Louise Pitzman, Adaline Capen, Marion Bond and Dorcas Carleton.

David F. Stevenson of Chicago, Linn Bostwich, Humphrey Gifford and Douglas Houser.

The marriage of Miss Lenore Wetzel, daughter of Mrs. Julius E. Wetzel of 6510 McPherson avenue, and Horace Durfee Johns, son of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Johns, will take place quietly Wednesday morning at the home of the bride.

The ceremony will be 9 o'clock, and only the two immediate families will be present.

A wedding breakfast will follow, and afterwards Mr. Johns and his bride will depart for their honeymoon trip.

The St. Louis Woman's Club has sent cut cards for a piano recital on the afternoon of Feb. 15, of the music of the new French composer, Florent Schmitt, by Miss Claire Norden.

Mrs. John Fearn, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Oscar Johnson, of 38 Portland place, has gone to her old home in Holly Springs, Miss., to join Dr. Fearn. Both Dr. and Mrs. Fearn have been Medical Missionaries in China for a number of years, and are home for a visit.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Hantgen, 5323 Cabanne avenue, departed Sunday for a month's visit to the Exposition in California.

Mr. and Mrs. D. G. Braham of 4707 Westminster place have gone to New York to spend three weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Gillespie of 4422 West Pine boulevard and their daughters, Misses India and Virginia Gillespie, will depart shortly for Chicago to make their home. Mrs. Ursie M. Capen will join them there for about two months.

CROWD THREATENS ILLINOIS MINER ARRESTED FOR FRAUD

Prisoner Accused of Obtaining $40 for a Forged Certificate From Examining Board.

Christ Lamrakes, a coal miner, who was arrested in Maryville, Ill., yesterday on a charge of selling to Joe Jodzikinos, Dec. 6 last, for $40, a forged State Miners' Examining Board certificate licensing Jodzikinos to operate in Illinois fuel mines, was transferred today to the Madison County jail in Edwardsville after a crowd of miners had threatened to lynch him last night.

The Maryville Marshal called Sheriff Jenkin Jenkins by telephone and a deputy was sent to the Marshal's aid. A crowd of 200 men had surrounded the jail. Most of the men had gone away by morning and Lamrakes was transferred without trouble.

Sheriff Jenkins declared that a gang of alleged confidence men have obtained large sums in the Illinois fuel fields by forging State Board examination certificates and selling them to unsuspecting miners. Lamrakes denied connection with or knowledge of any such scheme, saying he found the certificate he sold to Jodzikinos.

PRESIDENT TRYING TO AVOID EXTRA SESSION OF CONGRESS

Tells Missouri Delegation Which Asks Him to Speak at Kansas City Course Is Undecided.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—President Wilson told callers today he was making every effort to avoid an extra session of Congress.

To Representative Borland and a Missouri delegation who asked him to speak in Kansas City on his contemplated trip to San Francisco, in March, the President said he wanted to prevent the necessity for calling an extra session but had not finally determined on his course.

Senator Williams told the rPesident he favored an extra session if the shipping bill was defeated through a filibuster, but some other Senators opposed an extra session for any purpose.

STEAMER ABANDONED AT SEA

Crew of Norwegian Vessel Imataca Rescued by the Elzorro.

HALIFAX, N. S., Feb. 8.—The Norwegian steamer Imataca, bound from Ayr, Scotland, to Baltimore, in ballast was abandoned in a sinking condition in midatlantic and her crew rescued by the steamer Elzorro, according to a wireless message received here today by the marine and fisheries department from Cape Race. The abandoned vessel was reported to be a menace to navigation. No further details were contained in the wireless message.

The Imataca was formerly known as the Victor Hugo. She was built in 1909 at Middlesboro, England, and was 290 feet long and of 1235 net tonnage.

Saloon Porter Held for Theft.

Thomas Darnell, 51 years old, of Cincinnati, was arrested yesterday on a telegram from the Police Chief of Cincinnati saying he was wanted there for stealing $43 from his former employer, George F. Bittman, a saloonkeeper. Darnell admitted the charge. He was a porter in the Bittman's saloon.

FREE SOUP KITCHEN TO CLOSE MARCH 5; 157,771 SERVED

Falling Off in Applicants Believed to Be Due to Better Business Conditions.

MANY FAMILIES ARE FED

City Has Furnished Room and Heat and Individuals the Food; Total Cost $2700.

The free soup kitchen, which was opened by Albert von Hoffman, Robert E. Lee and Paul O. Sommer, Dec. 5, in the old Four Courts building, and which has since fed a recorded total of [illegible] persons, will be closed March 5, it was definitely decided today. The falling off, since Christmas, in the number of applicants, and the apparent improvement of industrial and business conditions, have caused the backers of the kitchen to feel that it will not be greatly needed after that time.

The daily fare at the soup kitchen, which is open every afternoon, is a bowl of "mulligan," or thick soup, of which different kinds are served on different days, and a half loaf of bread. This has been given both to homeless men and to destitute families, the latter being permitted to take their soup and bread home.

On the opening day, 1227 persons were fed, and the number increased to a daily average of about 3100, until Christmas. Since that time the number has fallen off gradually, and it is now about 1350 a day.

Men Find Employment.

Several hundred men have been sent out of the city since Jan. 1, on railroad construction jobs, and others who depended for a time on the soup kitchen have been able to get jobs in or near St. Louis.

Until Feb. 1 the bread bought for the kitchen cost 1 cent a loaf. It now costs a cent and a half. The average expense of feeding applicants has been a cent and a third for each person. As the backers expect to have fed 200,000 before the closing day, the total cost will thus be about $2700.

The city has furnished rooms, steam and heat for cooking, and a part of the equipment, and the rest has been given and the cost of food borne by Von Hoffmann and his associates. About 8 per cent of the cost, including gifts of supplies, has been donated by other persons, Von Hoffmann figures.

Six Employes in Kitchen.

The employes have been a foreman, cook and four helpers. Von Hoffman started the kitchen, he says, because he had been "down and out" himself, and knew the needs of the men in that condition.

The enterprise has been criticised by some persons, on the ground that it may have attracted undesirable characters to the city, but others hold that the professional criminal is a distinct class from those who eat at the soup kitchen, and that the kitchen has nourished many who might otherwise have starved.

Steamer Battered by Storm.

LONDON, Feb. 8.—The Swedish steamer William from Baltimore, Jan. 15 for Trelleborg and Kalmar, Sweden, took refuge in Queenstown Harbor yesterday from the storm. Several of her crew were injured, her boats were smashed and the bridge damaged.

OUR zinc deposit is immensely rich and analyzes 65.73 per cent metallic zinc, as shown by the analysis of our State Geologist. We already have assets of more than $80,000 and intend to increase our capitalization. We have other valuable deposits besides zinc. All these deposits may be seen. You don't have to take any chance. This is a legitimate business and asks only investigation. If you want to put your money in the best stock in the country, take pains to investigate this. Don't take up your time and ours unless you have the money and are willing to come and look us over and see things for yourself. We have values to offer you and don't want you to put a dollar in the business until you know that this is true. Box E-26, Post-Dispatch. (c1)

"Bill"

In Which Bill Becomes a Sweet Singer "On the Side," and Gives a Little Private Concert for the Boss, "By Request."

By Paul West.

WAN day I'm settin' back kinder leayin' me lunch git comf'table whin in blows a funny production kinder cross between a shoe-glistener 'nd' a Black Hander. Before I got time luck or do annyt'ing, he grabs out a j'an' says:

Taken dat into Seenyor-r-r Had-lee! Ooglio! ooglio! ooley-ay!"

"Hones', that's what it sounded like, an' there he is wid his bean tilted back, garglin' sumpin fierce. I seen he'd got his wires crossed, so I says:

"Here, frien'," I says, "yer in th' wrong dump. Some guy's been givin' youse a steer," I says. "This ain't th' throat plumber's. Take yer disease down on th' nex' floor," I says, "an' have yer pipes fixed. This here's a law mill."

"I no understanda," he says. "I vish to consult Lawyer Hadlee!"

Well, y' kin never tell, so I rushes th' guy's card in, leavin' him makin' a sound like a leaky radiator. But whin I dropped it on th' Boss' desk, he says, lampin' th' card: "D' youse reelize who the genmun are? That's Seenyor Figloso," he says, "th' great bass o' grand opery."

"F'r heav'n's sakes!" I says. "I'll show him in." "Y' cert'nly will," says th' Boss, "if he's out there still!" "He's out there a'right," I says, openin' th' door, "but youse kin hear fer yerself he ain't very still!" An' no more was he, ooley-ayin' away like a sick frog. But I run out an' give him th' glad fin, an' says:

"Right this way me frien'," I says. "H'are youse?" But he only gimme wan o' thim "To let" looks an' butts by, still gargilin'.

"F'r th' love o' money!" says Ethel, who's came in an' seen th' last of it. "Who's th' sick guy?" "Shoosh!" I says. "That's Figloso," I says, "th' new Cubyan what's signed up wid th' team," I says. "He's a gran' firs' base," I says. Knowin' I could make the bluff wid her, she not knowin' wan position from th' udder. But in a little while out he come, an' th' Boss passed him out.

Bill Learns the New Client's Not a Ballplayer

"WELL," he says, "congranulate me, me faith'ful crew. That was quite a notyble client just me in. I s'pose youse reckernize him, s Jackson?" he says. "Oh, I know o he are," says Ethel, "but I don't ke no int'rest in thim baseball players. 'Tis a wonder they wouldn' go to work fer a livin'." "Baseball player!" says th' Boss. "Who give youse that idee?" "Bill was tellin' me," she says.

"I see," he says, "an' th' mistake are perfeckly nacheral to wan whose mental attitood leans as do yourn t'wards th' great game. But in this particklar case th' genmun are no new member o' th' two teams which refleck such credick on our fair moonicipality. Seen-yor Figloso, on th' contrary, wouldn' probably know a baseball from a egg." "Thin how do he play on th' bases?" I says. "He don't," he says, "he sings it. Seenyor Figloso, me lad, are th' great op'ry singer, an'!"— "Say no more, Boss," I says, an' he goes inside, laffin'.

"Nobody to home," says Ethel, whin he's wint, "ceptin' th' ceilin', an' that's cracked!" "S'that so?" I says. "Y' diden' know who he was yerself." "I diden' get a good lookut him," she says, "or I would." "He's th' guy what gits so much money fer singin', an' ain't no cheap ballplayer!" "Cheap!" I says. "I betcher they ain't no op'ry singer gits th' money some o' th' ballplayers does." I wouldn' be bodderin' wid her no more, so I took a run down in th' hall fer to see was anny o' th' gang 'round.

Th' firs' I run into was me frien' Izzy Katz, an' I slips him th' story, tellin' him what Ethel says about thim singers gittin' so much coin.

"An' so they do," he says. "G'wan!" I says. "Whaddyouse know about 'em? I betcher youse niver heard this ging's name before till I told youse." "He ain't th' only wan, are he?" says Izzy. "How about Tony, Joe th' Bootblack's assistunt?" "Since whin was that wopsy wan o' thim?" I says. "G'wan," says Izzy, "I ain't kiddin' youse. On th' dead, diden' youse never hear him warble? He's a baby, an' makes wads o' coin doin' it! Don't youse believe me?" "Oh, sure I do," I says, handin' him th' wise grin, "offen whin I drop into me box at th' op'ry house I hear him." "Aw, he ain't wan o' thim," says Izzy. "He wouldn' do it. He's got a better gag, an' ivvery Sunday he picks up about five or six bones wid it." "Sellin' what?" I says. "Sellin' nuttin'," says Izzy. "Singin'. Come on, an' we'll prove it."

Izzy, Bill and Tony Form a Trio of Song

WELL, I diden' know what th' gag was, but I takes a run down to th' front hall wid Izzy, an' he out it to Tony.

"Sure, that's right," he says. "Las' Sunday I made near sev'n doll', an' only in th' afternoon." An' thin he give me th' tale. Him an' anudder ginny gree roun' singin' in the airshafts o' th' swell apartment house, an' th' guys fling 'em coin fer it.

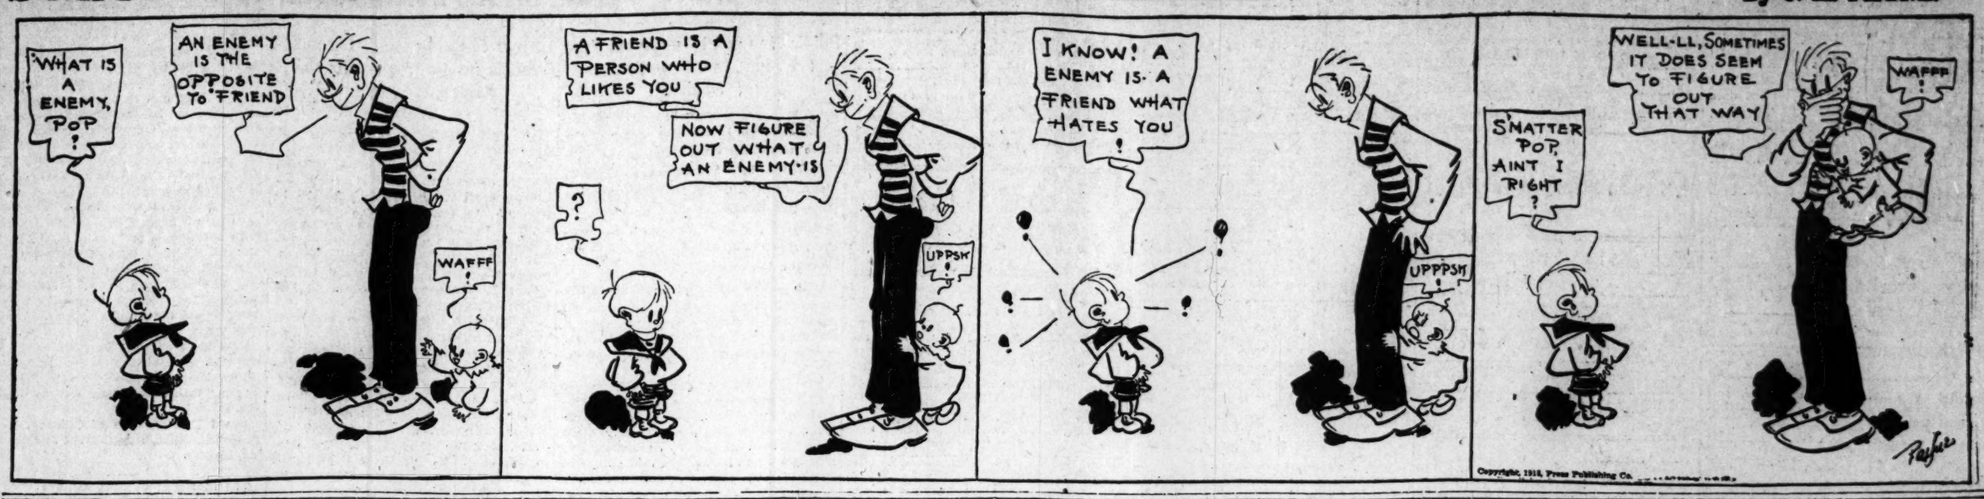

"What kinder singin' d' youse give 'em?" I says. "Oh, 'Tippyrary' an' thim, mostly," he says. "An' youse git paid paid fer it?" I says. "G'wan, I could trill 'Tippyrary better'n youse meself." "I betcher a nickel," says Tony. "Come on back in th' alley an' I'll prove it," I says. "If a guy named Bill Doody can't sing 'Tippyrary' better'n a gink be th' name o' Tony Galupo he'd ought be shooted!"

So we sneaks down in th' alley an' I

From Willie's Family Album

"This is Pa, taken about the time Ma first met him. He was clerking in a drygoods store then and the girls were all crazy after him."

"The old gentleman is Grandpa Jones. He was on a jury once in a case where Abraham Lincoln was one of the lawyers. The lady is Ma, and the little feller is my brother Joe."

showed 'em, an' Tony says I'm all right, thin he hit it a whack himself, an' Izzy says it's a tie, so he's gotter keep th' stakes. Fine chanst he had! "Aw, all right," he says, "but what'll youse lads gimme if I sing it meself?" An' on me word he done it fine. "Yer all right," I says, "Gee, we're fine singers, th' whole of us." "Sure," says Tony. "Leave us sing it togedder!" an' we done it. Hones', 'twas sumpin elegint, so we done it four or five times, till th' Soop got complained to, an' chased us.

But th' next day Izzy says kin I come down in th' hall, an' there's him on' Tony, lookin' foxy over sumpin. Tony had ter shine a pair o' kicks, so Izzy slips it to me. "Whatcher doin' nex' Sunday?" he says. "Would youse like fer to make a bunch o' coin?" says he. "Thin here's th' gag," he says. "Me an' youse an' Tony'll practice up on a couple o' tunes, an' Tony'll show us where to do th' singin'. He says we'll likely clean up tin dollars if th' cops don't chase us. Are youse on?" says Izzy. "Tony says youse got such a gran' voice 'tis a shame not to be usin' it." An' I fell fer it, bein' jollied be thim tellin' me what a gran' little singer I am.

So th' rest of' th' week, ivery chanst we got, we'd sneak down in th' alley or sumwheres, an' practice singin', an' be Sattiday I don't mind tellin' youse we was some t'rushes, all right. I could sing as loud as anny o' thim, too, even if Tony was a little fancier, an' th' only bad wan was Izzy, him soundin' like he'd been sleepin' outdoors wid th' door opin. But I've heard worse. Even Ethel, whin she run into us practicin', up in our hall, stiff, but Tony wouldn' have it, so we folleys him down a side street an' in be th' back way o' wan o' thim big flat houses, till we're in a kinder, now, little yard, wid eight million windeys all round us. Thin Tony give th' signad, an we're off, th' tune bein' "Tippyrary."

We ain't hardly got started whin some dame opins a windey an' leaves sumpin drop onto us. Tony picks it up, an' 'tis a whole bunch o' pennies in a bit o' paper. "That's th' way they alluz does," he says. An' whin th' song was over they was a whole lot more o' th' same t'ings, only some o' thim was nickels an' dimes, an' a couple o' quarters.

"Fine," I says. "Leave us divvy up now, an' give 'em 'Th' Watch on th' Rind.' That's our seckind best bet!"

"We will not," he says. "These guys is alleys, can't youse tell be th' way they like 'Tippyrary?' We'll give 'em 'Youse Made Me What I Am Today—I Hope Yer Satisfied!' "

An' here's where me jinx starts workin', like I might o' knowed it would. We ain't hardly opened our peepers whin a coon in a uniform comes out in th' yard an' we start fer to duck, but he says: "Naw, it's all right, only a genmun up in th' house wishes youse'd kindly come upstairs a minnut." "Whaffer? To git kilt?" says Izzy. "Naw," th' coon says, "he's a gen'rous genmun, an'll likely give youse a couple o' dollars."

Bill Goes in and Is Nabbed by His Boss

IZZY was behind me, an' Tony behind him, an' whin they seen who was comin' acrost th' hall after us they ducked back. But I was too late. Th' door shet, an' there I was, wid th' Boss holdin' onter me.

"So," he says, "'tis fer youse an' yer frien' Mister Katz has been practicin' singin' all th' week.

"I might o' knowed," he says, "'twas not fer no good purpose; but niver," he says, "did I suspeck an associate o' mine was contemplatin' takin' up th' perfession of a troupador on th' side. Fer why," he says, "did youse do it?" "Fer to make a little extry coin, Boss," I says. "An' did youse?" he says. "I dunno," I says; "th' udders is got me share yet." "That's sad," says he, "but rudder than yer whole day should be wasted, s'pose," he says, "youse gimme a little exhibition o' yer vocal powers, an' mebbe I'll reimburse youse."

Well, what could I do? "Th' house 's ourn," he says, "an' they are nobody ilssenin'. So g'wan an' sing." "A'right, Boss," I says, "what'll it be?" "Anny-t'ing," he says, "excep' 'Tippyrary.' "

So I started up what I considered me best, an' he lissened. Whin I got through I says: "Will I give youse anudder, Boss?"

"Youse will not," says he.

"Well, Boss," I says, "they told me I had a good voice."

"An' so youse have, Bill," he says, "but not fer singin'. At th' door he stops me. "Bill," he says, "what was th' name o' that song agen?" "'Youse Made Me What I Am Today, I Hope Yer Satisfied,' " I says. He gimme a look. "Satisfied is not th' word," he says. "I'm paralyzed wid th' result o' me labors!" An' he shet th' door onto me!

Solitude.

POOR CRUSOE on the desert isle
Was lonely, without doubt,
And Bonaparte, on Elba, had
Not much to brag about.
Elijah, in the wilderness,
Was very much alone;
And so was Monte Christo when
Locked in the dungeon stone,
But loneliest of all lone things
The springtime brings to view—
The solitary oyster in
The quick-lunch oyster stew.

A Great Problem.

WHAT was your office boy looking so thoughtful about this morning when I came in?"

"He was trying to make up his mind whether he would fill my inkstand or not."

Paradoxical.

"What do you mean by that?"

"Well, look at the detected counterfeiter, for instance."

You Who Wear Glasses—Do Reflections in the Lenses Bother You?

If they do you should visit us at once and learn how these reflections may be absolutely removed. A new type of lens is so shaped as to prevent the appearance of reflections.

Many people who wear the old-style flat lenses suffer from eyestrain whenever they are within a room with their backs to the light. Some of them do not suspect that it is because reflections of light from windows or lamps set up a constant irritation in the eye.

Consult our optometrists freely. If you are not wearing glasses now, let them make a test of your eyes with scientific apparatus. Glasses will not be recommended unless they are necessary.

Examination now free. Glasses very reasonably priced. Medical matters referred to oculists.

New Vigor for Overworked Nerves—

WHEN, after weeks of overwork, intensified by the endless worries of business, the weakening nerves fly signals of distress, no help is more welcome than the restorative aid that Sanatogen gives.

For Sanatogen brings in concentrated form, nutrients that are eagerly, easily taken up by the famished cells, there to revitalize and endue them with new and energetic health. And as Sanatogen helps rebuild the system's wasted energies, enriching the blood and recalling appetite and restful slumber, it gathers up a new store of vigor and instills a new vibrancy into the jaded system.

But what this restoring, replenishing of the bodily forces means to you, can best be judged from what Sanatogen has done for so many others. For example, Hon. Robert F. Broussard, U.S. Senator from Louisiana, writes:

"I am convinced from personal experience that Sanatogen nourishes the nervous system, thus stimulating the mental faculties and increasing one's capacity for sustained work."

Read, too, what Channing Pollock, the well-known dramatist writes:

"I suffered an unusually severe case of brain fag. The very thought of writing became distasteful, concentration was impossible. I began taking Sanatogen and, within a month, found myself as clear minded, as ambitious and as full of energy as ever before."

And think of the 21,000 physicians who have written enthusiastic letters endorsing Sanatogen—and then judge if you can longer deny your nerves the new vigor that Sanatogen will give.

Sanatogen is sold by good druggists everywhere in three sizes, from $1.00 up.
